Jurors Vote On Indicting Of Maragon For Perjury

Report Is Due Jan. 3; Ten Witnesses Heard As Outgrowth of Influence Inquiry

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A District grand jury yesterday took a secret ballot on whether to indict John Maragon, mystery man and former White House intimate, on charges of perjury before a Senate committee. The result of the ballot was kept secret pending the formal grand jury report January 3.

Ten witnesses were called to testify. Much of the testimony concerned Maragon's dealings on behalf of a molasses company penalized for rationing violations.

The grand jury heard testimony revolving around whether Maragon perjured himself at secret sessions of the Senate Investigations Committee last summer. The committee was inquiring into dealings of five percenters. A key figure in the Senate inquiry beside Maragon was Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, military aide to President Truman.

Maragon, in testimony behind closed doors, told the Senate investigators that, outside of what he reported in his tax returns, he never represented businessmen in dealings with the Government, never was paid for such services and had bank accounts only in Washington.

The committee referred the case to District Attorney George Morris Fay after other witnesses in open session gave conflicting testimony.

The Government yesterday presented testimony from businessmen, committee staff members, FBI agents and Drew Pearson, newspaper columnist.

Joseph P. Elivove, 1310 North Courthouse Road, Arlington, assistant director of the sugar branch of the Agriculture Department, was one witness. Last summer he told the Senate committee that Maragon presented an appeal in behalf of the Allied Molasses Co., Inc., which was suspended from getting a molasses allocation because of a serious rationing violation in 1946.

Milton Polland, Milwaukee life insurance official, also appeared before the grand jury. He told

Weatherman Says White Christmas Is Only a Dream

The weatherman says you can dream of a white Christmas but that won't make it so. He said yesterday there is almost no chance of snow between now and Sunday but there may be rain.

It'll be a shabby sort of welcome for winter, which makes its official entrance tonight at 11:24.

It probably will be colder Friday, then moderate again Saturday and Sunday, according to the Weather Bureau's long-range forecast.

Art Exhibit Host Exceeds 400,000

More than 400,000 persons have now seen the Austrian art treasures at the National Gallery of Art, with attendance yesterday of 4212.

Yesterday's visitors boosted the total attendance to 402,082 who have seen the exhibit since it opened November 20. The gallery is open from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. on weekdays, but will be closed Christmas and New Year Sundays.

White House Signs to Be Toned Down

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

Comes now the solution to those two current mysteries:

Who Gave Permission to Put Those Signs Up in Front of the White House and

Who ordered Them Taken Down?

They were large signs, two in number and in a colonial motif. Embedded in the historic turf of the White House lawn on Pennsylvania Ave., they said simply: "John McShain (big type), Inc. (smaller type), Builders (script)."

And nothing more.

They were put up over the week-

Forecast Cuts Winter Wheat Less Than 2%

Report of Crop Board Shows Yield Nullifying 15 Pct. Lower Average

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Government Crop Reporting Board yesterday anounced that although the acres planted to winter wheat this year are 15 percent below last year, the prospective crop will be cut less than 2 percent.

The report points out in cold statistics that acreage restrictions do not furnish a dependable method for cutting production.

At the same time, the report shows that acreage planted to rye—another bread grain—was increased 12 percent over a year ago.

The report makes plain that wheat farmers took out of production under the Government order only their least productive land. The report states that prospects are for an average yield of 16.7 bushels an acre, as compared with only 14.5 bushels this year.

"With the reduction in acreage," the report says, "a larger proportion of the crop is being grown on summer-fallow land and on land best suited to wheat."

The response of the farmers to the Government's national acreage allotment was unusually good. On July 21, the Production and Marketing Administration called for a 19 percent reduction.

Last year a total of 62,372,000 acres were planted to winter wheat. This year this was cut to 53,023,000. But the total harvest from last year's plantings was 902 million bushels, while the forecast for the newly planted crop is 885 million—only 17 million bushels less.

Barrett Offered State Dept. Post Of George V. Allen

NYHT News Service

Edward Ware Barrett, editorial director of "Newsweek Magazine," New York, has been offered the post of Assistant Secretary of State in charge of public affairs, it was learned last night. He would succeed George V. Allen, who has resigned to become Ambassador to Yugoslavia.

Barrett conferred yesterday with Undersecretary of State James E. Webb, but is reported to have returned to New York undecided. His friends, however, said it was likely he would take the job.

Probe Urged For Payrolls Of Congress

Rep. Burdick Intends To Offer Resolution For Investigation of 'Padding, Kickbacks'

By the United Press

Representative Usher L. Burdick (R., N. Dak.) called upon Congress yesterday to investigate "payroll padding and kickback practices" among its members.

He said he will sponsor a resolution when Congress reconvenes January 3 to set up a special Senate-House committee to make the inquiry.

Alarmed by a feeling that the people believe Congress is filled with crooks, Burdick said an investigation should serve the dual purpose of exonerating the innocent and exposing the guilty.

"My feeling is that most Congressmen are honest about the payrolls," he said. "But a few violators have hurt the reputations of all.

"Inasmuch as a great many people are uncertain about the honesty of Congressmen in general, I think the proper move would be to have a special House-Senate Committee make an investigation of the whole matter and report to Congress."

He said his resolution would call for a six-member committee, three Senators and three House members, to "investigate all facts relating to payroll privileges," and report its findings not later than March 1, 1950.

Burdick, a 70-year-old veteran of 11 years in the House, said he does not know how widespread payroll padding and kickback practices might be. But the time has come, he asserted, for members of Congress to examine their conduct and make sure it is above reproach.

His move drew favorable reaction among some of his colleagues.

Rep. Carl Perkins, (D., Ky.) said that "if a thing like this is going on, it certainly should be stopped."

Another House member, who asked that his name be withheld, told a reporter that when he first came to Congress a government clerk told him it was the general practice to put "dummy clerks" on the payroll. The Congressman said he didn't follow the clerk's advice and added that the clerk in question "is no longer with the government."

Burdick said he became alarmed at the public attitude toward Congress when, during a recent trip to North Dakota, he got the feeling that "the people back home are beginning to think all congressmen are crooks because of kick-back deals."

$25 Million More Sought to Finish AF Base for B-36s

By The Associated Press

The Air Force has high on its list of requests to the new Congress session a 25 million-dollar fund to complete the Limestone, Me., Air Force base, designed to handle B-36 bombers.

Approximately 18 million dollars already has been spent on the base. A 9000-foot runway, reinforced heavily to stand the pounding of sustained operations by B-36 intercontinental bombers, has been completed.

Arctic Killer Mocks Justice; Snowy Owl Sits on Court Roof

By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post
Snowy owl looks down from U. S. Court of Appeals building

An Arctic killer on the lam from the extreme northern wastes of Canada made a mockery of justice yesterday.

The brazen desperado perched himself atop the United States Court of Appeals building, not a hoot concerned about his surroundings.

About two feet tall, of solemn mien, and with heavy black spots dotting his white body, the visitor was identified as a snowy owl out gunning for rats and mice. The snowy owl eats 'em alive.

Up home there's a meat shortage. The lemmings, Arctic cousins to rats and mice, are having their periodic epidemics and dying off in droves. Our snowy owl hit the road South—he just can't stomach dead lemmings.

"This is definitely a snowy owl year," commented Dr. John W. Aldrich, a Fish and Wildlife Service bird expert, when he was alerted.

"We've heard reports of them all over the East—but this is only the second one I've heard about

Chevy Chase Okays 'Noisy' Post Office

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

In a free-wheeling special town meeting, more than 300 residents of Chevy Chase Village last night voted overwhelmingly to renew the lease on the village post office and provide the Postoffice Department with more room.

Defenderfer

Opponents of renewal and expansion of the present facilities on the south corner of West Lenox st. and Connecticut ave. threatened "to take other action" after their objections were shouted down.

The incorporated Maryland village's board of governors presided over the old-fashioned New England-style town meeting in the building which serves as combination post office, library and village headquarters.

Residents vied with each other to tell who had lived in the village longest, and whose words therefore should be treated with the most respect.

Board Chairman Arthur W. Defenderfer, of 7 E. Kirke st., was the first of more than 30 registered voters to speak.

He said the board had full authority to negotiate the lease without submitting terms to the residents, but had called the special

Stalin Attains 70 and Offers Peace Prizes

Moscow (Wednesday), Dec. 21 (U.P.).—Russia opened a gigantic celebration of Premier Josef Stalin's seventieth birthday today by announcing new "Stalin International Peace Prizes" and awarding him his second Order of Lenin, the highest Soviet decoration.

The Supreme Soviet (parliament) announced that from five to 10 prizes will be awarded annually, starting next year on the birthday anniversary, to individuals of any country for outstanding contributions to world peace.

A special committee will make the awards, which will carry a prize of 100,000 rubles (nominally $20,000) each.

(London dispatches reported that thousands upon thousands of gifts worth millions of dollars were showering on Moscow—automobiles, bicycles, diapers, a "wonder" telephone that makes 14 calls at once, wines, liquors, silk stockings, a cactus plant, a coal shovel, a planetarium, a collection of bean shooters, a copy of the Brussels telephone directory, a cooking pan, a sofa, furniture for a study. A few of the gifts were for Stalin himself; most for distribution among his people.

Moscow, and cities and villages all over the Soviet Union, were decorated with portraits and flags.

The old-type fair layout was more simplified

By Chalmers M. Roberts

The unsuspecting Sesquicentennial visitors who walk into those "U. S. A." buildings at next year's Freedom Fair will find themselves inside the biggest maze ever created by the hand of man.

It's the latest thing in fair layouts, a labyrinth billed as guaranteeing "involuntary viewing of at least 75 percent of all exhibits."

In other words, once inside, you can't find your way out without passing at least three-fourths of the commercial exhibits.

This fact came to light yesterday with publication of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission's prospectus on the Freedom Fair, designed to lure millions of dollars worth of exhibits to Washington from the Nation's big business.

Santa Barbara, Calif., Dec. 20 (AP).—Clark Gable and the elder Douglas Fairbanks' widow were married today—each for the fourth time.

Gable, 48, and the former Lady Ashley, 39, were wed on a ranch 30 miles north of here, with only a few close friends present.

It followed by a few hours an elopement which surprised all but a few Hollywood associates. They drove to San Luis Obispo, on the coast north of here, and obtained a license.

Gable used his own name, as did his bride. But few knew her as Sylvia Stanley Alderley. She is the former Sylvia Ashley, wife of Lord Stanley of Alderley. They were divorced 18 months ago.

The ceremony was performed on the ranch of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Gilham, longtime friends of Gable.

Sylvia Louis Hawkes Ashley Fairbanks Stanley, thrice wed and twice to titled Englishmen, has been seen frequently with Gable in recent months, while she has been residing in Santa Monica.

The former showgirl was married first to Anthony Lord Ashley, son of the Earl of Shaftesbury, in 1927 and divorced in 1935, after an international romance with Fairbanks. The latter was named corespondent in Lord Ashley's London divorce action.

British Dual Price Stand Vexes ECA

Officials Reluctant To Crack Down On Issue Given Stress by Hoffman

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

ECA officials are disturbed and vexed at what appears to be a British refusal to follow through on a promise in an important area of European economic cooperation.

The issue is raised by British unwillingness to abandon the practice of dual pricing of its coal. "Dual pricing" is a system of maintaining export prices for basic materials at higher levels than domestic prices.

Elimination of double prices on important European raw and semi-finished materials for industrial use was a cardinal point made by ECA Chief Paul G. Hoffman in a formal speech to the ministers of Marshall Plan countries in Paris last October 31.

ECA officials indicated yesterday they are in no mood to yield on this point. They said ECA roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman was currently pressing the ECA point of view in Paris in negotiations with British and other Marshall Plan country representatives.

Top ECA officials here were not prepared to state what measures they might take if Harriman failed and the British remained adamant. They said they were just confronted with the problem in the last few days and had not worked out their next action.

Hoffman himself, however, has frequently told the European countries that failure to take the necessary cooperative measures for recovery and for "economic integration" would cause the ECA to "reexamine" its whole basis of allocating U. S. dollar aid.

The British position against removing the price differential came to light in discussions last week in the Trade Committee of the Marshall Plan countries' operating body, the Organization for European Economic Cooperation. Although no final decision has been made, the ECA has the impression that the British are firm in their refusal.

The first reaction to the British stand was one of surprise. For on November 2, three days after Hoffman's speech, the OEEC ministers pledged that they would return to their countries and study measures they would take to end dual pricing. This was a much

TWA Sues to Bar Pan American From Rome Tours

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., sued today to try to block Pan American Airways from cutting into the lucrative Holy Year air business to Italy.

Judge Alfred C. Coxe ordered Pan American to show cause December 23 why it should not be prevented from carrying passengers between this country and Rome.

As long ago as 1945, TWA complained, the Civic Aeronautics Board turned down Panam's request for a certificate to travel between here and Italy.

Meanwhile, TWA said it built up its business between the countries to 20 round trips weekly with CAB approval.

A Pan American spokesman said the company had no comment on the case at this time.

Romulo Urges Armistice in A-Bomb Race

Assembly Chief Fears 'Frightening' Pace Soon May Bar Any Controls

Lake Success, Dec. 20 (AP).—General Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo today renewed his demand that the United Nations seek some stop-gap formula to halt what he described as the frightening East-West atomic bomb race.

The Philippine diplomat suggested a temporary armistice in the production and use of atomic weapons might be achieved more easily and more quickly than a permanent solution.

Such an armistice, he explained, would halt the costly rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union for atomic supremacy. It also might serve as an opening wedge to break the atomic deadlock that has existed in the U. N. for three and a half years, Romulo said.

Romulo outlined his proposals in a letter to Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of Canada, this month's chairman of the six permanent members of the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission. Those six powers—the United States, Russia, Britain, France, China and Canada—were told by the 1949 General Assembly to explore every possibility for a solution of the atomic question.

The six permanent members of the commission held a brief secret meeting and adjourned until January 19. They decided to refer Romulo's proposals to their governments for study and comment along with other suggestions made during the recent session of the General Assembly by India, Russia, Haiti, Argentina, Venezuela and Israel.

U. N. Council Asks Israel to Return Offices to Tel Aviv

Lake Success, Dec. 20 (AP).—The United Nations trusteeship council tonight authorized its chairman to request that Israel return her government offices to Tel Aviv.

The chairman, Roger Garreau of France, was empowered to invite Israel to submit a written explanation of why those offices were moved to Jerusalem in defiance of the General Assembly's decision to internationalize the Holy City.

What effect, if any, the 12-nation council's action will have on Israeli policy was not determined.

Burgman Sentenced to Prison Six to 20 Years for Treason

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Herbert John Burgman, the American-born Nazi propagandist who wanted to be President, was sentenced yesterday to serve from 6 to 20 years in prison for treason.

The little 53-year-old clerk from Hokah, Minn., took the sentence with a semblance of a smile. He was alert, and walked briskly from the bar. When convicted last month, he was ill and reclining in a wheel chair, victim of a heart condition.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff of District Court had little to say in meting out the punishment. He commented that the jury's verdict was just, and that any other verdict would have been unreasonable.

The prison term was imposed in view of the seriousness of the offense, the jurist said, but he was taking into consideration Burgman's precarious health.

Burgman remained in Germany after his Army service in World War I. He married a German woman who bore him a son. Burgman obtained a job as clerk for the military attache in the American Embassy at Berlin. He did not return here with other employes at the opening of hostilities in 1941.

Instead, witnesses testified, he cast his lot with Hitler, and repeatedly broadcast for the German masters for as much as $1500 a month. Burgman contended he propagandized only because the Gestapo threatened his life and his family's.

'Inhumane' Treatment Of Nationals Is Protested

Sharply-Worded State Department Note Demands Vogler's Release

By The Associated Press

The United States yesterday ordered American travelers to stay out of Communist-run Hungary because of the "inhumane" treatment of Robert A. Vogeler and other United States citizens.

A sharply worded note announcing the ban demanded the prompt release of Vogeler, a communications company official who has been held incommunicado for more than a month.

American citizens are no longer "free to transact normal business or to visit, in Hungary, without suffering surveillance, arbitrary arrest and other intolerable molestations," the State Department charged in a note handed to Minister Imre Horvath.

So, until further notice, the department said, all passports issued to Americans going to Europe will be stamped "not valid for travel in Hungary." The Hungarian government was told also that the United States reserves the right to claim damages for harm to Vogeler and that "further measures" are under consideration to be put into effect unless the Vogeler affair is settled satisfactorily.

The threatened measures were left unexplained. They could include closing down Hungarian consulates in New York and Cleveland, or even a complete break in diplomatic relations. However there was no official hint that such a break is contemplated now.

Only Vogeler was mentioned by name, but reporters were told that the protest applied equally to the reported arrest last Thursday of Israel Jacobson, head of the American Joint Distribution Committee's Hungarian office. Michael J. McDermott, State Department press officer, said the Hungarian foreign office now denies that they have any information about Jacobson. Budapest dispatches had reported he was arrested upon his return from a six-week visit to his home in Chicago.

President Truman returned yesterday from a three-week Florida vacation and plunged immediately into the Government's financial and foreign problems.

In the first hours back at his White House desk he scheduled talks with Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and Budget Director Frank Pace, jr., his budget and tax experts, and with Secretary of State Dean Acheson, his top man on foreign affairs.

The Cabinet will get a sneak preview of the program Thursday at a special meeting he has called to outline the State of the Union and budget messages on which he has been working.

He will have a news conference Thursday afternoon and take off Friday morning to spend the Christmas weekend at his home in Independence, Mo.

Internal CIO Row Has New Legal Snarl

Firings at Issue

Law on Dues Clarified by Labor Board

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The right wing-left wing battle in and around the CIO, snarled up in a score or more lawsuits, moves into another legal area today.

The National Labor Relations Board will open hearings in Dayton, Ohio, Buffalo and New York on the petition of the right-wing CIO International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) for the representation elections among the employes of the General Motors, Sperry Gyroscope and Rudolph Wurlitzer plants in the three respective cities.

The left-wing United Electrical Workers (UE), recently ousted from the CIO on charges of following the Communist Party line, has held up the three NLRB hearings through court action. Yesterday, however, the UE withdrew its petition for an injunction to prevent the hearings.

Restraining Suit Called Off

NLRB counsel appeared in District Court yesterday to oppose the injunction, alleging that the court had no jurisdiction over NLRB hearings. The court never did get a chance to rule on the question. UE called off its restraining suit because—according to a spokesman—NLRB Counsel Robert Denham has revised central office instructions for holding the hearings and therefore the basis of UE's complaint had been removed.

The revised instructions order the NLRB regional offices to take evidence as to whether or not a split exists between the UE and the IUE in each comany plant. This technical point was hailed as a victory by UE, but NLRB officials insist that the change in instructions had routinely been ordered before the UE filed suit.

Later in the day, the UE called upon President Truman to fire NLRB Counsel Denham and to investigate the board itself. Albert J. Fitzgerald, UE president, charged that Denham and the NLRB are out to "destroy existing collective bargaining contracts."

Elections Now Sought

Many electrical industry contracts with UE—from which IUE splintered off—do not expire until March or April. UE has been arguing that no new union representation elections should be held among the workers until the contracts are just about expired. However, IUE and some of the major companies have petitioned for immediate elections on the ground that UE no longer represents many of the 400,000 electrical workers.

NLRB officials say they plan to go ahead with election hearings as quickly as possible. The question of when to hold the elections will be decided later. They say the UE is engaging in delaying the harassing tactics when it claims that Denham or the NLRB is trying to "rig" the elections in favor of the right-wing IUE.

James Carey, president of IUE and former president of UE, took the opportunity yesterday to take a whack at his left-wing rival. He said:

"The legal mumbo-jumbo that UE is indulging in this and other cases is conclusive proof of the UE leadership's fear of the workers and their unwillingness to face a democratic verdict."

Office Union Sues

Meanwhile, the left-wing United Office and Professional Workers asked District Court for an order prohibiting its expulsion from the CIO. The CIO affiliate, accused of following the Communist line to the detriment of the CIO, asserted it had paid in some $200,000 in per capita dues to the parent rganizatin, and that it was in the process of being ousted from the CIO in an unconstitutional manner. Hearing on the injunction suit will be held next month.

On Monday, the CIO filed suit against the Office Workers for $18,700 in alleged loans. A special CIO board held hearings Monday on charges that the Office Workers were pro-Communist and therefore subject to ouster by the CIO executive board.

D. C. Butchers Set January 3 Strike Deadline

A January 3 strike deadline has been set by AFL butchers seeking a new work contract with four major chain stores here.

Local 555, Amalgamated Meat Cutters Union, met Monday night and authorized a strike by 1000 butchers and helpers against Safeway, A. & P., Food Fair, and American stores, if no agreement is reached by the deadline date.

Contracts between the union and the stores expired December 3, but the local extended the old work contract for one month to permit Federal mediation of the dispute. Conciliation Commissioner James Holden, who has already held several parleys with Safeway and union negotiators, plans to bring the disputants together again.

According to union officials, Safeway, American and A. & P. have offered a 6-cent-across-the-board increase in pay; Food Fair has made no offer to increase benefits.

Rita's Looking Fine . . .

Associated Press RADIOPHOTO
OUTDOOR PRESS CONFERENCE—Princess Rita Hayworth and Prince Aly Khan face the news camera from her Cadillac convertible, which had its top lowered for an open-air news conference outside the Chateau Dorigny in Lausanee, Switzerland. While her husband poured champagne for the newsmen he usually greets with scowls, Princess Rita looked a reporter in the eye and said: "I don't expect to have a baby until February, and why everybody seems to think it's going to happen earlier beats me." She wasn't taken seriously

Holidays Bring Coal Output Down to Two-Day Schedule

John L. Lewis' miners, who have been operating on a three-day week, will cut down their production by a third for the next two weeks because of the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Except for the few miners working for companies which have signed up new work contracts with the United Mine Workers, the union's 480,000 diggers have been working only on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays. The next two Mondays being legal holidays, the miners will take those days off, as is customary, but they will not extend the shorter work week to Thursday.

Thus far, the UMW has announced that mines producing less than 3 percent of the Nation's coal have agreed to a 95-cents-a-day pay increase and a 15 cents a ton welfare fund increase. The bulk of the operators are holding fast against the union demands, and thereby have been penalized by John L. with the limited work week.

Negotiations in the anthracite industry continued in New York yesterday, but were recessed until today.

Gray of NLRB Not to Receive Another Term

White House officials said yesterday that J. Copeland Gray would not be renamed to the National Labor Relations Board.

Gray's two-year term expired last Friday midnight. Since then he has not taken part in board activities. He sat in the audience during a hearing Saturday.

There has been considerable speculation over President Truman's delay in either reappointing Gray or naming a successor.

The White House officials, who asked not to be named, said that Mr. Truman has not decided upon a replacement. Until a new appointment is made, the board will function with only four members.

Gray generally has been regarded as the most conservative member of the board. Before joining the board, he was an industrial relations expert representing management in the Buffalo, N. Y., area. He was an industrial member of the wartime National Wage Stabilization Board, and also was affiliated with the War Labor Board.

China Asks World To Shun Red Regime

Policies Set Out

Indonesian Republicans Lead Cabinet

Batavia, Java, Dec. 20 (AP).—Republicans outnumber Federalists 11 to 5 in a cabinet of theUnited States of Indonesia announced today.

Mohammed Hatta, the premier, is to serve also as Foreign Minister of the new nation which will enter a partnership with the Netherlands under the Dutch crown with the end of the Dutch rule a week hence.

He has been premier of the Indonesian Republic and a close collaborator of President Soekarno, the revolutionary Republican leader who heads the new nation.

The Republic is but one of the new nation's 16 states.

The makeup of the cabinet reflects the republic's leadership fight for independence. Claiming rule over sections of Java and Sumatra, two of the richest islands of the archipelago, it had actively fought the Dutch off and on for four years. It alone has an organized army. The other states were headed by Dutch-approved governments.

Five men were named to an inner cabinet, empowered to act independently of the other ministers in case of emergency. Home Affairs Minister Anak Agung, former premier of the Federalist State of East Indonesia, is the lone non-Republican in this group.

The government issued a policy statement announcing its aims to promote peace, education and business at home, moral political and economic reltaions among the nations of southeast Asia and to seek membership in the United Nations.

"Government supervision of economic activities to direct them toward the public welfare" was one point.

Speedy return of Dutch troops to the Netherlands also was proposed.

Taipeh, Formosa, Dec. 20 (U.P.). Nationalist China warned the world today that recognition of Red China by any nation was a "violation of the principles of the United Nations . . . for which democracy will have to pay dearly."

A note distributed to Chinese diplomatic missions all over the world denounced Mao Tze-tung's Red regime as a puppet government "created by a foreign power."

The Chinese declaration appeared to be aimed particularly at Britain's rumored plan to recognize Communist China soon. A formal British announcement was expected here shortly after Christmas.

(Official sources in London today said Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was awaiting legal advice before authorizing the announcement.)

So far, Mao's regime has been recognized only by Russia, Yugoslavia, Burma and the Soviet satellite states of eastern Europe. In each case, Nationalist China has broken relations immediately with every nation recognizing the Reds, and official quarters said the same procedure would be followed if Britain announces recognition.

U. S. Won't Abandon China, Jessup Says

San Francisco, Dec. 20 (AP).—Philip C. Jessup, the State Department's ambassador at large, sailed today for China and the Far East. He will attend a January conference of American diplomatic representatives at Bangkok.

During his stop here Jessup said the United States will not abandon China or any other nation of the Far East.

He said in a luncheon address, "We believe in the right of people to determine their own government without dictation."

This belief in the right of self-determination, he added, "applies both to those states which are brought under foreign domination and to those people who are emerging or have recently emerged into full statehood." He continued:

"We are opposed to imperialism. We firmly and flatly reject it in our own policy. We oppose it when practiced by others. We shall continue to oppose in particular the blatant imperialism of Soviet Russia in Asia."

end. They were taken down early yesterday morning.

There was considerable raising of eyebrows in between. After all visitors, unfamiliar with the fact that the mansion is undergoing repairs at the hands of the Philadelphia firm, might assume that for some reason the White House has been taken over as headquarters for some agency known as "John McShain, Inc., Builders."

The Public Building Administration commissioner, W. E. Reynolds, raised an eyebrow, too. He went one step further: He raised an objection, and down came the signs—for esthetic reasons.

"They were not," said Reynolds, "in exact keeping with the surroundings."

That takes care of Who Ordered Them Taken Down.

Has Right to Erect Signs

The specifications for the $5,300,000 renovation job stipulate that McShain has a right to put up signs. But only after the "contracting officer" approves them.

Reynolds is that "contracting officer." He said he did not see the signs before they were put up.

"They were noted pretty quickly," he said. "As soon as I saw them, I knew they were out of keeping."

That takes care of Who Gave Permission To Put Them Up?

Other signs will follow the two torn down. Reynolds has definite ideas on the subject.

Should Be Dignified

"They should," he announced, "be small, dignified signs. Oh, say 18 inches long—maybe 2 feet. They could be attached by wires and say something to the effect that the company is conducting the renovation.

"They should be quiet and dignified. The others were too big, too unwieldly. That happens, sometimes. I remember when we built an eagle for the Social Security Building . . . "

There is a third sign lettered "John McShain (big type), Inc. (smaller type), Builders (script)" on the White House grounds.

It's on the south lawn where East Executive dr. turns. Whereas the other signs were three feet wide and supported on a single plank about 15 feet high, this one is 5 feet across and supported on two planks 20 feet high.

It's likely to remain there—very likely, said Reynolds.

The construction firm has built a shed there, and the sign is in keeping with the surroundings—in an esthetic way, of course.

Woman Envoy To Denmark Gets Ovation

Copenhagen, Dec. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, the United States' first woman Ambassador, and her family were given a turbulent welcome upon their arrival in Denmark today.

Three thousand Danes waited on the quay as the East Asiatic Co.'s Jutlandia drew up to the dock. A 15-man band played the Danish and American national anthems and Danish Christmas carols.

Then 119 newsmen and photographers—biggest press turnout seen in Denmark—crowded about and learned that Mrs. Anderson speaks only one Danish word, "godmorgen" (good morning), and knows "nothing at all about Danish cooking."

Afterward the Andersons—Mrs. Ambassador (that's what the Danes have decided to call her), her husband John, 15-year-old daughter Johanna and 11-year-old son Hans—moved into their 40-room Rydhave home.

There the embassy staff tendered a champagne cocktail party.

U. S. Bans Trips to Hungary

Telephone and Telegraph Corp., was nabbed secretly when en route by motor car from Vienna to Budapest. For four days after his arrest on November 18 the foreign office denied any information about him, the State Department said. Later Hungary declared he had made a "confession" of espionage and sabotage against the Communist regime and admitted implication in the attempt of a Hungarian citizen to flee from the country.

Meantime, Nathaniel P. Davis, United States Minister, and other American officials have been denied any opportunity of talking with Vogeler. This, it was charged, violated the "spirit and letter" of a 1926 United States-Hungary commercial treaty as well as the terms of the 1947 peace treaty and the United Nations human rights declarations.

The travel ban was the most drastic action taken thus far in the recent disputes of the United States and the Western powers with Hungary and other Soviet bloc countries. The West filed charges of peace treaty violations against Hupgary, Bulgaria and Romania at the recent U. N. General Assembly session. The charges still are pending. A strict licensing system keeps out of the Communist bloc any shipments which might add to the war potential of the Soviet states.

A similar travel embargo was placed against Yugoslavia three years ago but has been relaxed in actual application since Marshal Tito's break with the Cominform. Passports currently are not being issued at all for visits to Communist China and Albania.

200 Americans in Hungary

The Hungarian travel embargo does not affect passports already issued "unless we get our hands on them," McDermott said. He noted that the United States also can restrict the travel of Hungarians to the United States by refusing visas but has not done so yet.

There are some 200 Americans in Hungary now who have passports, aside from about 370 who have filed claims to United States citizenship. Perhaps 100 tourists visited the country last year, records indicated.

Aliens Flooding U. S., Congressmen Report

Thousands of illegal immigrants, many with subversive aims, are streaming into the United States through wide gaps in the border policing system, congressional investigations reported yesterday.

Representative Ed. Gossett (D., Tex.) who with Representative J. Caleb Boggs (R., Del.) looked into the situation, says he will recommend that military intelligence be thrown into the job to help combat "what might be termed foreign invasion."

He estimated the New York City district alone has 200,000 aliens who have no right to be in the United States. He asserted that many came here by underground routes and are kept here by the "absolute refusal" of New York courts to enforce the immigration laws.

Gossett and Boggs made a three-day inspection of the Immigration Service in New York with a view to strenghtening alien controls. Both are members of the House Judiciary Committee which has approved a bill to allow detention of illegal immigrants and deportable aliens.

They hope to inspect Detroit and "perhaps other areas" along the Nation's sea and land frontiers.

Gossett said that with "hundreds of lawyers" devoting themselves to protecting the immigrants, "any alien with a little money or a little ingenuity" can slip in and usually stay. Some can buy fake birth certificates to escape deportation, he added.

Immigration officials in New York "are doing the best they can with woefully inadequate forces," he said, "but are balked by loopholes in the law and by the absolute refusal of the New York courts to enforce such immigration laws as we now have."

"In the New York courts, the alien seems to have more rights than the citizen. We find that our big cities, especially New York, have hundreds of lawyers who make their living out of the immigration practice."

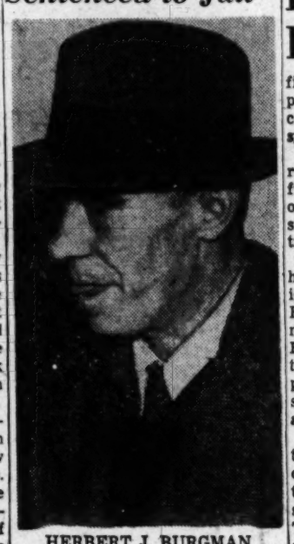
Gossett said the New York Immigration District's files at the start of last year had 55,000 old cases awaiting investigation and only 100 investigators for the job.

"They are forced to close their eyes to many new cases which are drifting around under their very noses," he said. "Thousands of illegal immigrants hover within the shadow of the Immigration Office itself."

He said they found evidence of underground channels through which immigrants are moving.

As soon as Congress reconvenes, Gossett said, he expects to bring in several bills.

'Joe Scanlon' Sentenced to Jail



HERBERT J. BURGMAN

Burgman Gets Prison Term

spurious newsflashes of American military catastrophes, and said he was "Joe Scanlon" broadcasting from an underground station called DEBUNK in the Midwest.

The jury listened to transscriptions of his programs for several days. In them, Burgman castigated the Roosevelt Administration, and predicted that when he became President, the war would end, and the youth of America could return home.

James J. Laughlin, defense attorney, announced that he would appeal, and contended the jury had misapplied the law to the facts. He then said:

"Now that the formalities are out of the way, your honor, I want to say that you conducted the trial with painstaking fairness and we are all grateful to you—I mean the defendant and his family as well as myself. I have a letter from the defendant's son, who has returned to Germany, and he asked me to convey to you his appreciation of your fairness."

During the trial, psychiatrists disagreed as to Burgman's sanity. He was characterized as a "pathological Milquetoast," and a victim of a "schizophrenic reaction." Other psychiatrists said he was sane at all times.

In all, 15 Americans have been tried for treason during World War II. Of these eight have been convicted.

Last March, Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars, 48-year-old Maine native, received in District Court a 10-to-30-year prison term for broadcasting to American troops over Radio Berlin. On October 6, Mrs. Iva Toguri (Tokyo Rose) D'Aquino, 33, received 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for broadcasting for the Japanese in Tokyo.

Britain's Dual Price Policy Disturbing to ECA Officials

firmer commitment than a mere promise to study "whether" they could terminate the two-price system.

The second reaction was the realization that the British refusal to eliminate double prices on coal would probably mean similar nonaction by other countries.

For examples, Germany also has dual pricing of its coal; there is dual pricing of Belgian and French steel; of Norwegian ammonium sulphate; of Swedish and French iron ore; of Swedish timber and pulp; of French phosphates and potash, etc. ECA seeks the abolition of all such arrangements.

The British official position is that dual pricing is an old and accepted practice, not outlawed by the most recent trade compacts, such as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, and that it is not necessarily bad.

They argue that British coal still sells for less than any other on the Continent and that its price is not an artificially high one, set by a cartel or a monopoly position. It is, instead, a reasonable one, set by market forces.

However, the British earnings that ensued from the difference between the export and the home price—about 1 pound a ton—accounted almost exactly for the 10 million pounds estimated profit that the British nationalized coal industry will show this year.

Thus, if the British government ended dual prices on coal it would have to choose between two horns of a most distasteful political dilemma—with elections only two or three months away.

On the one hand, if it ended the export price differential, its nationalized coal industry—a central element in the Labor government system—would no longer show a profit.

On the other hand, if it equalized the two prices, by raising domestic prices enough to make up for the profits formerly derived from export coal, the cost of coal to the hard-pressed British consumer would be boosted.

Loath to Take Action

ECA officials are aware of and sympathetic to this dilemma. They are loath to take the drastic action that they have in their power.

Nevertheless, the end of dual pricing is seen as extremely important for the cause of European recovery. It happens, also, to be particularly near and dear to Hoffman's heart. He made much of the proposal in Paris, and has talked even more about it since his return to Washington.

In his carefully drafted Paris policy speech, he termed dual pricing "unsound" and said it "results in higher production costs throughout Europe. It cannot be squared with your pledges of mutual aid."

Furthermore, Hoffman and the ECA have a political problem as well as the British. Hopes for a substantial ECA appropriation next spring depend on making a showing to Congress of real progress toward European integration.

If, after making such an issue of it, Hoffman is unable to point to steps toward the elimination of dual pricing, he will be in an extremely embarassing position before Congress.

Killer Owl Mocks Justice

in Washington this year," Dr. Aldrich said.

In Washington's wharves and market places—perhaps even in the Court of Appeals building—the snowy owl will get plenty of his favorite food.

First, Dr. Aldrich says, he'll swoop down and grab his prey with "ice-pick-sharp" claws. Mice he swallows whole. Rats he has to rip into pieces first. Afterwards he spits up the bones.

He must have just finished a meal yesterday because as a fearless servant of the press looked on, the snowy owl chucked up a little bag of bones on the Court of Appeals roof. When last seen, the owl was winging toward the District Court.

It's all right for a visit, but for a permanent home, snowy owls don't take to Washington much. They never raise a family here.

"By April," says Dr. Aldrich, "some will have gone back home, some will have perished, and some will find their way into taxidermy shops."

While they don't look for trouble with humans, snowy owls like to be left alone and will scratch something fierce when they're bothered, Dr. Aldrich warns.

Beran Counsel Flees To Germany on Foot

Regensburg, Germany, Dec. 20 (AP).—Dr. Jaromir Psenicka, legal adviser to Catholic Archbishop Josef Beran of Czechoslovakia, has arrived in the American zone of Germany after an escape on foot.

Psenicka told authorities today he had learned his arrest by Communist police was imminent.

A dispatch from Prague said Psenicka apparently had been cut off for several months from giving legal services to Archbishop Beran, who has been in isolation in his palace since June.

French Budget Compromise Is Rejected

Paris, Dec. 20 (NYHT).—The conflict between Premier Georges Bidault's cabinet and the National Assembly over the 1950 budget reached a critical stage tonight when the Assembly's finance committee rejected conciliatory economies proposed by the government.

At issue was Finance Minister Maurice Petsche's project to shave 47 billion francs in expenses from the original government budget estimate of 2,275,000,000,000 francs ($6,500,000,000), a new record. The rebellious finance committee tossed the project back into the cabinet's lap.

At a late hour, it seemed Bidault's only available procedure was to demand a vote of confidence from the Assembly at Wednesday's session.

The shaky budget position of the 7-week-old government was evident in the Assembly, where deputies were debating the price of gasoline. One amendment embarrassing to the government was defeated by only 199 to 192.

There now remain only 11 days to adopt a budget before the new year, unless the government—assuming it still can meet the Assembly's terms—decides to set back the clock.

What the finance committee objected to principally in Petsche's conciliatory terms was his retention of new taxes. The committee also had hoped Petsche would cut 100 billion francs from the budget. Instead, he met the members only half way.

Myron Taylor May Resign Vatican Post

Rome, Dec. 20 (AP)—Pope Pius received Mr. and Mrs. Myron C. Taylor in private audience today as a report circulated that Taylor planned to resign his post as special representative of President Truman to the Vatican.

Taylor refused to confirm or deny the report. A Rome dispatch to the New York Times said the resignation was expected upon Taylor's return to the United States in a few weeks.

"All I can say is that it is a surprise to me," said the 75-year-old former chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corp.

The White House in Washington declined any comment.

A high Vatican source said he regarded the report as credible because Taylor has been in poor health. The envoy, who holds the rank of ambassador, is winding up his tenth year here.

Three Girls, 13 to 14, Raped in New Mexico

Hobbs, N. Mex., Dec. 20 (AP).—Three girls, 13 to 14 years old, were raped early today at their slumber party. A sex probationer was charged in a criminal complaint with forcing them to submit under threats to shoot them and stab them.

On clews provided by the girls, Homer C. Kelley, 27, of Hobbs, was arrested sleeping in a parked truck.

Kelley signed a statement admitting the attacks. Married, he is the father of a son 18 months old. His statement said he is under three years' probation in Wichita, Kans., for a sex offense.

Tito Raps Stalin on His Birthday

By Gaston Coblentz

Belgrade, Dec. 20—(NYHT) Premier Marshal Tito, whose Communist regime is not celebrating the seventieth birthday of Premier Stalin, issued an order to the Yugoslav army tonight denouncing the Soviet Union as a counter-revolutionary force and calling on his officers and men to strengthen their "fighting readiness" in his struggle against Russia for "the victory of truth in the international workers movement."

He ordered that 60 cannons fire 12 salvos in unison in Belgrade Wednesday on the eve of Yugoslav Army Day. In the five provincial capitals of Yugoslavia similar salvos are to be fired from 30 cannon.

Tito's order of the day said his army would never be defeated.

He made no mention of the Western Powers in the 300-word decree, assailing only the "hostile policy" of the Soviet Union and the people's democracies toward Belgrade.

Stalin's birthday, hailed throughout the Soviet bloc as an event of supreme importance, has been ignored in Yugoslavia. It has not even been mentioned in the Belgrade Communist press.

Stalin Offers Peace Prizes

bers of the Politburo flanking them, were displayed on government buildings.

Messages of greeting poured in from all over the world.

It was understood that all Western diplomatic missions—including those of the United States and Britain—had recommended that their governments dispatch congratulatory messages.

A typical greeting came from Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel:

"Please accept congratulations and best wishes, personal as well as from the government and people of Israel.

"May long life and good health be granted you, and success in all your undertakings for the economic, cultural and social progress of your country and international cooperation in the cause of peace."

Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky invited members of the foreign diplomatic corps to a formal reception tonight in Stalin's honor.

Two thirds or more space in all newspapers are being devoted to Stalin.

It was announced that the Bulgarian seaport of Varna had been renamed "Stalin."

U. S. Studies British Ban On Oil Import

By The Associated Press

The State Department said yesterday it will take up with British officials an order halting private American fuel oil imports and cutting gasoline imports by one third beginning January 1. Thirty to 60 million dollars in sales is involved.

The order will be discussed with Victor S. Butler, British Undersecretary for Overseas Petroleum, now in Washington for petroleum talks.

The State Department will seek to find out whether the move violates terms of the Anglo-American financial agreement of 1946. Under it, the British promised "fair and equal treatment" to American exports.

State Department officials are fully aware that Britain took this latest action as a way to save dollars. However, they said it may pave the way for freezing out American oil suppliers entirely from the British market.

Russell Brown, general counsel for the Independent Petroleum Association, said the inevitable result of the British action will be to increase domestic competition in the United States.

"The British action is a complete refutation of the agreement, implicit in the reciprocal trade agreement with the United Kingdom, not to set up such barriers," he said.

Spingarn School Bids Ordered by Commissioners

District Commissioners yesterday approved drawings and specifications for construction of Spingarn High School at 24th st. and Benning rd., ne., and ordered them advertised for bids.

The new school for Negroes will consist of 36 classrooms, 21 special rooms, a rifle range, auditorium, two gymnasiums and a cafeteria. It will accommodate about 1500 students.

Bids on the construction contract will be opened 35 days after they are advertised.

Hiss Gives Complete Denial of Red Links

New York, Dec. 20 (NYHT)—Alger Hiss, on trial for the second time for perjury today denied that he had ever been a Communist, fellow-traveler, sympathizer, or member of a Communist front, or that he had ever seen Whittaker Chambers since 1936.

Hiss testified for nearly five hours on direct examination, methodically going over the testimony given by Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and denying it point by point.

He agreed that he had known Chambers between the end of 1934 and the spring of 1936, that Mr. and Mrs. Chambers had stayed two or three nights in the Hiss household in 1935 and lived a few weeks in an apartment leased by Hiss, and that Chambers had used Hiss' Ford car on a number of occasions.

On almost every other detail—names, dates, places, events, conversations, and the nature and purpose of their relationship—Hiss denied what Mr. and Mrs. Chambers had said about him.

Hiss said he knew the accusing witness from 1934 to 1936 as George Crosley, free-lance writer, and gave him information that was available to the public. Chambers had testified that Hiss knew him as Carl, that both were Communists, and that Hiss gave him secret State Department documents for transmission to a Communist spy ring.

Hiss is under a two-count indictment charging that he perjured himself when he denied giving such documents to Chambers and again when he denied seeing Chambers after 1936.

One new piece of documentary evidence was introduced today tending to refute one of the corroborative details in the prosecution's case. This was a letter written by Hiss to his wife, Priscilla Hiss, postmarked December 30, 1936. The letter showed that Mrs. Hiss was at that time in Chappaqua, N. Y., with Timothy Hobson, her son by a previous marriage.

In the letter, Hiss referred to Timothy as having just come down with chicken pox, and urged Mrs. Hiss not to return to Washington until he had recovered.

The letter was introduced to show that Mr. and Mrs. Hiss did not give a New Year's Eve party in their home in Washington on December 31, 1936. Mrs. Chambers testified in this trial that she and Chambers attended such a party in the Hiss home on that date, and that Chambers became sick from drinking port.

She was definite about the date, although she had been uncertain when she testified at the first trial last June.

Records of a bank account held jointly by Mr. and Mrs. Hiss were used by Defense Attorney Claude B. Cross to cast doubt on the story told by Chambers of borrowing $400 from Hiss in November, 1936, to buy a new car.

Hiss testified, after consulting the records, that he had purchased a new car for himself in September, 1937, paying $375 of the purchase price in the form of a 12-month note, which involved him in interest and other extra charges totaling $58.44. On November 19, the records showed, he withdrew $400 cash from his account, reducing his balance to $14.69. Two weeks later he borrowed $300 from the bank to deposit in his account, involving himself in further interest charges.

Hiss said he spent the $400 cash on furniture and furnishings for his new home on Volta pl., which he was to occupy on December 29 of that year.

Cross also sought to discredit the testimony of Mrs. Hede Gumperz Massing, former wife of Gerhart Eisler, who had testified that she met Alger Hiss in 1935 when she was working for the Communist Party, and implied that he was also a party worker then.

Hiss testified that he had never met Mrs. Massing in 1935, and never talked to her until December 10, 1948, when she told him her story in the United States court house in the presence of his attorneys and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

On that occasion, Hiss said, she made no mention of "communism" and referred only to "world socialism" and "anti-fascism." He said she also made no mention then of having said to him in 1935: "We are both working for the same boss." When she testified 10 days ago, she said she remembered this sentence distinctly because it was "very important."

Hiss also said, as he had done in the first trial, that he had no recollection of how he disposed of the Woodstock typewriter on which some of the alleged spy papers were typed, and that he himself did not type.

Civil Rights' Effect Debated in Hearing

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), clashed yesterday with Dr. Dorothy Boulding Ferebee, president of the National Council of Negro Women, over whether civil rights legislation will improve the economic lot of Negroes and other minority groups.

Dr. Ferebee said passage of fair employment practice and antilynch legislation would "set free" minorities.

Sparkman replied that full employment, not FEPC, is the way to give "reasonable opportunity for work." He added that proposed antilynching laws would not prevent mob violence and race riots in Northern cities.

The exchange occurred at a hearing of Sparkman's Joint Congressional Economic Subcommittee which is studying problems of low income families.

Sparkman said that the Nation tries too often to solve its problems with "legalistic solutions which don't reach the real roots of the problem."

He said "economic maladjustment" is the real root of the low income problem, and it can be solved only by readjustment and not by "legalistic phrases."

Dr. Ferebee observed that laws could "go a long way in eliminating restrictions on our minorities."

"A lot of people thought prohibition was going to do a lot of good," Sparkman rejoined. "Enactment of a law does not necessarily solve a problem, and it can actually do a lot of harm. We often neglect to strike at the real roots."

Dr. Ferebee said every means should be used—law's as well as education. She urged passage of President Truman's entire civil rights program and suggested as a minimum measure a permanent commission on civil rights set up by Congress.

Dr. Dewey Anderson, executive director of the Public Affairs Institute, also urged enactment of an FEPC which he said would create openings for minorities, women and older workers. These, he said, are now "substantially excluded from the labor market."

He said one third of the people are "ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-housed," and recommended wider social security benefits and "adequate systems of medical care."

For Security

VFW Favors UMT Instead Of the Draft

The Veterans of Foreign Wars yesterday urged replacement of the draft act with compulsory military training of all youths.

It said this would save money and keep the Nation better prepared against possible Russian aggression.

Clyde A. Lewis, VFW commander in chief, said a peacetime draft is all right as a standby organization ready to rush men into uniform in event of war. But the draft is not an answer to "our long-range defense problem," he added.

"As long as the peacetime armed forces are restricted to a strength below the level which can easily be maintained by voluntary recruitment alone, Selective Service can contribute little to the essential task of building and maintaining an effective, trained reserve force."

Lewis called it a waste of money to keep the draft when Defense Secretary Louis Johnson is discharging draftees and closing military bases in the interest of economy.

"Rather we should take immediate steps to use those funds to set a realistic national security training program in its place," he said.

Maryland Reports 42 Traffic Deaths For November

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (AP)—Forty-two persons lost their lives on Maryland highways during November, second worst month for traffic fatalities in the current year, the State Traffic Safety Commission announced today.

The agency reported that 918 persons were injured in November mishaps. Fatalities, injuries, and property damage showed a substantial increase over the first 11 months of 1948.

A total of 400 persons died and 9416 were hurt during the 11 months of the current year, compared with 355 deaths and 8930 injuries in 1948.

Thirteen persons were killed in Baltimore City during November. Prince George's led the counties with five fatalities. Frederick County was next, with four.

Truck Crops In Area Yield Less Income

Commercial truck farmers in the vicinity of Washington got much less for their crops this year than they did last, although their harvests were much larger.

In 1948, the truck gardeners of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia netted $14,287,000 for their crops, the year-end summary by the Government Crop Reporting Board shows. This year the total was only $11,762,000. By States, the figures are:

	1948	1949
Maryland	$8,014,000	$6,342,000
Virginia	4,711,000	4,245,000
Delaware	1,562,000	1,175,000

The three States together harvested 203,000 tons for the commercial market this year, against only 185,900 tons a year ago.

Truck crops are not protected by Government crop supports, as are grains, cotton, tobacco and other products.

"Here's how to avoid the rush of Long Distance Christmas calls"

"So many folks want to call across the miles at Christmas that we can't take care of them all at once—even though thousands of us will be on the job during the Holidays.

"A lot of new circuits have been added. Every switchboard will be in service. But it just isn't possible to stretch the service enough to handle the flood of calls that comes on this one day of the year. There are sure to be delays.

"Here's a friendly tip, however. If you telephone your faraway friends and relatives before Christmas Eve or after Christmas Day, I can give you faster service."

Rowland Resigns As Sesqui Official

George M. Rowland, jr., director of design and exhibits for the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission, has resigned, it was announced yesterday by the commission's vice chairman, Carter Barron.

Rowland also has been holding his post as vice president of Gardner Displays, which has done much of the work for the forthcoming Freedom Fair. The commission said Rowland was resigning because of "pressure from his own business."

Rowland Thanked for Aid

Barron thanked Rowland for his help during the long period before Congress finally appropriated three million dollars to get the Sesqui under way. He said no successor will be named until after January 1.

The resignation followed a protest over the proposed handling of Federal Government exhibits. This came from the Exhibit Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington, of which Robert W. Straus is executive secretary.

Letter Caused Protest

Straus said his group last month received a letter from Rowland declaring the Sesqui was then "negotiating with Gardner Displays for the exclusive design of Federal exhibits, i.e., department agencies and independent agencies."

The local group then protested to the Justice Department, declaring that all Government business should be on a competitive bidding basis. Early this month, William A. Underhill, acting Assistant Attorney General, wrote Straus that Justice had discussed the matter with the Sesqui's executive director, Edward Boykin.

Standards of Design

"Mr. Boykin stated," Underhill wrote, "that the commission will prescribe certain design specifications and standards to which all exhibitors will be required to conform. Mr. Boykin assures us, however, that the various governmental departments and other exhibitors will have full authority to select their own contractors for the design and construction of their respective exhibits."

The local exhibit builders' group then called a meeting of Government information officers to explain the Justice Department action. It also has proposed to Boykin formation of a board of architects, exhibit designers and Government information officers to set standards and pass on Federal exhibits.

ings, designed in the shape of the letters U, S and A, actually will be eight separate buildings, since an open walk runs through the center of all three.

The several miles of corridors will twist and turn and go 'round in circles, too—as the expected 15 million cash customers at the fair work their way from one end to another. There will be from two to four side exits in each building, both as a fire precaution and for the weary.

In announcing the new layout, the commission said that since the days of the Albert Exposition in London (in 1851) exhibitors "have faced the problem of achieving prominence in a shoe-box or rectangular type of space which discriminates against the small space user and necessitates regulatory practices which reacted against the user of large space as well."

But in the Freedom Fair, the commission said, the buildings will "achieve the long-sought idea of a controlled-traffic-flow space pattern" which, among other things, "guarantees involuntary viewing of at least 75 percent of all exhibits." The new plan has been approved by Exhibitors Advisory Council.

The Freedom Fair will open next July 4 and run until November 22, close down for the winter and reopen on April 15, 1951, running to a final closing on November 22, 1951—a total of 363 days in two seasons.

1936. When he died in 1939, she inherited one million dollars. In 1944, Sylvia married the third Edward John Baron Stanley of Alderley, in New York. Lord Stanley obtained a divorce in London on June 15, 1948, charging desertion.

Gable, considered Hollywood's most eligible actor, has played the field in seeking feminine companionship, but has been cagy when gossip suggested marriage. This aloofness dates from 1942, when his wife, Carole Lombard, was killed in a Nevada airplane accident.

A few months after her death, Gable entered the Army as a private and requested combat duty. Ultimately he became a captain and received the Air Medal. He returned to Hollywood late in 1943.

Judge Upholds Search Warrant Law in Maryland

Towson, Md., Dec. 20 (AP).—Circuit Judge J. Howard Murray today upheld Maryland's 1939 search warrant law which had been under fire from defense attorneys in a Baltimore County bookmaking case.

The defense attorneys had contended the 1939 act was invalid because it did not appear on the statute books in the exact form in which it was passed by the Legislature.

Newell, Lennartson Appointed To Top Agriculture Posts

W. F. Callander, chairman of the United States Crop Reporting Board for nearly 25 years, will retire December 31, the Department of Agriculture announced yesterday.

S. R. Newell will succeed Callander as head of the Crop Reporting Board and as assistant chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Newell advances from the post of deputy administrator for marketing in the Production and Marketing Administration.

Replacing Newell will be Roy W. Lennartson, who has been an assistant director of PMA's poultry branch since 1946. Hermon I. Miller will succeed Lennartson.

Will Be Visiting Lecturer

Upon his retirement, Callander will become a visiting lecturer in applied statistics at the University of Florda's College of Agriculture.

Callander, reared on a Canadian dairy farm, rose from clerk to chairman of the Crop Reporting Board in his 45 years of Government service.

He came to Washington in 1904 as a typist in the Department of Commerce, A few months later he became secretary and general assistant to Dr. B. T. Galloway, chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry.

After a brief period as agricultural statistician for Ohio, Callander returned to Washington in 1922 as chief of the Division of Agricultural Statistics and chairman of the Crop Reporting Board.

He has been in charge of the Department of Agriculture's crop and livestock estimating work since that time except for three short periods.

Newell, who was born in Falls Church, Va., studied agriculture at the University of Maryland. Following his graduation in 1922, he was supervisor of agricultural training for the Veterans Bureau in a region which included Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and West Virginia.

Lennartson, who takes over the post vacated by Newell, has been with the Department of Agriculture since 1936, when he joined the staff of the Farm Credit Administration.

Arlington School Head To Be NEA Delegate

William A. Early, Arlington school superintendent, will represent the National Education Association at a meeting in New York, December 28, with the American Institute of Cooperation.

The AIC, representing farm cooperatives, plans a discussion of education for farm youth.

Early will attend a two-day conference with the American Rural Sociological Association, also as an NEA delegates, following the first meeting.

'Report on Israel' Tonight

Robert R. Nathan will discuss his "Report on Israel" tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the George Washington University Hillel House, 2129 F st. nw.

the Senate investigators he paid Maragon a total of $1218 for his promised services in behalf of the molasses company. Poland was an uncle of the company president.

Harold Ross, the company president, testified at the Senate hearing he handed Maragon $100 in New York when Maragon told him "he had piled up expenses and needed $100 fast."

Pearson told reporters the jury asked him whether he had ever said or written that Maragon received $50,000 in connection with some New York transaction. Pearson said he told the jury he had never said or written that but that he had given the panel the information he had.

William P. Rogers, counsel for the Senate committee, was another grand jury witness. He refused to discuss his testimony but it is known that he had informed the District Attorney's office he had information in addition to that which came before the Senate group.

Carmine Bellino, committee staff accountant, was another witness. He had testified at the Senate inquiry that Maragon reported income tax returns of only about $30,000 for a period during which Maragon's bank deposits totaled about $120,000. Bellino has also testified before the committee that after Maragon had declared under oath that he had no bank account outside of Washington, the committee discovered one in the National Bank of Commerce in San Antonio, Tex. Bellino said he repeated much the same testimony to the grand jury.

Gilbert Halasz, shorthand reporter who took Maragon's executive session testimony, testified, as did two agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who declined to say what they had told the grand jury.

It Was Town Hall Last Night...

The Washington Post

CHEVY CHASE VILLAGERS—The registered voters of the village of Chevy Chase, Md., listen to a speaker last night in the building which serves as town hall, library and post office. The villagers voted overwhelmingly to renew the lease on the building and expand the present facilities on the south corner of West Lenox st. and Connecticut ave.

Postoffice Is Approved

meeting in answer to the demands of eight objectors.

He said the board had completed the most advantageous deal possible; a new lease for 10 years at $8025 per year with the village furnishing an additional 1200 square feet of space.

Providing the new space would cost an estimated $18,000, he said.

Cheers Started

Mrs. Charles G. Moore, 5 W. Lenox st., who lives across from the post office, urged quick indorsement of the board action, and the cheers started.

Former board member Frederick Stohlman, of 101 Grafton st., quickly moved that the renewal of the lease be ratified. Voters started shouting for the vote before the opposition had expressed itself.

Finally, Mrs. A. F. McMillan of 6 W. Kirke st. said she had complained of noise to the post office one morning.

"The man answering the phone said people were making so much noise he couldn't hear me, and that was 5:30 in the morning," she said.

Serving D. C. Residents

Her husband then rose and said the present post office was now serving more than 20,000 District residents and should not be expanded at Chevy Chase's expense.

"That would be commercialization of a fine residential neighborhood."

Everett B. Wilson, jr., 4 Laurel pkwy., whose letter of objection asking for the special meeting had already been read to the crowd, rose and quieted the voters for the first and last time of the evening.

Wilson said he objected to further commercialization of the present "noisy" facilities. He said the plan had never been approved by the voters or explained to them properly.

Not Commercial

C. Thomas Clagett, 101 E. Melrose st., told the meeting the post office was not a commercial business.

"I ought to know a commercial business—I'm in one," he said, "the race track business." Later he said he was associated with Laurel Raceway.

Throughout the speeches, latecomers, pammed into the back of the library, shouted for a vote.

Last speaker of the evening was Walter C. Clephane, 6000 Connecticut ave., who has practiced law in Washington for 61 years.

"Thirty years ago," he said, "when they voted about expanding the post office, people shouted about noises and trucks and whisky bottles. I have lived here for more than 40 years and I live closer to the post office than anyone else, and I'm still waiting for those noises."

He said he had found two whisky bottles—both empty.

Fewer than 25 persons voted against the proposal. The proponents were asked to sign their names on a form, which presiding officer, John T. Vance, 16 W. Irving st., said "may prove the most valuable weapon we have, perhaps even in a court of law."

Stangs Mark Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stang, life-long residents of Montgomery County, were married 50 years ago yesterday.

The Stangs, who live at 26 Bladensburg rd., Kensington, Md., celebrated their golden anniversary with a dinner party at the home of their daughter, Mrs. A. J. Schram, 4932 Brandywine st. nw.

Stang, 72, a retired builder and contractor, met the former Bertha Beatrice Ward at a church service in his home town, Dawsonville, in the summer of 1898.

They were married 18 months later. Today they have nine children, 18 grandchildren, and 11 great-grandchildren, most of them residents of Montgomery County. Mrs. Stang is 69.

Besides Mrs. Schram, their children are Mrs. Josephine Morningstar, Kensington; Mrs. Nora Morningstar, Gaithersburg; William C. Stang and Martin Stang, both of Rockville; George T. Stang, Kensington; James Stang, 1910 Newton st. ne.; Arthur Stang, Gaithersburg, and Mrs. Ella Harrison, Lansdowne Pa.

Here's holiday refreshment for your Buick!

TIME's coming when the air is full of good spirits, and we all feel pretty chipper—but what about that faithful Buick of yours?

Wet winter driving is roughest on cars—and even though it still handles like a sweetheart, your Buick may have slipped a notch or so in performance, or gradually acquired a squeak you haven't been aware of.

So do this...

Bring it to us for one of our winter tune-ups, plus a special winter LUBRICARE treatment. (This Lubricare is something you and your Buick should know about—it's an over-all trouble-check, plus a wonderfully thorough lubrication routine!) Between these two refreshing treatments, you'll have all your Buick's glad and breezy power back—plenty of Fireball zoomph to pull you out of any traffic fuss. You'll have a quiet-riding body and chassis that make every mile a glad glide. And you'll have top mileage efficiency, with a motor that starts on the coldest morning as quick as a scared alarm clock!

Why put it off? Our service is quick and expert, our prices lower than you'd think. The driving pleasure you get is immense. Phone us now and make a holi-date for bringing your Buick's spirits up to those of the season!

Montgomery Extends Area Of Quarantine

Montgomery County's quarantine area was extended yesterday by the County Council to include Kensington, Viers Mill Village and part of Bethesda.

Last November 15, the greater part of Silver Spring and Takoma Park was placed under quarantine following the reported bitings of nine children in the Four Corners section by rabid dogs.

Subsequently another rabid dog was discovered Thanksgiving Day in Kensington. There have been no reports of bitings by this dog.

The quarantine ordinance requires dog owners to keep pets "securely confined or on a leash at all times." Dogs found running loose during the period of quarantine will be taken to the county animal shelter.

The quarantine in the new area will remain in effect until March 14, 1950, a month later than in the old. The new area is bounded by East-West hwy. on the south, Old Georgetown rd. on the west, Montrose rd. to Viers Mill rd. and thence across open country in a straight line to Brookeville rd. (Georgia ave. extended), where it crosses Watery Branch at Aspen on the north, and Brookeville rd. and Georgia ave. on the east.

Meanwhile, an expected test case of the quarantine failed to materialize yesterday in Silver Spring Police Court when a Silver Spring man forfeited $7.50 collateral on a violation charge.

The man, James W. Sweeney, of 734 Thayer ave., a credit investigator, was charged after a newsboy was bitten by his dog which was running loose within a fenced-in yard.

County Seek 249 GI Housing Units in Transfer

The Montgomery County Council yesterday asked the Public Housing Administration to transfer ownership of 249 veteran's housing units, including 50 trailers, to the county.

The action was requested at last week's meeting by E. Brooke Lee, chairman of the County Housing Authority. He said the Government agency had agreed verbally to the proposal and that if no steps were taken to retain the units they would be removed by PHA after January 1, 1951.

The council also announced it would increase maximum amounts allocated for improvements at five schools in the budget to be adopted next June. Increases would be: Poolesville, from $61,500 to $82,500; Sherwood, $120,000 to $132,000; Bradley, $165,000 to $192,000; Bethesda-Chevy Chase High, $142,000 to $157,000, and Gaithersburg, $570,000 to $670,000.

Raiders Get 50-Gallon Still In Arlington

A 50-gallon still and 232 gallons of homemade corn liquor were uncovered yesterday by Arlington police in a raid on a bungalow at 3521 S. 24th st., Arlington.

Arrested in the raid, about 12:30 p. m., was Mrs. Julia Francis Kenner, 28, who was charged with illegal possession of a still and possession of illegal whisky. She was released in $1000 bond.

It was the first such raid in Arlington in eight years, police said. William Daniel Kenner, husband of Julia Kenner, was arrested at the same address in August, 1941, according to police. He received a $100 fine and 90 days in jail for "manufacturing ardent spirits" at that time.

Detective Russell Runyon, George Coppage and Dudley Rector formed the raiding party yesterday. They said corn mash was stored in 55-gallon drums in the attic.

Police said they were aware the illegal whisky had been circulating in the county for some time, some of it selling for $7 a gallon, they said.

2 Men Found Guilty in Gaming Cases

Two employes of a Silver Spring valet shop were convicted of gambling offenses yesterday in Silver Spring Police Court.

Found guilty by Magistrate William B. Wheeler were Edmond McNeil, 36, a shoeshine boy of 626 Park rd. nw., and Samuel D. Waters, 32, a shoemaker who gave the business establishment at 953 Bonifant st., Silver Spring, as his address when arrested.

Both were charged with playing a game of chance for money.

McNeil was fined $250 or 90 days in jail and Waters, $150 or 60 days. Both appealed the convictions through their attorney, Einar B. Christensen, and were released under $500 bond for Circuit Court hearings.

Pvt. Howard Musgrove of the Montgomery County police, testified he placed several numbers bets with the pair.

McNeil and Waters were arrested November 8 in a county-wide pickup conducted by the entire county detective bureau which netted eight gambling suspects.

In pronouncing sentence, Magistrate Wheeler told the pair, "you are only small men, but because of men like you the men higher up are able to carry on a million-dollar racket."

District Youth Gets 20 Years in Holdup

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 20 (AP). Robert Edward Estep, 18, of Washington, D. C., leader of a band of teen-agers who held up a gasoline station near here on September 30, was sentenced to 20 years in the State Prison here today.

Estep pleaded guilty to an armed robbery charge before Judge Arlos J. Harbert in Criminal Court. The other four, two boys and two girls, pleaded guilty to robbery charges without violence before Judge Harbert last week and three were sentenced to five-year terms.

Mr. President—

It is now 371 days since the National Security Resources Board has had a chairman.

Forced Listening

The Public Utilities Commission made a whopping assumption, it seems to us, in asserting that "through the creation of better will among passengers" transit radio "tends to improve the conditions under which the public rides." Even an overdose of the Christmas spirit does not warrant such a generous gilding of the lily. Probably there are a great many persons, as most of the samplings show, who enjoy transit radio or do not actively object to it. But among those who resent being made a captive audience for commercials the programs tend to create very bad will indeed. We suggest, by way of poetic justice, that the salesmen for this new boon agree to a special program for their own offices consisting of a steady diet of "Happy Days Are Here Again," punctuated at five-minute intervals by plugs for the Acme Casket & Steamshovel Co.

Denfeld's Refusal

There is a distinct element of pouting in Admiral Denfeld's letter to Secretary Matthews declining command of naval forces in the Eastern Atlantic. The admiral creates a straw man in implying that his "loyalty to the best interests of this Nation" might be questioned. It was his judgment on one specific point, and not his basic loyalty, that was cast in doubt by the events that led to his ouster as Chief of Naval Operations. No one would have made an issue of his respect for authority in the substitute post offered him unless he himself might have chosen to make it.

Unquestionably Admiral Denfeld was under a strong temptation to hit back at Secretary Matthews. He would have been in a stronger position, however, if he had resisted the impulse. The country has a right to expect that the men in whom it has placed great trust will be above picayunishness. Admiral Denfeld has a fine record, and he would be doing a disservice to it, the Navy and the people if he were to become infatuated with the role of dissident or martyr. The way is still open for him to justify the esteem in which he is held by employing his influence to heal the Navy's wounds.

The other face of the same coin is the controversy involving the reported removal of Capt. Arleigh Burke from a promotion list approved by a Navy selection board. Captain Burke was head of the so-called "Operation 23"—the Organizational Research and Policy Division in the Office of Chief of Naval Operations—but there is no indication that he did other than his assigned job. Whether Captain Burke should be promoted at this time is something that should be decided wholly on merit. If he has in fact been taken off the list, the reasons may be quite legitimate. But what is needed is assurance that the Navy promotion system is not being used as a vehicle for punishment in violation of Secretary Johnson's explicit promise that there would be no reprisals for the Navy "rebellion." Such misuse of a system that should be wholly nonpolitical would reopen the Navy feud just as surely as would any spite campaign by Admiral Denfeld.

Grand Teton Gift

If the 33,562 acres of land in the Jackson Hole area, which John D. Rockefeller, jr., has given to the Government, is to make possible a proper development of the magnificent Grand Teton National Park, the whole country will have reason to be thankful. The Teton Mountains and their surrounding lake country are among the finest unspoiled natural scenery on this continent. Yet they are comparatively unknown because of the meager accommodations that have been available there. This transfer of land should round out Teton Park as well as the adjacent Jackson Hole National Monument, with its admirable wildlife park, and make them one of our most popular summer recreation areas.

The controversy that long prevented the addition of this land to the Grand Teton National Park and Jackson Hole National Monument centered in the consequent loss of tax revenue to Teton County. The Administration has recognized the equity of reimbursing the county for this loss, although Congress has not yet passed a bill for that purpose. When it attempts to do so, it will necessarily be confronted by a vast number of other cases in which cities and counties, including the District of Columbia, have suffered acute losses of revenue because the Government has removed large areas of land from their tax rolls. This problem will doubtless have to be atttacked with the object of establishing a national policy for relief of land-hungry local governments. It is not unreasonable to suppose, however, that the development of this marvelous scenic area will bring to Teton County in future years many times the revenue that it has lost from the removal of grazing land from its tax rolls.

Stalin At Seventy

Today Joseph Stalin is 70 years old. As far as Russia is concerned the celebration of this event will completely overshadow the other birthday anniversary that falls early next week. Indeed, if Christmas is celebrated at all in Russia it will be according to the Julian calendar, still in use among the Orthodox churches, which makes it fall 13 days later than ours. Stalin's birthday, however, is kept according to the Gregorian calendar, which was adopted by the Soviet Union soon after the Bolshevik revolution. Whether December 21 is really the accurate date under this calendar is not clear; most reference works, we notice, prefer to indicate only the year of his birth, which was 1879. But today is certainly the official date, given by Stalin himself. We dare say that our astrologically minded readers have made the most of the fact that it coincides with the winter solstice, which over the greater part of Russia is an even darker day than it is hereabouts.

It is not unlikely that the total volume of formalized adulation bestowed upon the dictator of Soviet Russia will equal, if it does not surpass, the homage given to the Babe of Bethlehem. Much of it, of course, will be paid purely for the reason that it would be dangerous to withhold it, but some of it will be sincere. Since communism is theoretically atheistical, the word "divine" is rarely included in the liturgy of Stalin worship, but to an ancient Roman it would certainly seem that Stalin has been invested by his followers with many of the attributes of divinity, notably omniscience and perfection. Icons or portraits of Stalin are by all accounts more numerous and ubiquitous in Russia than were ever the busts of the Divus Caesar Augustus throughout the empire. Moreover, where the Emperor was at best one god among many, Stalin need share the Communist pantheon only with Marx, Engels, and Lenin, who are in fact gradually being relegated to the status of minor divinities.

But though it may please Stalin to be worshiped in a manner appropriate only to divinities, he probably does not pretend even to himself that he is immortal. None of the public adulation can conceal the fact that he is getting old. And all the available evidence indicates that he has been ailing for some years. This does not necessarily mean that he is near death—after all Georgians like most other mountain folk are somewhat celebrated for longevity; but it does mean that sooner or later he must relax the iron grip that he has kept upon the levers of the vast apparatus that controls the lives of hundreds of millions. What will happen when he does is something that probably no more than a half dozen persons are capable of predicting. But the general belief nowadays is that the question of the succession has already been settled; and that whatever the choice has been it will make little difference either in the character of the Soviet state or in the relation of Russia to the rest of the world.

Veterans' Preference

The mild and modest recommendations of the Hoover Commission respecting veterans' preference in the civil service have elicited an outraged bellow from Brig. Gen. John Thomas Taylor, veteran spokesman for the American Legion on Capitol Hill. "If the Hoover Commission proposals were to be approved," he declared, "veterans' preference would go out the window." It does not seem to us that such an eventuality would be entirely unfortunate from the point of view of the public interest. It is by no means, however, an eventuality sought by or likely to follow from the Hoover Commission's recommendations.

"Preference for veterans in the filling of Federal jobs is an integral part of our civil-service system," the commission report observes. "Too much reliance, however, has been placed upon a rigid system to increase the number of veterans in Federal positions. As a result, there are not as many veterans serving in Federal jobs as might otherwise be the case and in many instances veterans are not serving in the types of jobs for which they are best qualified . . . No nonveteran should be selected for a position unless adequate reasons are given for failing to appoint any veterans in the category in question."

It does not appear from this that the Hoover Commission aimed at anything more than to make the veterans' preference system somewhat more flexible than it is at present. The preference accorded now is an absolute one if the point advantage accorded a veteran brings him to the top of a list. It operates at once to frustrate administrators in picking the best qualified applicant for a particular post and sometimes to put the veteran in a place for which he is very ill-suited. Under the Hoover Commission proposals, "adequate reasons" would have to be given for choosing a nonveteran. This is simply a recognition of what is indisputable—that in some situations adequate reasons do exist for such a choice. Neither the veterans nor the Government benefits from disregarding such reasons.

Standardized Arms

Although the arms standardization program with Britain and Canada has just been announced, in a sense it is not a new program at all. One of the great lessons of the war was the inanity of completely different types of equipment among the fighting allies. An effort to promote uniformity along certain lines has been going on quietly since that time. Probably the most meaningful single advance was the seemingly insignificant agreement a year or so ago to begin standardization of screw threads.

Obviously if equipment can be made interchangeable between the three countries the total military strength will be greatly increased, for it will represent a combined force rather than three separate entities. The same principle holds in the pooling of scientific knowledge which is the inevitable counterpart of arms standardization. This is in effect the extension to the working level of the integration that already has taken place in defense planning. Eventually the standardization program ought to encompass all the Atlantic Pact countries. But it is wholly logical that the first interchange should be between three nations so closely knit by kinship and devotion to free institutions.

Standardization, of course, does not imply that each country will have exactly the same equipment. Rather, it means that the arms programs of the three countries will be complementary—that there will be a sort of division of labor. It means that American ammunition and parts will fit British guns, and vice versa. The full realization of such plans will of necessity require several years, and probably the most significant work must be done in industry through such agencies as the Munitions Board. Meanwhile, however, a great deal can be accomplished in allied fields through the adoption of uniform training techniques, telephone and parts terminology and the like.

The fact that this synchronization is going ahead in conventional armaments points up the even greater necessity for atomic agreement with Britain and Canada. Here is a field in which the whole is most certainly greater than the sum of the parts. Britain and Canada were full partners with the United States during the war, and their scientists made important contributions to the final product. Each country could expect to gain by a truly combined atomic program not only in defense, but also in the neglected area of nonmilitary applications of atomic energy. Congressional assent will be necessary, but nothing less than full exchange of atomic information can round out the standardization so wisely begun.

Condemnation Of Slums

The painful process of trying to get rid of slums by condemnation is given pointed emphasis in the opinion handed down last week by Judge Wilbur K. Miller for the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. Eleven insanitary houses owned by Minnie Keyes in the Southwest section of the city were condemned as a menace to the health and lives of the occupants back in 1944. There followed a long period of sparring in which some repairs were apparently made, the dwellings were again condemned, the case was taken into court several times, and the last word has now been spoken by the Court of Appeals.

Under our carefully guarded constitutional system, which guarantees that persons shall not be deprived of property without due process of law, such delays seem unavoidable in controversial cases. It is heartening that the end result is the condemnation of dwellings that are not fit for human habitation. Judge McGuire, after personally inspecting the premises when the trial was held in his court and hearing extensive evidence, concluded that the condemnation was "entirely justified." The Court of Appeals found no weakness in the law. The statute creating the Board for the Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings is not wanting in definite standards to guide the board and to inform property owners of conditions which would lead to condemnation. In other words, the police power was properly exercised and the owners were not deprived of their property without due process of law.

This forthright and clear-cut opinion should stimulate other owners of wretched quarters endangering the lives and health of their occupants to finance the necessary repairs or demolish the buildings. In similar circumstances apparently owners can only waste their money fighting the inevitable. At the same time it will be everywhere recognized that this slow, piecemeal process will never rid Washington of its large areas of slums and hidden residential alleys. Condemnations of this sort serve only to get tenants out of the very worst housing and to point up the need for more low-rent dwellings that meet the standards of health and decency.

It is important, of course, to enforce the law against conditions that menace the community. As a practical matter, however, the effect of destroying even the most insanitary hovels is to drive their occupants into other slum dwellings, thus accentuating the present critical overcrowding. In other words, condemnation is only a first step toward any real solution. The key to the problem, as the Congress recognized in its last session, is to make it possible for low-income families to escape from this sort of environment and not merely to shift from one disease-breeding shack to another.

Forced Listening

Mr. I. T. S. (letter published December 19) is not the only advertising man who objects to the forced-listening aspect of transit radio. Bob Foreman, in his column, "Listening and Looking," in the November issue of Advertising Agency, has this to say:

"The advertising business, in a unique position to plague mankind, has been to my knowledge fairly reluctant and quite abstemious in taking advantage of this ability. That is, until recently. As this is being written, my journeys through Grand Central Station to and from the salt mines where I am employed have been made more irritating, thanks to a gimmick titled: "Terminal Broadcasting." I assume that, unless the public comes off the trains shouldering loaded riot guns, this form of auditory scurvy will contaminate other railroad terminals throughout these United States. I hear that something similar is being done right now in bus terminals.

"As veneer to this unwholesome operation, sweet music-without-vocals is played a la Muzak. These strains are interrupted frequently by a silver-toned announcer who, for 10 seconds, extols the virtues of certain beverages and watches, the only announcements I have caught so far. Of course, the watch company gives the time of day, thus making its announcement a pseudo-public service (more pseudo than service, since there is a 3-foot-high clock smack in the middle of the terminal).

"My bellyache, if you were not yet aware of any rancor, is that this is the type of advertising that hurts all advertising. The poor commuter and the other travelers can't get away from the plugs. On radio, as I've maintained for many sparkling picas in past columns, the listener gets a lot more than he gives—his attention for a mere 10 percent of the program time. In magazines and newspapers the reader can look or look away from the advertisements.

"In Grand Central Station, to the contrary, the wayward traveler who has paid his hard-earned dough for transportation is subjected to an annoyance from which someone else profits and from which he can't escape. Reduce the train fares by the amount of take derived by this infernal machine or take it out, say I! Does anyone know where I can get a case of 12-gauge shotgun shells?"

Freedom Fair

The plans and perspectives for the Washington Sesquicentennial are out for all to see—abortive children of bumbling Government bureaucracy. The site, an unusually expansive one for a city, was found near the Anacostia River. With plenty of good soil, hearty trees and refreshing water.

But we see "U S A" boldly searing the earth parallel to the water's edge. On closer inspection, the letters reveal themselves as buildings of some kind. At the foot of the "A" is a little debris, looking like an afterthought, which composes the other "buildings" of the fair. There are three derby hats sitting in the tree tops propped up by clutching arms. The clutching arms have hands, too. Square buildings with the corners sliced out in quarter-circles.

A bug, sticking one foot in the water, proves to be another structure. The structures form excrescences around a court which has a circular platter set down in the middle. Arms radiating from the platter eventuate at the front doors of the derby hats and the bug. The platter, taking its cue from the Capitol, sits astride wagon-spoke avenues. Toothpicks — sorry, flagpoles—line the avenues.

From even the most unenlightened architectural viewpoints the "Freedom Fair" is insensible planning. What happened to the automobile? There is no logic in the arrangement of the structures, no unity in their conception, and no sense in their eclecticism! "Freedom Fair" looks almost as inspiring as the housing developments all around the fringes of Washington, all as alike as the squares on a checkerboard.

When the "Freedom Fair" was defined, everything was left out except the dollar sign, a pencil, and a piece of dirty paper. Imagination was hanged by the neck until dead; freedom there in name only. Beauty was thrown into the Anacostia River, drowned. Earth, sky and vegetation stood helplessly by to be mutilated and reduced to slavery. Is this democracy's gratitude?

What integrity and imagination and truth could have done with the "Freedom Fair!" They could have woven the water and the soil and the structures into one song! They would have turned their heads toward the future, instead of mocking a dead past. They could have made the Fair echo the individualism that true democracy allows each man.

Diplomats' Cars

There are two articles in your December 16 paper about diplomatic traffic violations.

I suggest that if you want to do something about it you keep a box score on each embassy on traffic violations. If you do this the police will then take the trouble to make out the tickets and I predict that the problem will promptly become a very minor one.

Jerusalem

The desire of the Jews to make Jerusalem again the capital of the state of Israel is quite natural. But it is not easy to understand why Israel should oppose the internationalization of Jerusalem, a city sacred to Christians, Jews and Moslems alike. The answer, however, is painfully simple and clear: the Israelis have made up their mind to conquer the whole of Palestine and oust the Arabs east of the Jordan Valley.

They know that the line of demarcation between themselves and the Arabs in Jerusalem is utterly precarious and bound to produce constant unpleasant incidents and fighting. That either the Jews and the Christians should be allowed within the walls of Jerusalem only by the sufferance of the Arabs, even under United Nations supervision, is bound to be intolerable.

This situation is so preposterous and dangerous that the United Nations must either adopt heroic measures for the internationalization of Jerusalem or abandon Palestine to more warfare and chaos, which may well unsettle the whole Middle East for many years to come.

Tobin's Inconsistency

It is infuriating to any taxpayer who has read the first article in the December issue of the Reader's Digest and/or the first article in the December 10 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, to read in your issue of December 14 Secretary of Labor Tobin's second appeal in a week for liberalization of the unemployment compensation laws so as to permit bigger and better checks, easier to get and to be continued over a longer period.

Last week at the Shoreham Hotel I heard Tobin sing quite a different song. At that time—the First National Conference of the Citizens' Committee for the Hoover Report—Mr. Tobin was all for Economy with a big "E." I wonder how dumb he thinks the American taxpayer is.

Amnesty For Conscientious Objectors

At the Christmas season two years ago, President Truman granted individual pardons to 1523 conscientious objectors. This actually affected less than one quarter of the COs denied civil rights.

While it is true that of the 15,000 men convicted of wartime draft violation there were many whose offense resulted from ignorance or carelessness, and that there were some cases of draft evasion, most were objectors on religious, moral, or political grounds. They included Quakers, religious COs of Catholic and Jewish faith, and those from almost every Protestant body and sect. Honest conviction of the futility and inhumanity of modern war, cost what it might to them personally, led these men to action for which they paid dearly.

They were sentenced to prison terms averaging three years each, a term longer than the average imposed by the Federal courts on forgers, counterfeiters, or white slavers. Many have been imprisoned more than once, but even the end of a prison term does not bring an end to the punishment. Their violation for conscience sake of the Selective Service Act has made them felons, with the result that they are deprived by most States of their right to vote, to hold office, or to enter many of the professions.

Except the President declare complete amnesty for them, these men will continue as second-class citizens, deprived of civil rights and with serious economic handicaps. However much any American citizen may differ with these men in their views, surely no one who cherishes the democratic tradition of freedom of conscience and freedom of religious expression will wish to prolong this type of persecution.

There is adequate precedent for such an amnesty. In 1933 President Roosevelt issued a Christmas amnesty to all World War I violators. In both Germany and Japan, Christmas amnesties have been granted by the United States authorities to millions of political prisoners.

In this serious hour, when freedom and democracy and loyalties are being tested, we dare not continue a vindictive policy which robs conscientious citizens of their right to earn a living, and the nation of the ability and participation in national life which intelligent, informed, and above all conscientious men restored to their rightful place could give.

We call upon the President of the United States to demonstrate his faith in civil rights by a declaration of amnesty for all conscientious objectors.

Mental Health And Politics

By Malvina Lindsay

Children's Outlook

A WARNING so frequent it has become almost bromidic—that too many of today's children are destined to become mental patients—recently became a housetop shouting when voiced at a congressional committee hearing. It was even threatened with becoming a bone of politics.

There are three forms of response to this warning. One is to take umbrage and deny it. One is to say "too bad" and forget it. The third is to try to do something about it.

Happily, a few people, though not enough, are taking the last course. This number may increase since the Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth, to be held next December, will emphasize the mental and emotional needs of American children. Widespread studies for this are under way, as was reported to the planning committee at a meeting in Washington last week. And popular interest in the conference is tremendous. At least 600 national organizations working for children's welfare have asked to participate.

Meanwhile the emotionally disturbed child, a real problem in this postwar era and a threat to the taxpayers of tomorrow, still faces the danger of being dragged into a political fight over the "welfare state." Even White House child conferences of the past as well as relief funds for the world's needy children have been caught in political crossfire.

HOWEVER, it will be hard to saddle the emotionally upset children on any special economic or political group. The capitalist as well as the common man has maladjusted children. In fact recent trends in some juvenile courts indicate he may have relatively more. The kind of parents and teachers a child has does far more to influence his mental health than the kind of house he lives in.

It is true the well-to-do can pay for special help for the problem child. But often the rich are as unalert to such situations as are the poor, and as emotionally incapable of dealing with them. That is one reason the need is so great for teachers who are sensitive to children's emotional handicaps and trained to deal with them.

One State where legislators once pooh-poohed "this newfangled nonsense" about children's mental health had a dramatic awakening when a girl adolescent killed her father and boy friend in an argument. Now this State has a system of child guidance clinics in connection with its public schools.

Time and again health authorities remind the public more than half the hospital beds of the country are filled with mental patients; that this proportion is likely to increase as the population gets older and more prone to mental illness; that about 97 percent of all mental patients are in public institutions at the taxpayers' expense; that a more economical way of meeting the situation would be to get hold early of emotionally disturbed children and set them on the road to healthy personalities.

THE EARLY approach is expected to be emphasized in the studies presented at the White House conference. This brings up the need of better trained parents, since nursery schools and even kindergartens do not function in many areas.

President Truman gave a good nonprofessional recipe for rearing the young when he told the committee planning the White House conference that what a child needed was one good mother and three good teachers for the first three grades of school. Professionals emphasize also the great need for basic research in child development.

Even though politics, bigotry, prejudice and good-old-days-phobia handicap efforts to build mental health, the growing interest in it cannot be held back. Recently Miss Katharine Lenroot, head of the Children's Bureau, said the two great trends for the future that she saw in her field were concern for the child's mental health, and citizen participation in children's programs.

Also it is significant to remember that concern for mental health is another of the long range advantages democratic peoples have over dictatorships—which emphasize the physical and disciplinary nature of child welfare. Those who oppose legislation for mental health find themselves with strange bedfellows. For when the $942,000 program for improvement of the world's mental health was adopted by the program committee of the World Health Organization, it was vigorously opposed by physicians of the Soviet satellite nations.

"Sugar Daddy" Santa

In your issue of December you quote the Rev. John S. Martin as saying, in the latest Catholic Review, that Santa has become a sugar daddy. "Children are to be good or they won't get paid with presents—a fine specimen of thoroughly un-Christian morality." This will be news to Father Martin's own church, which teaches that people are to be good or they won't get to heaven and people are to avoid being bad or they'll be punished with hell-fire.

Power Commission

By Marquis Childs

Private Sites And Campaign Issues

The Federal Power Commission is going to have to make a decision shortly after the first of the year that is bound to get snarled up in the politics of 1950. Directly involved is the Administration's favorite issue in the West—public power.

Childs

By a unanimous decision, including the vote of President Truman's good friend, Mon Wallgren, the Power Commission awarded to the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. a key power site in California's Central Valley. This is the Helms Creek and North Fork site in the Kings River Basin which, according to P. G. & E. estimates filed with the commission, will cost $60,310,000 to develop.

This development by P. C. & E. with its dominating position on the West Coast, will cut directly across the irrigation-power development of the Bureau of Reclamation of the Department of the Interior in California's great Central Valley. Vast sums have already been spent by the bureau and many more millions are to go into the project.

That is why the Department of Interior has filed an urgent application for a hearing by the Power Commission. The application lists 62 specific objections to the commission order.

The department's belief, as expressed in the application, is that the commission was not aware of the significance of its decision in relation to the far-flung Central Valley project and the stake of the Government in it. Reconsideration will convince the commissioners that they should reverse themselves.

THE DEPARTMENT also has filed a petition asking that the Bureau of Reclamation be granted the right formally to intervene in the case. Although the bureau participated in the proceedings leading up to the decision, no request was made for intervention and this, according to FPC officials, is likely to prejudice the commission against the department.

The Senate last summer refused to confirm Leland Olds, who was nominated by President Truman for a third term on the commission. He was attacked by Senator Robert Kerr of Oklahoma and Senator Edwin Johnson of Colorado for radical statements made in writing he had done more than 20 years ago.

Thoroughly familiar with the intricacies of commission procedure, Olds frequently took the lead in three-to-two decisions favoring public power development. He was often joined by Commissioner Thomas C. Buchanan, a Truman appointee whose nomination was long held up by the Senate, and by veteran Commissioner Claude L. Draper, a Republican named to the FPC by Herbert Hoover in 1930.

Truman did everything in his power to get Olds confirmed, but in vain. When the Senate turned down his first choice, he sent up Wallgren's name for the vacancy. Rejected previously by the Senate for the post of chairman of the National Security Resources Board on the ground that he did not have sufficient experience to fill that important office, Wallgren was quickly confirmed for the commission job.

HE HAS had only a limited experience, as Governor of the State of Washington, with power development. The pervasive private power lobby here in the Capital will certainly woo the genial Wallgren, who was listed in a Senate investigation two years ago as a recipient of favors from Howard Hughes, the airplane manufacturer.

Whether the commission rejects Interior's plea for another hearing or grants it, the decision is bound to get into politics. Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas is going to challenge Senator Sheridan Downey in California's Democratic primary next June. It will be one of the warmest and most picturesque races in the country.

Mrs. Douglas will accuse Downey of trying to sabotage public power and irrigation in California because of his long and bitter campaign against Bureau of Reclamation officials over their conduct of the Central Valley project. On the other hand, Downey can point to the fact that he was one of the handful of Senators voting to confirm Olds.

Attention will increasingly concentrate on the commission as the private power companies and their powerful lobby seek to reverse the trend of recent years. The commission soon will be faced by another ticklish decision, this time in North Carolina, where the Virginia Electric & Power Co. is seeking to build a dam and hydroelectric plant at Roanoke Rapids on the Roanoke River. This site is part of an area which Congress has approved for development by the Army Engineers, although no money has yet been made available. Hearings have been held and a trial examiner's report must be filed before the commission decides.

At all of those whistle stops in '48 President Truman boomed public power. But the Power Commission can by its decisions cut directly across the Truman program.

Race Curbs Hit at Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 20 (AP).—The Harvard University student council voted 7-6 last night to ban discrimination for "color, race or nationality" in the membership of all college organizations.

The council also voted to ask the university to protest against the so-called loyalty oath required by the Navy from candidates for naval reserve officers' training.

Proponents of the anti-discrimination measure said adoption would make it possible to put it into the charters of student organizations.

Opponents of the loyalty oath objected to it on the ground that it required students to report "others" suspected of being members of subversive organizations.

This provision, they said, would encourage "stool pigeons" and victimize many who were innocent.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Stalin and Mao

BEHIND all the speculation over the much-publicized visit of Communist leader Mao Tse-tung to Moscow, there is one hard fact which can be reported on the highest authority. This is that the Chinese Communist government, in a note delivered to the Kremlin before Mao Tse-tung's arrival in Moscow, has politely demanded control of the City of Dairen.

Dairen is the important Manchurian port which the Soviets, contrary to the Yalta agreement, have occupied ever since the end of the war. Manchuria, where the Soviet Union has re established the Czarist imperial position, is an obvious point of potential friction between the Kremlin and the Chinese Communists. The Chinese demand for Dairen has therefore given rise to the usual hopeful speculation about Chinese Titoism.

In fact, the Chinese note on Dairen should almost certainly be interpreted in the opposite way. It suggests that relations between Moscow and Peiping are now on so satisfactory a basis that the Chinese Communists can dare to be frank. Moreover, this interpretation is supported by reports on another event which has received far too little attention—the establishment of a Cominform for Asia.

For setting up this Asiatic Cominform, the center of the stage has not been reserved for the Kremlin, as in Europe. Instead, the most conspicuous role has been assigned to the Chinese Communists.

THE COMINFORM for Asia was established under the guise of a meeting of all the Asiatic members of the World Federa- of Trade Unions, which took place in Peiping toward the end of November. At this meeting, trade unionism was not even discussed. Instead, the strategy to be followed in the Communist conquest of Asia was analyzed and established.

Russian delegates participated but the strategy was announced, not by the Russians, but by the Chinese. Principal speakers were Li Li-san and Liu Shao-chi, both Moscow-trained, and both, contrary to report, apparently wholly loyal to the Mao Tse-tung government. It is further significant that the Asiatic strategy laid down at Peiping is not Stalin's, but Mao Tse-tung's.

It is to be based, not on proletarian revolt in the big cities (the strategy ordered by Moscow in 1927, which failed disastrously) but rather on agrarian guerilla forces (the strategy independently adopted by Mao Tse-tung after the 19277 failure). Moerover, the "Permanent Liaison Bureau" which is to be the organ of the Asiatic Cominform, is to be based in Peiping, under the wing of the Chinese Communist government.

The only real likelihood of Titoism in China arose from the possibility that the Kremlin might demand in China the kind of total subservience it has demanded in eastern Europe. But the foregoing clearly suggests that the Kremlin is willing to accept the Chinese Communist government as a junior partner rather than as a wholly obedient servant.

That is why the experts now rule out Chinese Titoism in the foreseeable future. That is also why the Chinese note on Dairen may well be a prelude to a treaty between China and the Soviet Union, in which an agreement on restoring Chinese authority in Dairen would be included as evidence of undying friendship.

THUS what is in prospect in Asia is a firm Russian-Chinese partnership, with the Chinese partner taking the immediate responsibility for a well-planned, smoothly operating organization designed for the political conquest of Asia. The first phase is now almost completed. The defection of the entire Nationalist navy from Formosa to the Communists is known to be likely at any time. With the Nationalist navy in Communists hands, Formosa will be rendered indefensible, and the Chinese Nationalist navy in Communist refuge, while the Soviet bloc gains a vitally important strategic prize.

The second phase will be pressure on southeast Asia, especially on Burma and Indo-China, which are already wavering and which are the keys to southeast Asia. Meanwhile, American policy in Asia remains in a state of near-palsy. Not a penny of the 75 million dollars voted by Congress for use in Asia has been spent or even allocated.

Policy papers have indeed, been drafted, for submission to the National Security Council and the President, and Ambassador-at-Large Philip Jessup has taken ship for Asia to confer with American representatives in Bangkok sometime in February. By the time Jessup returns in March, it is hoped that a new American policy in Asia, to counter the Soviet-Chinese strategy, will have been evolved. But there is no use blinking the fact that by next March, it may already be too late to halt the conquest of Asia.

Reds Used Immoral Women To Convert GIs, Senators Told

an undercover agent for the FBI from 1938 to 1947.

The FBI refused to comment on that when the subcommittee, headed by McCarran, put out the first installment of Huber's account last Saturday. The witness testified behind closed doors September 8 and 9, and again on October 28.

McCarran's group is studying legislation designed to bar the immigration gates to subversive aliens and to get rid of any already in the United States.

Huber said he joined the Communist Party in New York at the FBI's request after he told the agency that some of his fellow workers in the old WPA were Communists. He said he reported to the FBI on Communist activities for nine years, and then ended the undercover work "of my own volition."

Known as SOS

When he went before the subcommittee in October, Huber testified that:

"One of the most ambitious plans of the Communist Party to carry on its subversive work among members of the armed services was the establishment of an organization called SOS, Sweethearts of Servicemen." He added: "This group consisted of young women who were instructed to pick up servicemen off the streets and bring them to the SOS club rooms, where they were given liquor, entertainment and dancing.

"These women would go to any extremes to 'entertain' servicemen and thereby make them more disposed to join the Communist movement. They had no morals or moral standards whatsoever."

Tactics at Sheepshead Bay

Huber said the same tactics were used in an effort to attract seamen graduated from the Merchant Marine school at Sheepshead Bay, N.Y.

"One of the ways they worked on new men," the witness said, "was to hold parties for the graduates on shore. There would always be young women who would take the new seamen in tow, ply them with liquor, and keep them under their wings until they became completely intoxicated.

"These parties were repeated until the seamen became used to dropping in and until they 'paired off' with one particular girl. This girl was to a large extent responsible for the indoctrination job. As in the case of servicemen, the girls went to any extremes to land their victims."

The party, Huber added, also used girls to distribute Communist propaganda to workers because it found they were not beaten up by plant guards as men were.

"Such Ambitous Plans"

Huber also testified that eight years ago he sat in at a Communist meeting where he said plans were made "to capture transportation, communications, teamsters, warehousemen, radio and motion pictures" in this country.

"That the party has succeeded in realizing such ambitious plans would be an understatement," he added, "for I can see now that the unions in these industries have been taken over or infiltrated by the Communist Party.

"Thus the party has within its power the means to call and hold extensive strikes should the occasion demand it; strikes which could well be the training ground of a revolution for the overthrow of our Government and the establishment of communism."

In his testimony made public Saturday, Huber told the subcommittee that even during World War II, when Russia was America's ally, the Communist "high command" was plotting how to sabotage this country's industry in event of a later war between the two nations.

Defense Infiltration

In the later testimony released tonight the witness said:

"I know that in 1941—even after we were supposed to be allies with Soviet Russia—a large number of Communists were obtaining employment in defense industries, assisted by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO). An employed comrade would quit his job and apply for social security.

"He would then receive an application for admittance to a school from the union; at the expiration of his schooling, he would be given a job in a defense industry. The school was the Brooklyn Technical High School. Graduates of this school were employed at Sperry Gyroscope."

(The CIO recently expelled the United Electrical Workers Union, charging it was Communist dominated.)

Camp for Children

Other highlights of Huber's testimony:

1. He said the Communist Party maintains a special "indoctrination" camp for children in the Schooleys Mountains, at Pleasant Grove, N. J. He added: "They take children from the age of 8 and provide them with a thorough Communist education."

2. Huber said, "Starting August 1, 1941, the Communist Party conducted a drive to raise funds to enlarge the camp to accommodate 1000 children." Prominent persons aiding this drive, he continued, were William Dodd, jr., son of the former Ambassador to Germany, and Mrs. Louis Gimbel, wife of the department store owner. Huber said that on September 26, 1941, he attended a party at the New York home of young Dodd to raise funds for the children's camp, called Wo-Chi-Ca.

Say They Never Heard of Him

(In San Francisco, Dodd said: "It's quite possible I gave a party for the camp," but he denied that the camp was as Huber described it. Of Huber, Dodd said "I never heard of the guy."

(Dodd is now employed in the publicity department of the CIO International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

(In New York, Mrs. Gimbel said: "I never heard of Mr. Huber. I know nothing about the Communist Party, and I never heard of the camp although I have lived in New Jersey for many years."

(She explained that her husband, Louis G. Gimbel, jr., was killed in the war in the Air Forces. He was in the department store family and an executive in the firm but never was a "department store owner," she said.)

Sees Public Menace

3. Huber said: "In my opinion, the Communist Party and its fellow travelers and sympathizers are today so strong that public safety agencies in most of our large cities do not have forces sufficiently adequate to cope with disorders which might arise through the instigation of the party." He said "stricter attention should be paid to the danger which lies submerged in Negro communities," which he added "are being used by the Communist Party rabble rousers and propagandists as a potent weapon of dissatisfaction." He said that in Harlem, "Negroes are so aroused at the present time by Communist agitators that a spark might be sufficient to set out race riots in New York City."

4. The entertainment field—show business—has been more successfully infiltrated by the Communists than any other field, Huber asserted. He added:

"The most active part played by people in show business was in promoting the Communist-front movement, which is their most useful contribution to the Communist Party. The list of names of show people who have been connected with fronts or who have contributed their services to the Communist Party is very impressive."

Perjury Charged by Bridges To 2 Prosecution Witnesses

San Francisco, Dec. 20 (AP).—Counsel for Harry Bridges failed today to have two Government witnesses turned over to a Federal grand jury for consideration of perjury indictments.

In a loud, harsh voice, Attorney Vincent Hallinan charged the two witnesses "committed deliberate perjury" in testifying Bridges was at a meeting in New York June 27, 1937.

The witnesses were Manning Johnson, a Negro, and Paul Crouch, both acknowledged former Communists.

Federal Judge George B. Harris declined to order the two men into custody. But he instructed them to remain available "for any and all purposes" for the duration of the Bridges trial.

Bridges, born in Australia, is charged with lying when he testified at his 1945 naturalization hearing that he had never been a Communist. Two aides of the CIO longshore leader, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, are charged with conspiracy. They were his character witnesses at the hearing.

Hallinan offered to submit affidavits of five members of the Stockton, Calif., local of Bridges' union saying he made a speech at Stockton on the date of the New York meeting.

Prosecutor F. Joseph Donohue assailed Hallinan for "a rabble-rousing speech" designed to make a play to the public.

Hallinin told the court that George Hewitt, a Negro, had testified before the Un-American Activities Committee of the State of Washington, placing a professor at a Communist meeting in New York. When the professor proved he was not present, Hewitt was indicted, Hallinan continued, but Government officials helped him flee by plane to New York.

He said Government officials helped block extradition proceedings by getting Johnson to testify at New York that he also had seen the professor at the meeting. Extradition of Hewitt thereupon was refused.

Hallinan said to the court: "We ask that these men, Johnson and Crouch, be placed in custody of the marshal and turned over to the grand jury for investigation."

FBI Tapped Phone Talks Between Miss Coplon, Lawyer

New York, Dec. 20—(NYHT). Federal Bureau of Investigation agents admitted today they listended to at least 14 telephone conversations between Judith Coplon and her lawyer, Archibald Palmer.

This was put on the record by Palmer at a pre-trial hearing after he examined summaries filed by thirty FBI operatives who conceded they monitored the phone at her Brooklyn home. As a result, Palmer's motion to question the 30 agents was granted by Judge Sylvester Ryan in United States District Court.

Palmer may also be allowed to question 20 others who monitored her office and home phones in Washington. Consequently, there is a good chance that the trial of Miss Coplon, former Justice Department analyst, and Valentin A. Gubitchev, Russian engineer, may be delayed beyond its schedule date, next Tuesday.

The names of the 30 agents and summaries of what they heard were supplied by the Government on Judge Ryan's orders. He is trying to determine whether the prosecution got its evidence through wire taps, which are a "tainted source" and inadmissible in Federal courts.

"I could go into a confessional box and I wouldn't be safe there," Palmer shouted after these summaries disclosed that the agents had heard conversations between lawyer and client.

Ten of these 30 agents also admitted, through affidavits accompanying their sealed digests, that they listened in on Gubitchev's home phone. They will be questioned about that by Gubitchev's lawyer, Abraham L. Pomerantz. In addition, Judge Ryan ordered the prosecution to comply with his order of last Friday—that it supply the names of agents who monitored Miss Coplon's Washington wires.

Judge Ryan reserved decision, pending further argument Thursday, on Pomerantz's motion to dismiss the indictment against Gubitchev on grounds of diplomatic immunity. The lawyer charged that diplomatic immunity was "a two-way street," and that his client, who came here on a diplomatic passport and visa, enjoyed immunity not as a U. N. employe, but as Third Secretary of the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Through Lev S. Tolokonnikov, First Secretary of the Soviet Embassy, a memorandum from Alexander S. Panyushkin, Soviet Ambassador in the United States, was handed to Judge Ryan. This was to the effect that Gubitchev still has diplomatic status as Third Secretary. The State Department as well as the courts previously threw out such immunity claims and Michael McDermott, public information officer for the State Department, repeated the department's stand today.

"Under the rules of the U. N.," McDermott said, "when one becomes an employe of the U. N. he can have no official position with his government. The U. N. is on record with that."

The first witness Wednesday will be Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, who will testify on geophones.

New Year's Bills A Promising Lot

By Richard L. Coe

THE CROWDED CRYSTAL BALL—It's a scramble to attract your attention to the downtown theaters New Year's Eve . . . All the big houses are booking the best they can lay their mitts on and at least one reviewer is in a happy frenzy of anticipation . . . "On the Town" goes into the Palace, reputedly a mighty snappy version of that musical comedy, with Gene Kelly, Betty Garrett, Frank Sinatra, Ann Miller, Vera-Ellen, Jules Munshin, Florence Bates and Alice Pearce, that limp-jawed comedienne of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

DANNY KAYE dips back to Gogol's 115-year-old comedy, "The Inspector General," for his latest vehicle, opening New Year's Eve at the Warner . . . This is quite a switch for Danny, but the G. W. University Players' recent revival of the comedy suggests that the harum-scarum Kaye will have a great time in this one . . . No Goldwyn girls (this is a Warner-made picture), it still offers plenty of color, comedy and gibes at Government bureaucracy which should especially titivate Capitalites.

THE CAPITOL isn't going to be outdone, either, with Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy reunited for "Adam's Rib," a comedy by Ruth Gordon and Garson Kanin; a song, "Farewell Amanda," by Cole Porter, and a mighty promising supporting cast: Judy Holliday, the gal who took "Born Yesterday" over from Jean Arthur and played it three years; David Wayne, that grand Ensign Pulvey of "Mister Roberts"; Tom Ewell, the "Small Wonder" comic who played at Meridian Hill last summer in "The Male Animal"; and Polly Moran, back in movies because "I just got tired of leading the kind of life in which the most exciting event of the day was the morning trip to the market."

KEITH'S won't be backward, either, though it's dipping back six years with a picture Washington hasn't officially seen . . . What's this? . . . "The Outlaw," now cleared of its, er, influences, but still boasting Jane Russell in those dippy whatevertheyares.

FOR THE CHRISTMAS bills, you'll find them hinted at in today's and tomorrow's ads, but you'll have to admit the New Year's Eve openings are on the rosy side.

TONIGHT brings the Princeton Triangle Club's annual visit, playing a musical gibe at international affairs, "Come Across," at Lisner Auditorium . . . Producer of this year's Triangle is a Washington fellow, tall, clear-eyed Robert G. Abernethy, 22-year-old grandson of the Rev. William S. Abernethy, pastor emeritus of Calvary Baptist Church . . . While Abernethy doesn't ken following the stage for a lifetime, he's imbued with the knowledge that producing a show entails a lot of responsibilities, especially one that's on the road for the Christmas holidays . . . After graduation from Princeton's School of Public and International Affairs, he hopes for law, public affairs or graduate school . . . "I've applied for a Rhodes scholarship, but that's a lot to hope for."

KEITH'S Manager Hardie Meakin is so sure you'll enjoy "Holiday Affair," which opens this morning with Robert Mitchum, Janet Leigh and Wendell Corey, that he's offering a guest ticket to a future Keith show to those "honestly able to say they didn't enjoy" the flick.

JOHN BOLES, back from a long trip abroad, returns to what's almost a standing Boles tradition—headlining the Capitol's stage show for the Yule week.

ATTENTION, Josef Stalin, Marshal Tito, Ana Pauker and Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer: That English Magician Robert Harbin, who sawed this old party in half not long ago on the stage of Gotham's Palace Theater, is doing likewise to two customers nightly in the Shoreham Blue Room . . . Mrs. Thayer's insatiable curiosity about resulting scars can be satisfied if she'll but drag the body out to Barnee's bailiwick . . . Now having been sliced in Russia, Yugoslavia and Rumania, she can thrill to being sliced in the Shoreham . . . Spasibo, tovarishch!

ARTHUR GODFREY will demonstrate those toy theaters described recently in this column on his TV show tonight at 8 o'clock over WOIC, channel 9 . . . The Great Man's always been a friend of the Children's Museum of Washington and even on his present pinnacle wants to help publicize the fact that Pollock's, the British firm, has given the Washington group American rights to its novel toy . . . Godfrey will show scenes from "Cinderella."

THREE FACES AT YOU: Rosalind Russell reacts gingerly to Robert Cummings' haw-haw in this scene from their new comedy, "Tell It to the Judge," opening Christmas Eve at the National, where it was "sneak-previewed" last night

Vintners Challenged On Use 'Cream' Label

London, Dec. 20 (U.P.)—A British wine-making firm has been challenged to justify the 300-year-old brand names of "Bristol Milk" and "Bristol Cream," well-known varieties of sherry wine.

The Food Ministry yesterday ordered the firm of John Harvey and Son to prove that their products contained milk and cream or to eliminate the words from their labels.

Miss Bampton, Mitchell Unite In Concert

Tonight's National Symphony concert will be a reunion between Howard Mitchell, conductor, and Rose Bampton, soprano soloist.

Miss Bampton, who breezed through her fortieth birthday last month, was a scholarship student at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia at the time that Mitchell, then a young cellist, was there, also on scholarship. That was back in 1930.

"It is very interesting to sing with him conducting the orchestra," Miss Bampton said yesterday after her first rehearsal for tonight's concert. "The orchestra played wonderfully and that music is not easy." The Metropolitan Opera star, born in Cleveland, Ohio, will sing excerpts from Beethoven's Fidelio and from Alban Berg's Wozzeck.

"I'm trying to finish up my last-minute Christmas shopping between concerts and rehearsals," the singer continued. "A good friend sent me to a wonderful antique shop where I found some beautiful things."

In private life the popular soprano is the wife of Wilfred Pelletier, Metropolitan conductor.

"I have to be careful when I'm working on music not to say I can't do something," she said. "I don't want my husband to think I am not a good musician." Miss Bampton is considered one of the finest musicians singing today. She sang the entire role of Fidelio under Toscanini several years ago. She will sing part of that role tonight.

Pilot Who Saved 12 in Greenland Receives Trophy

Col. Emil G. Beaudry, Manchester, N. H., who flew the Air Force plane which rescued 12 airmen from the Greenland ice cap last December, yesterday was awarded the Mackay Trophy for the year's "most meritorious flight."

He received the award from Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, who complimented him for "a magnificent job in the highest traditions of the Air Force."

The award was created in 1912 by the late Clarence H. Mackay. Past recipients include Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, Generals James H. Doolittle and Henry H. Arnold, and Capt. Charles E. Yeager, pilot of the Aid Force's faster-than-sound rocket planes.

At Carnegie Hall

Miss Truman Makes Debut In 'Big Time'

New York, Dec. 20 (U.P.)—Margaret Truman made her first big-time singing appearance tonight when she performed before a packed crowd in Carnegie Hall that included the Nation's top critics and prominent members of society and the stage.

The 25-year-old daughter of the President was well received by the full house of 2500, admitted by invitation only. The audience included Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, her son Elliot, and the opera stars, Helen Traubel, Lauritz Melchior and Eleanor Steber.

Miss Truman appeared on a half-hour radio program—from 8 to 8:30 p. m.—with Dr. Frank Black and the Robert Shaw chorus.

She sat on the stage, with no signs of nervousness, until she sang the first of her three songs—"O Mio Babbino Caro."

Her others—"O Little Town of Bethlehem" and "Silent Night"—brought the most applause.

Melchior said that her performance showed "she has the goods."

President Truman presumably heard his daughter over the radio at Blair House. Mrs. Truman, in Independence, Mo., had said she would tune in.

Postlude

Music From Messiah Is Sung In Concert Marred by Haste

By Paul Hume

Christmas music from Handel's Messiah was sung last night in Lisner Auditorium.

It was the second of two evenings given over to the famous music performed under the sponsorship of the Air Force Symphony Orchestra under Warrant Officer Robert Landers.

Choral parts were handled by the Singing Sergeants, George Washington University's Glee Club, the Eldbrooke Methodist Church Choir, and members of the choirs on Foundry Methodist and New York Avenue Presbyterian Churches.

Soloists were Margaret Barnwell, soprano; Rilla Rowe Mervine, contralto; Ivan Genuchi, tenor, and Glenn Darwin, baritone.

It was an evening af variable results. Its chief element was that of haste. Haste seemed necessary to get through so that a radio broadcast by many of the same forces could begin in the same auditorium at 10 o'clock. That sort of thing is fatal to the message of the Messiah. It seemed highly unfair to everyone involved, including the audience, that events had to be arranged just that way.

Every soloist was rushed. There was no time for the great text of "Come unto Him, all ye that labor, and He will give you rest" to melt into our hearts. Nor did we have time to digest the meaning of the lines, "And He shall speak peace unto the heathen."

In spite of these conditions, the soprano and contralto carried off high honors for style, text and color in their work. The tenor was as lyrical as he was allowed to be. The baritone, owner of one of the magnificent voices of our generation, committed almost every kind of stylistic crudity imaginable.

We expect to have our love for the score restored on Thursday evening when the work is sung, almost in its entirety, by the Washington and Cathedral Choral Societies in Constitution Hall.

Answer to Byrd

Fairfax Board Hits School Transfer Plan

The Fairfax County School Board objected last night to proposed legislation which would make Virginia county boards of supervisors operate school systems.

Last week Virginia State Senator Harry F. Byrd, jr., announced he will introduce a bill when the General Assembly convenes January 11 which would do away with school boards in most Virginia counties and have their school systems run by the county supervisors.

The Fairfax School Board was asked for its views on Byrd's proposal by State Senator Andrew W. Clarke, who represents Fairfax and Prince William Counties.

In reply, the board advised Clarke that if a change is necessary it is preferable to have a separate school board appointed by the supervisors, rather than have the supervisors carry out the county's school board functions.

In other business the board acted to push the proposed school bond issue a little farther along.

It hired Alex. Brown & Sons, Baltimore investment bankers, and the New York law firm of Mitchell & Pershing to begin work on legal and financial aspects of the proposed school construction bond issue.

It also approved assignment of Robert B. Walker, county high-school superintendent, to assist in the assembling of bond-issue information.

Frailey Made 'Y' President For 5th Time

Carson P. Frailey, executive vice president and secretary of the American Drug Manufacturers' Association, has been elected to his fifth term as president of the Washington YMCA.

Other officers chosen for 1950 at a meeting Monday night include L. T. Breuninger, first vice president; William S. Culbertson, second vice president; Henry W. Fisher, jr., recording secretary; Alfred H. Lawson, treasurer; E. C. Giddings, assistant treasurer, and James C. Wilkes, general counsel.

Members of the board of directors to serve for three years, beside Breuninger, Frailey and Wilkes, include Bruce Baird, Walter M. Bastian, Hobart M. Corning, William C. Hansen, W. R. Frank Hines, William Montgomery, the Rev. John R. Rustin, Channing S. Walker, Clarence W. Gosnall and Renah F. Camalier.

Roof Prowler Is Captured By Firemen

It took 14 policemen and a squad of firemen early yesterday to arrest Carrol J. Judd, 21, of 4694 Homer ave., Suitland, Md.

Police noticed Judd scaling a seven-foot fence at 1233 13th st. nw. at 2:30 a. m. Police rallied to the call by dispatching two squad cars, a "black maria," a safe squad expert, a general assignment crew and a narcotics cruiser.

But the firemen actually captured Judd.

Police said he ran up the fire escape at 1235 13th st. to the roof of the building, then jumped a six-foot areaway to the roof of 1224 N st. nw. But he was still 20 feet from the ground. Firemen used a ladder to get him down.

Police said Judd was trying to enter the building at 1235 13th st. nw. Arraigned in Municipal Court, he was held in $1000 bond for a jury trial January 3 on charges of attempted housebreaking.

Last Sunday a Board of Arbitration raised the annual wages of Capital Transit's Union employes more than $1 million. They awarded a 10c an hour "across-the-board" increase, plus several so-called "fringe" requests. Street car and bus operators, composing more than half the total Union employes, will receive a top rate of $1.55 per hour. And the new wage is retroactive to July 1, 1949, which means that $500,000 will have to be paid in back wages.

YOU CAN'T GET BLOOD FROM A TURNIP. The award is a financial burden we cannot meet.

Capital Transit's income, which pays these Union wages, is the transit fare paid by YOU. Prior to the wage increase, payrolls alone—without consideration for other necessary operating expenses—took 59c from every $1 you put in the fare box. Now it will be greater.

This latest financial blow cannot be offset by reduced service only. It must also be met by a request for another fare adjustment.

Reductions in service to meet passenger requirements have been continuous. Despite this, and fare increases of the past few years, additional revenues have been almost entirely absorbed by successive wage increases granted Union employes.

WHAT THIS MEANS TO YOU

The Award means two things—the necessity for an application to the Public Utilities Commission for financial relief, and a cut in service. There is no alternative if Capital Transit is to pay this higher wage, pay a reasonable return to the owners of the property and still remain financially sound. We have no other sources of relief. Our income and outgo are a matter of public record. Financially, Capital Transit has no more privacy than a gold fish.

The only way your Transit Company can obtain money to meet these higher wage costs is from the transit rider through reduced service and higher fares.

After Capital Transit makes a more detailed study of the effect of the Arbitration Award, it will decide upon a specific course of action. In the meantime we are "tightening our belts" and will use all our ability and experience to ease the financial blow. The difference will have to be made up through an adjustment in fares.

Elliott Elected By Appraisers As New Head

By S. Oliver Goodman

Allen Elliott was elected president of the Washington Chapter, Society of Residential Appraisers, succeeding Carl C. Smuck of the Anacostia Federal Savings & Loan Association.

Elliott is chief underwriter of the District Insuring Office of the Federal Housing Administration. A native of Northampton, Mass., he came to Washington in 1935 to engage in the real estate business. He joined the FHA in 1940, has been with it since except for one year with the Veterans' Administration as technical assistant and consultant in the appraisal division.

Other officers elected by the appraisers at the annual meeting Monday night in the Burlington Hotel are James Skinner of Columbia Federal Savings & Loan Association, vice president, and R. Lee Baxter of American Building Association, secretary-treasurer.

Named to the board of governors, in addition to the officers, were: Harry Dreysen, Harry Overman, William Throckmorton and Julian Scott. Smuck as past president was named an honorary member.

The appraisers heard proposals but deferred action on amending the bylaws to include a new office of second vice president and a resolution to create an advisory committee to consist of past presidents.

EXTRA DIVIDEND: Directors of American Security & Trust Co. yesterday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share, payable January 10 to stock of record December 30. This brings dividends for 1949 to $1.50 a share as compared with $1.25 a share in 1948, according to President Daniel W. Bell.

ODD LOTS: Port of New York Authority has awarded 54 million dollars of general and refunding bonds to an investment banking group headed by Harriman Ripley & Co. and Blyth & Co. Reoffering is being made from a yield of 0.60 percent for those maturing December 15, 1950, to a dollar price of 97 for those due in 1964. . . Shareholders of Procter & Gamble Co. approved a stock splitup of 1½ for one. . . Dun & Bradstreet reports that business bankruptcies in week ended December 15 totaled 161 against 191 the previous week and 96 in the same 1948 week. . . Short interest in stocks listed on the Big Board rose to 2,267,481 shares on December 15, against 2,206,170 the previous month.

ADDS TO SURPLUS: Directors of the Liberty National Bank yesterday authorized the transfer of $50,000 from undivided profits to surplus. Together with a similar shift made last June, surplus account now totals $900,000, according to President W. T. Vandoren. The board also voted the regular semiannual dividend of $4 a share, payable January 3 to stock of record December 21. This brings the total for 1949 to $8 a share, same as last year.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Roger J. Whiteford, Washington attorney, has been elected a director of Maryland Casualty Co., succeeding the late Ashton Dovell . . . Mrs. Patricia O'Malley Strickland has rejoined Trans World Airline in the Washington public relations office . . . Walter W. Craigie of Richmond has been appointed national chairman of the Investment Bankers Association's municipal securities committee . . . Vinton C. Johnson and Thomas E. Walsh have been elected vice presidents of the First Boston Corp.

BONUS: The Washington mortgage banking and realty firm of Frederick W. Berens distributed a bonu of $16,320 to 33 employes at the annual Christmas party Monday night in the Carlton Hotel. The bonus was based on longevity of service.

RAIL REVENUES: The Association of American Railroads estimated that railroad operating revenues declined 15.3 percent in November compared with the same month in 1948. The estimate was based on advance reports from 82 of the 128 class I railroads and represented 81.1 percent of total operating revenues. The total operating revenues for November reported by the 82 carriers was $566,845,908 of which $469,315,765 was freight revenue. Freight revenues were off 15.9 percent during the month and passenger dropped 13.5 percent.

ADVICE: "These dealers who are good merchants have nothing to worry about in the coming year. Business will be there for those who go out and get it . . . We are down to solid ground again and can get to work in the old-fashioned way. The number one factor today . . . and always is, is salesmanship. Keep your sales force trained and up to the minute on latest mthods and you will make money . . . "Our New Year's advice is don't gamble on sales. Be sure the man who meets your customers is a SALESMAN." The above excerpt is from a newsletter sent by the Electric Institute of Washington to its members.

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 20 (AP).—Cotton futures closed steady today at gains of 15 to 30 cents a bale. The markets eased in early dealings as commission house profit taking and light hedging met indifferent trade demand. Firmness developed in late trading on a flurry of mill buying and short covering.

DRAMATIC NEW BEAUTY...

WITH AN ALL IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE

Soon you'll see brilliant new styling keyed to your comfort, safety, and convenience in the 1950 Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto, and Chrysler Cars.

BY K. T. KELLER
PRESIDENT, CHRYSLER CORPORATION

THERE has been a good deal of fun poked at automobile designers in recent years. It is said that these talented and hard-working men have become so interested in the vague possibilities of mere "form" that they have forgotten the dimensions of the average garage and the anatomy of the average human body.

Here at Chrysler we learned long ago that unless a car is convenient, efficient, safe, and comfortable—it is not a really good motor car.

SOON, you will see four new Chrysler-built cars—the 1950 Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler. I think you will like them better than any other cars you have ever driven. They are great cars because they are deliberately designed with you in mind.

You want a beautiful car inside and out—the kind of beauty that is graceful and inviting. You will see this kind of new beauty in the crisp, clean lines of our new cars—in the interior trim and appointments. They further advance the distinctive style already established by Chrysler . . . style that matches "form" to function, that reflects efficient transportation and all-around excellence.

YOU want above all to be safe on the road. Our new cars have a combination of safe-driving features that allow you to see clearly, to drive or stop with ease, to maneuver freely, even in close quarters. You can enjoy the relaxation that in itself is such an important element in safe driving.

Then, you want to be comfortable . . . even getting in and out. You want enough headroom . . . even with your hat on—enough leg-room and enough elbow-room. You want to be able to sit naturally and not have to adjust yourself. And especially, you want to enjoy your car.

You want your car to serve you at a minimum cost per mile. Here, too, Chrysler's advanced engineering means so much. Each unit in our cars is designed to be dependable and efficient—and to play its part in lowering your operating and maintenance costs.

WE invite you to see them and try them when your Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler dealers put them on display in the near future. For 25 years we have worked and competed always to make cars that excel . . . and these new cars are the greatest values we have ever offered. Because nothing you want in comfort, safety or performance has been sacrificed for styling, their new beauty is functional and honest, and very exciting.

You get the good things first from Chrysler Corporation

Caps Bolstered for Lakers Tonight

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Blue Plate Special:

DEPT. OF DEFENSE—The other day, the United States Naval Academy announced to a not-quite palpitating world that it had chosen as its varsity football captain for next season, Midshipman Tom Bakke, an end.

Povich

Ever hear of Bakke? Exactly. He's a victim of the two-platoon system that imposes anonymity on the men who play defense and grab no headlines. In the public mind, the Navy ends last year were Ryan, Andresen and Frazier, the fellows who were in there to catch passes when Navy had the ball. Bakke caught no passes, got no publicity.

But he's been the Navy's best defensive end for a couple of years now—the kind that doesn't make All-American because defensive players don't. Only the guys they play with have the proper esteem for the fellows who play defense.

The Philadelphia Eagles, champions of the pro league, are a case in point. Everybody knows of Steve Van Buren, Bosh Pritchard, Tommy Thompson and Clyde Scott, the Eagles' scoring backs. But who were the fellows in there last Sunday keeping the Los Angeles Rams of Clark Shaughnessy, the greatest offensive coach in football, scoreless?

They were Russ Craft, Pat McHugh and Frank Reagan, backing up that Eagle line and knocking down those L. A. passes. They're Eagles every bit as much as Van Buren et al. and at their specialties just as good, perhaps better. But alas, they play defense.

YANKEE DEPT.—Del Webb, who owns the Yankees along with Dan Topping, was in Washington this week, and rejecting all suggestions that he include Outfielder Cliff Mapes in one of the numerous deals proposed to the Yanks. "But he's only a .247 hitter," Webb was told.

"Yes, but he's a real Yankee," said Webb," and he gives us a great whirl. Mapes is a winning ball player, even when he isn't hitting. He'll out-throw everybody in the league, and on the bases he's the fastest big man I've ever known. You always know he'll give you a great effort."

There was the day in 1947, Webb recalled, when the Yankees released Mapes and sent him to their Kansas City farm for seasoning. "We told him to come around in the morning and we'd give him his transportation. The next day, we picked up the papers and saw that Mapes had been in the Kansas City lineup that night. He hadn't waited for his expenses. He paid his own way to Kansas City that day, got to the ball park an hour before the game and said he wanted to play. He hit a home run in his first time up.

"That's a real Yankee for you."

JOE LOUIS DEPT.—Vancouver, British Columbia, has followed the lead of Michigan in barring Joe Louis from staging exhibition bouts in its territory on the ground that they prove nothing. Louis can fight there, they say, only if he wants to level, in real fights.

It's the sort of movement that would bring Louis out of his retirement, if it spreads and denies to him the profits of his exhibition tours. Even so, there is evidence that Joe will fight for the title again, perhaps against Ezzard Charles, the man on whom his title devolved when Louis quit. His best friends are convinced that he's fighting himself back into shape for a legitimate comeback.

More important, though, than any yearning Louis may have for his old title, are the big revenues he is sort of missing. In one of his big fights, he could take down more money than in a year of piddling exhibitions, and Louis has always manifested a constant need for high income. His golf bets haven't done his bank account any good, either. And there was something about a $65,000 United States tax lien against him. You'd have to guess, he'll be back to fight for the title he gave up.

ALL-STAR DEPT.—Sammy Baugh, who has been around now for 13 seasons, gives his own idea of what an all-time, all-pro league football team should look like, in the current edition of the Sporting News. And any coach would like to take Baugh's team and take his chances of sweeping through the league unbeaten.

There's only one complaint, and that is Baugh's over-modesty. He isn't on it. His quarterbacks, he says, would be Sid Luckman in the T-formation, and Larry Craig of the old Packers, for the single wing. Somewhat surprisingly, he gives Charley Trippi the nod over George McAfee as one of the halfbacks, but is emphatic about his choice of Steve Van Buren for the other half. At fullback he says it is no contest—Bronko Nagurski.

Getting down to the line, Baugh says he can't separate the centers—he'd take Bulldog Turner for offense, Mel Hein on defense. Danny Fortmann and Riley Matheson he'd want as his guards; Joe Stydahar and Al Wistert as his tackles. His ends? Don Hutson and Jim Poole.

But Baugh does have a role picked out for himself on the team. "I'd like," he says, "to be the coach."

Redskins Win Both Court Cases With Ruthstrom

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The Washington Redskins scored two victories, half as many as they managed in the 1949 season, yesterday in District Court.

They won a suit in which Ralph Ruthstrom, fullback of the 1947 Redskins, claimed $4100 in salary he didn't get when he was indefinitely suspended.

And they won their own counter suit in which they claimed the former Southern Methodist back owed them $241.80 as the unpaid balance of a $1000 salary advance.

Judge David A. Pine, after two days of testimony, brought the case to a whirlwind finish when he gave a directed verdict for the defendant—Pro Football, Inc. or the Redskins—and excused the jury of 11 men and one woman.

It was the verdict for which the Redskins' attorney had asked as the trial started.

Thus another case, expected to be a test of the highly controversial "reserve clause" in professional player contracts, ended as no test at all.

Trial Has High Spots

But the trial had many high spots before Judge Pine told the opposing attorneys—James J. Laughlin for Ruthstrom and Bernard I. Nordlinger for the Redskins—after final arguments and while the jury had a recess:

"A jury is not supposed to guess or speculate. I don't think a reasonable man can dicker over whether or not Mr. Ruthstrom performed his duties satisfactorily with the Redskins. Therefore it is the duty of this court to give the defendants a directed verdict on the principal claim and it follows that they must also have a directed verdict on the counter claim."

Ruthstrom's suit grew out of a stormy two-month sojurn with the Redskins, immediately after he and Halfback Tom Farmer came to Washington from the Los Angeles Rams in exchange for Steve Bagarus.

He first had trouble with the management when he appeared in a Chicago hotel lobby without a suit coat. For this infraction of rules, and his subsequent "jumping" of the club for several days, he was reportedly fined $500.

A few weeks later he again disappeared, after a few days calling from Houston, Tex., to explain that his mother's illness had caused his sudden departure. He was told that he was indefinitely suspended.

Played in AAC

In his suit Ruthstrom said this suspension, instead of a release, kept him from getting a job with the Buffalo Bills later in 1947 and thus deprived him of a means of earning a livelihood. However, he was able to play with the Bills and Baltimore Colts in 1948 and 1949. His $4100 claim was for the unpaid balance of his $5500 salary in 1947.

Judge Pine broke into the examination and cross-examination several times with warnings against "irrelevancy," and "repetitious questions." He finally summed up the tangled issues with three questions: (1) Was Ruthstrom's contract a legal one? (2) Did the plaintiff (Ruthstrom) fulfill his part of the contract? and (3) Had he asked for a hearing on his case before Commis-

The Judge's Mind Was Made Up

Judge David A. Pine was credited with a "perfect squelch" in District Court yesterday.

When George Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, asked if he might say something from the witness stand during a lull in the case of Ralph Ruthstrom vs. Pro Football, Inc., Judge Pine snapped:

"No! We don't want any speeches here."

The Sports Reel:

Need $280? Just Floor Woodcock

LONDON, Dec. 20 (AP).—Bruce Woodcock offered 100 pounds ($280) today to any sparing partner who can knock him down and the line started forming on the right.

His offer apparently was another move to convince the British public that he is serious about his soft-postponed fight with Lee Savold of Paterson, N. J., for the British version of the World Heavyweight title. The bout now is tentatively set for late May at London's White City Stadium.

Johnny Williams, a young English heavyweight, was the first to sign up for a chance at the 100 pounds. There were indications that Woodcock would not lack for other takers.

As a consolation prize Woodcock's manager, Tom Hurst, offered 5 pounds ($14) to anyone who stays on his feet for one round against the British champ.

N.Y. Group Says Chandler Did Most for Game

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler today was named by the New York Sports Broadcasters Association as the person who made the most valuable contribution to sports in 1949.

Chandler will receive the Graham McNamee Memorial award at the organization's annual dinner, February 14.

Tar Heel Football Brings in $562,731

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Dec. 20 (AP).—The University of North Carolina estimates its share of gate receipts from regular season football games and the approaching Cotton Bowl game will gross $562,731.

Athletic Director R. A. Fetzer estimated UNC's share of home game receipts at $207,175 and income from games away from home at $235,556. The Cotton Bowl game January 2 in Dallas is expected to add $120,000.

A SAINT FLIES HIGH—Bobby Alvord of St. Albans High goes up off the floor to push in a field goal over Central's Lew Glickfield in the first half of yesterday's basketball game at the St. Albans gym. In the background, offering moral support to Bobby is St. Albans' Buddy Somerville. Alvord scored to 18 points, but St. Albans lost the game, 63-44

John Dillon, All-America At Carolina, Joins Squad

Something new and, it is hoped, helpful will be added to the Washington Caps' lineup tonight when they play host to the Minneapolis Lakers in a National Basketball Association game at Uline Arena at 8:30.

John "Hook" Dillon, former All-America from the University of North Carolina, will make his debut as a member of the Caps after signing a contract and taking his first workout with the team yesterday.

The signing of Dillon brings together again a pair of stars from the 1945-46 Tarheels, Bones McKinney also having played with the Carolinians then.

Played With Hanes Hosiery

Dillon has been playing with the Hanes Hosiery semipro club of Winston-Salem since graduation.

The 24-year-old, 6-3 scoring artist shoots with either hand and specializes in a hook shot.

It was this shot which gave him a 21-point average in the 1946-47 NCAA Tournament in Madison Square Garden, where the Tarheels romped to the finals before bowing to Oklahoma, 43-40.

Dillon is the twelfth man on the squad and in order to comply with the 11-man limit one Cap veteran to be decided upon today, will not dress for tonight's game.

A preliminary at 7:15 brings together Naval Receiving Station and the Pat O'Briens.

It's Mikan Again

Minneapolis again will feature the one-two punch of George Mikan and Jim Pollard.

It was the latter's field goal in the last 15 seconds of an earlier game which tripped the Caps by 68-66. Mikan registered 35 points in a more recent clash to give the Lakers a 93-76 margin over the Caps.

After lagging all season, Mikan has finally replaced Alex Groza of Indianapolis as scoring leader.

Statistics released yesterday show the Laker center has dropped in 651 points for a 28.3 average. Groza's average is 24.3 with a 632 point total.

Florida Denies Tatum Asked Change in Athletics Setup

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Dutch Stanley, physical education director at Florida University, yesterday denied that Maryland's Jim Tatum had insisted upon a change in Florida's athletic setup before Tatum would accept the position as football coach.

The denial followed a story appearing in Tuesday's editions of The Washington Post, which said Tatum had demanded that the intercollegiate athletics department be divorced from the physical education department and that the football coach answer only to the college president.

"Nothing like that was discussed at our meeting with Jim last week," said Stanley, referring to Tatum's visit to Gainesville, Fla. "We talked in generalities; not even salary was mentioned.

"Tatum's status as a prospective coach at Florida is the same today as it's been ever since his name was first mentioned in connection with the job—he has not applied and he isn't being considered."

Tatum, resting before shepherding his squad to Jacksonville next Monday for a final week's practice before meeting Missouri in the Gator Bowl, also denied the story. Tatum said:

"My visit to Gainesville [Editor's note: Home of Florida U.] was for the purpose of inspecting the football field there in the event the practice field at Ponte Vedra, where our squad will practice, isn't in shape.

"I said then, and I say now again, that I haven't applied for the job at Florida University. I haven't the slightest idea where the story originated that I insisted upon a change in the athletic setup. It's ridiculous."

Oriole, Who Chased Heckler, Sold to Dallas

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (AP).—Ellis Clary, the Baltimore Oriole infielder who climbed into the stands after a heckler last season, today was sold to Dallas of the Texas League.

Clary and Tommy Thomas, then the Oriole manager who egged him on, both were suspended.

Clary formerly played with the Washington Nats and St. Louis Browns.

Colts Have Four Choices—and What Choices—for Coach

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (AP).—Abe Watner, new president of the Baltimore Colts, said today the National-American Football League club has four top choices for its coach:

Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma.

Carl Snavely of North Carolina.

Jim Tatum of Maryland.

Wallace Wade of Duke.

Watner did not disclose whether he had contracted any of the four.

The Colts dropped Coach Cecil Isbell in midseason this year and General Manager Walter Driskill, former assistant coach at Maryland and Oklahoma, was at he helm for the remainder of the 1949 schedule.

Pantos Leads Central to Win Over Saints

Central's Vikings, defending Interhigh basketball champions, opened their season with a 63-44 victory over St. Albans yesterday at St. Albans.

Led by Jimmy Pantos and Ivan Shefferman, the Vikings took a 33-20 halftime lead, withstood an 18-point rall in the third quarter, and handed their hosts their second straight loss.

Roger Kingsbury, who scored 27 points in the Saints opener, was "held" to 16 yesterday, and relinquished his team's scoring honors to Bob Alvord who had 18. Pantos wound up with 15 and Shefferman with 13.

Ohio Wesleyan Plays A. U.

American U. will furnish the only local collegiate basketball action tonight, meeting Ohio Wesleyan in its Ward Circle gym.

The visitors, led by Center Judd Millhon, defeated Maryland, 75-71, at College Park Monday night, holding off a late Terp rally.

Millhon, high scorer in Ohio last season with 533 points, rang up 29 points against Maryland.

That Maryland victory was only the third in seven starts for Ohio Wesleyan. It walloped Rio Grande, 115-38, in its opener, then lost to Kent State, Baldwin-Wallace, Ohio U., and West Virginia.

Staff Cassell's American Eagles snapped a three-game losing streak last time out, edging strong Roanoke, 65-61, in a Mason-Dixon Conference game. They've won four of seven.

A.U., with Roy Ishman, Bob Lamon and Ronnie Garshag, principal offensive threats, will depend on its zone to stop its Methodist rivals.

Colts, Marshall Agree to 2 Games

Baltimore, Dec. 20 (AP).—Abe Watner, president of the Baltimore Colts, disclosed today that he and George Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, tentatively have agreed on two games for next year.

Any arrangements, however, are subject to the approval of Commissioner Bert Bell

Watner said he and Marshall held a conference in Washington last night. Their tentative agreement is for a preseason exhibition here and a regular league contest in Washington.

LIU Trounces USC, 70-45; NYU Routs California

New York, Dec. 21 (AP).—Negro Stars Sherman White and LeRoy Smith pumped in more than half of Long Island University's points to lead the Blackbirds to a convincing 70-45 victory over Southern California in the feature of tonight's intersectional college basketball double-header at Madison Square Garden.

A crowd of 13,000 watched New York University crush California, 69-50, in the opener to give the metropolitan quintets a sweep over their rivals from the Golden State.

But So Did Texas Tech

Texas Western, Host Team in Sun Bowl, Really Wanted to Play in Sunny California

By Joe Kelly

Even the most enthusiastic Georgetown supporter may have been surprised when the Hoyas were invited to appear in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., January 2.

That was two days before the traditional game with George Washington and Georgetown then had a 5-3 record.

G. W. was determined to take the edge off the Hoya Bowl bid and did, in convincing 28-7 fashion.

However, Georgetown's acceptance of the El Paso invitation was on a definite basis so the Hoyas leave here by chartered plane for El Paso December 28 to meet Texas Western in the January 2 game.

The real mixup occurred at the other end, far out in west Texas.

Texas Tech, Border Conference champion for the third straight time without a defeat in the league, was invited to oppose Georgetown. Texas Tech's players promptly turned down the bid by a 38-3 vote.

Meanwhile, Texas Western had been invited to play in the Fresno, Calif., Raisin Bowl. This is a coveted trip for the schools in the border area.

Texas Western was anxious to take it. After all, El Paso is home for the former Texas School of Mines bearing its new name for the first year.

Texas Tech turned around, after rejecting the Sun Bowl id, and grabbed the Raisin Bowl game.

Coach Jack J. Curtice, of Texas Western, frankly admitted that he was hoping that Tech would play in the Sun Bowl so that he could be free to take his team to California.

When it didn't, Curtice promptly covered for the Sun Bowl promoters. El Paso neighbors only last year bought Curtice an expensive car and collected a few thousand to pay him a bonus for his successful coaching job.

Georgetown Coach Bob Margarita probably would be happier meeting Tech. This Texas Western bunch won the Nation's rushing title for the second straight year with a 333.2 per game average

A good bit of it was amassed by Harvey (Pug) Gabriel, the country's eighth leading ballcarrier.

Texas Western, loser to West Virginia by 21-12 in last year's Sun Bowl, was tied by the Mountaineers at Morgantown, 13-13, this season. Its two losses in a 10-game schedule were to Texas Tech, 13-0, and Hardin-Simmons, 33-14.

Gabriel rates most of the Miners' raves with an 881-yard total for a 6.1 average but a Lynchburg, Va., lad, Cordell McGraw is a valuable member of the backfield.

McGraw, 210-pound junior, who played a freshman year at V.P.I., has a 5.5 average in 60 carries.

Editor's Note—Joe Kelly, who wrote this article on the Sun Bowl, is a former Washington boy, visiting here during the Christmas holidays. He is sports editor of the Avalanche-Journal at Lubbock, Texas., which is only a short distance from El Paso

Gaithersburg Wins, 34-30

Gaithersburg High raced off to a 16-0 lead in the second quarter, but had to hold on for dear life to gain a 34-30 win over Mount Rainier yesterday on the Mounts' floor.

Climaxing the Mounts' great uphill fight, Jack Schrier put in a layup which cut their deficit to 32-30 with 55 seconds left. However, in their eagerness to pull the game out of the fire, the Mounts' committed two fouls and Ivan Fitzwater and Gwin Kirkland scored the points to preserve Gaithersburg's victory.

Minneapolis Loses, 87-62

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 20 (AP)—The Rochester Royals upended the Minneapolis Lakers, 87 to 62, before 4260 fans here tonight and moved into first place in the Central Division of the National Basketball Association.

The displaced Lakers held the lead for only a moment of the first quarter, and the Royals snared a 25-point lead late in the first half. George Mikan was high scorer with 26 points.

Arnie Risen, Royals center, connected on four of five hooks in the first quarter to lead the first half Rochester offensive.

It was the tenth straight home victory for the Royals. The Lakers won the only previous meeting this season, on their floor.

Rosenblatt's Overtime Foul Goal Wins for Western

Gwynn Park Downs Alumni for 3d in Row

Gwynn Park High of Brandywine, Md., registered its third straight win of the season, 44-32, over its alumni last night at Gwynn Park. John Mathews was high scorer for the game, scoring 12 points for Gwynn Park, while Charles Dillion's 10 points paced the losers.

Frederick Loses, 46-44, After Rally

With a foul goal in an overtime period, Marvin Rosenblatt won his second game for Western within a week yesterday. The score was, 46-44, yesterday with Frederick (Md.) High losing out in Western's gym.

A week ago, Rosenblatt tossed in a layup with 30 seconds left to beat Bethesda-Chevy Chase, 34-32.

After a 10-10 first quarter, Western took command, 22-19, at half, and 39-33, going into the last quarter yesterday. But Frederick caught up at 44 all when the final gun sounded.

In the three-minute overtime, each team tried to hold the ball until it could put in a last minute shot. However, Rosenblatt drew a foul shot and made it good. Just before the game ended, Dick DeVos drew another foul shot and made that one good, too, to lock up Western's second win in four games.

Redskins Win Ruthstrom Court Cases

sioner Bert Bell of the National Football League.

In the opinion of the court Ruthstrom's contract was legal, he had failed to fulfill his part by missing practice and Sunday games after his departure for Texas, and he had failed to take the proper steps for a hearing before Commissioner Bell.

A 54-page deposition from Bell was introduced and read, highlighted by the commissioner's rebuttal of a Ruthstrom claim with the remark that 50 or more players of the National Football League had "jumped" to the rival All-America Conference without releases from their N.F.L. owners.

Never a Dull Moment

In other features of the case: Redskin President George Marshall said Ruthstrom was a "bitter disappointment" to the Redskins from the time the opposition completed its first pass over his head.

Attorney Laughlin asked Marshall if he blamed a loss to Green Bay in 1947 on the game officials, as usual, and Judge Pine sustained an objection. Marshall's attempt to answer was silenced by the judge.

A $55.34 item for laundry and incidentals, charged against Ruthstrom by the Redskins, was questioned sharply by Laughlin. Mrs. Rosalie Raley, secretary to the Redskin president, underwent a blackboard drill to show how Ruthstrom's indebtedness of $241.80 was reached, later admitted she didn't know exactly what the $55.34 was for.

Wilbur Moore, Redskin backfield coach, was forced to admit Ruthstrom might have been in his room at the Roosevelt Hotel on the night of October 21, 1947, although the fullback didn't answer the telephone or a knock at the door.

pisk up earlier

In a last-second maneuver Laughlin changed the wording in his pretrial pleading from "discharged" to "suspended"—a fact which altered Judge Pine's opinion not at all.

Laughlin said he would appeal the case.

Creme Has 6 Back

Montgomery Blair Veterans Again Eye Class A County Title

By Bill Gilbert

Tony Creme, Montgomery Blair High's basketball coach, expects a lot from his seniors this year.

Six players are back from last season's squad which won the Montgomery County Class A championship—and three of them will be playing their third year of basketball under Creme.

Ray Luckett, versatile athlete who is a star halfback on the football team as well as a standout shortstop on the baseball squad, looms as the big gun of the Blazer attack.

Ray, a 17-year-old senior playing his third year of basketball, stands 6 feet tall and weighs 180 pounds. A cool player when the chips are down, Luckett also sets up the plays and is good on set shots as well as layups.

Two other three-year men in their senior year are Guards Bill Schief and Bill Larimore. Schief is a playmaker adept at ball handling. Larimore, a 6-footer, is the club's best defensive man. He doesn't shoot too much, but sees to it that his opponent doesn't, either.

John Selby will be the Blazer center. A transfer from Eastern, he will be used in the pivot slot by Creme. Standing 6 feet 3 inches tall, he is the best bet for Blair under the backboards.

Jim Downs, one-handed set shot artist, rounds out the starting five. Morgan Wooten, who sinks his set shots with both hands, will be Creme's No. 1 reserve.

W. Virginia State Turns Back Howard, 53-41

West Virginia State, defending champion of the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association, pulled away to a 53-41 win over Howard University before 1400 at Turner's Arena last night.

Willie Smith and Earl Lloyd, the latter a Parker-Gray High of Alexandria product, led West Virginia with 18 and 16 points.

WHEN A FELLA NEEDS A PAL!

When you've been Christmas shopping and you're cold and down to your last few dollars, you'll find a real pal just above "Woody's" between G and H Streets.

His name is Ralph, of Peoples Liquor . . . he's figured out a way to save you money and needless steps.

Ralph knows that you don't want to go all over Washington looking for the "lowest prices in town." He pins other stores' ads on a BULLETIN BOARD in People's Liquor. Come in, read his competitors' ads . . . he promises you he'll beat or meet their prices.

Shop with Ralph, he saves you time and money, and his bulletin board proves there's NO BETTER BUY, WHEREVER YOU TRY!

Christmas sale now going on . . . aren't the following items proof?

LANG'S Extra Special SCOTCH 100% Scotch whiskies, 86.8 proof. FIFTH 2.98
3 STAR FRENCH BRANDY Bremond et Cie. 84 proof. FIFTH 2.59

Louis Still Has Wallop

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 20 (AP).—You can take the word of Boxer Al Hoosman that retired heavyweight Champion Joe Louis "hits just as hard as ever."

Hoosman made the remark last night after he was flattened by Louis in 2:16 of the fifth round of their 10-round exhibition match.

An overflow crowd paid gross gate receipts of $19,656 and saw Louis drape his 6-foot-5-inch opponent on the canvas. Louis received $6300 for the night's work.

DEAR FOLKS:

Today's the last go-round for racing in these parts. Unless we go South or West or to the movies, we won't see any racing again until this track reopens on March 4. In all, we get 10 weeks off, almost a month less than usual. Racing Secretary Fred Burton has lined up a good closing day program with the feature, The Au Revoir Purse, drawing top notch distance horses. Facing Starter Harold Holland will be Butler, Rough Ordy, Leamour and others up to the limit field of eight. The race, at a mile and an eighth, will tell us just how good is Rough Ordy who has a string of victories but none over this kind of company. The feature is backed by two other distance affairs and five sprints. See you on the rail. —BILL.

Rio Reigh 2d, Red Haw A Poor Third

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 20. William Sedlacek's Falsely, proving anything but a false alarm, turned in her fourth victory in a row at the current meeting today. The daughter of War Hero, after three claiming race successes, stepped into the allowance division and ran off with the day's feature event.

Apprentice Dick Lawless, who rode three winners on the card, coasted Falsely into the wire five lengths ahead of E. L. Miller's Rio Reigh with Mrs. Arthur Brockman's Red Haw another four lengths back in the field of eight.

Falsely Favored Again

For the third straight time, Falsely was the favorite and she paid a $3.60 mutuel. Performing over a slow track, the mare registered in time of 1:18 4/5 for the Charles Town course of 120 feet more than six furlongs.

As a horse race, the sprint was "no contest" at least not for the winning end of the purse. From the No. 1 post position, Falsely took command at the break, drew out and had clear sailing, holding at one interval a lead of eight lengths.

Confusion marked the period immediately following the fourth race. Cedar Brand and Under Cover finished on the inside of the track and Lenwell and Dale Maedic closed along the outside rail. The photo finish showed them in the following order: Cedar Brand, Lenwell, Under Cover annd Dale Maedic.

Before the placing had been made, Jockey Anthony Patanjo who rode Under Cover claimed a foul against Cedar Brand. Dick Lawless, Dale Maedic's rider and obviously fouled by Lenwell, failed to object.

The stewards listened to Patanjo and disallowed his claim but, on their own disqualified Lenwell from second money, posting a new finish to wit: Cedar Brand, Under Cover, Dale Maedic and Lenwell.

Cedar Brand, owned by Mrs. W. I. Jones and trained by C. A. Cranford, of Washington, paid $34 mutuel after going the about 4½ furlongs in .51.

It Costs a Duckhunter $9.72 For Each Webfoot He Bags

By Ralph Murdock

Murdock

THE REMINGTON NEWS Letter, edited by Henry P. Davis of Remington Arms Co., carries a news item which we would like to pass along to our readers. It applies to duck hunters and reveals the hunting cost per day to shoot the web-footed speedsters.

The survey, in which 77 hunters were interviewed, proves that duck hunting is a rather expensive hobby. Of these, 36 hunters were members of organized gun clubs, which kept lodging costs and guide fees at a minimum.

Nevertheless, figures showed that it costs a hunter $16.73 to hunt one day, that he kills only 1.72 ducks per day and that each duck costs him $9.72. The figures were compiled by Frank C. Bellrose, associate game specialist, and Clair T. Rollings, refuge manager.

"The above figures do not include any charge for the benefits of a day in the open, the extra value of wild game flavor and the future worth of social or business contacts," says Davis.

He further adds, "The above expense account might be a bad subject to discuss with your wives at this season of the year." Could be.

All in all, the duck hunter seldom gives any thought to the cost of the sport. He loves duck hunting and enjoys the rugged fun that goes with it.

LET'S MEET Frank H. Huseman, the new general manager of the Berwyn Rod and Gun Club at Berwyn, Md. Frank, in 14 years, has broken a quarter of a million clay pigeons for a grand average of 96.10. He has had straight runs of 418, 355 and 336 without a miss. The old "eagle eye" also has had six straight runs of 300 clay targets.

The trophy he treasures most is the chevron inscribed "1920-1930 Shooting Star" which was awarded to the stocky trapshooter by the American Trapshooters Association.

Huseman has the reputation for teaching more trapshooters than anyone in the country. Included in his list of pupils are Helen Jepson, opera singer, and Grover Cleveland Alexander, baseball pitcher. He will act as instructor at the Berwyn Club and his many Washington friends are wishing him the best of luck in his new venture.

The officers of the Berwyn Sporting Club are: S. F. Richards, jr., president; H. L. Gebler, vice president; J. R. Bordas, secretary; E. S. Bonsall, treasurer, and A. McDonald, field captain. Should you care to improve your shooting, the club is open to the public.

SPORT FISHING Institute, a new organization, set up to help in restoration and maintenance of good sport fishing throughout the country, has established offices in the Bond bldg., at Washington, D. C., where John M. Holmes, secretary-treasurer. will have his offices.

The other officers are: A. R. Benson, president; Henry Shakespeake, R. H. Balch and Graham Treadway, vice presidents. More about this fine organization later.

Maryland Park Romps Over Capitol Page Boys

Maryland Park romped to a 46-16 victory over the Capitol Page Boys last night at Maryland Park. It was the second win against one loss for the winners.

Henry Schoen and "Deac" Lare, both of the winners, tied for high scoring honors with eight points apiece.

Georgetown Drops Boxing For Season

Georgetown has suspended boxing for the season, cancelling five scheduled dual matches.

Coach Marty Gallagher said he was afraid his inexperienced boys might get hurt against rugged opponents like Maryland, DePaul and Catholic U.

Other bouts canceled were with American U. and CCNY.

Gallagher, who met the best heavyweights as a pro, said, "Boxing is a sport where it's dangerous to overmatch your boys. It's not like football or basketball where the worst thing that usually happens is being on the short end of a big score.

"In the ring, an inexperienced man easily may suffer serious injury. It wouldn't be right to let these kids take that chance.

Last year, the Hoyas defeated John Carroll, CCNY and American U. and lost to Maryland, 6½-2½, and C. U., 4½-3½.

Heavyweight Ray Larrow has graduated and the football team's Sun Bowl trip kept Gallagher from training a replacement.

In addition, Billy Rose, light-heavy who's a football guard, broke his nose in the Denver game. Bob Charlton, 145-pounder, is out with a calcium deposit in his shoulder.

Gallagher insists boxing isn't dead at the Hilltop. He plans to coach the boys who want to train and hopes to have a representative team next season.

Mercer, Austeri On Wrestle Show

Marvin Mercer and Jim Austeri, after wrestling to a one-hour draw last week, meet again tonight at Turner's Arena in the finals of the junior heavyweight elimination tournament.

In a two-man team match preliminary, Laverne Baxter and Irish Jack Kelly take on Ivan Kamaroff and Steve Gob. In other matches, Pedro Ortego wrestles Harry Finklestein and Mike Kollins tangles with Tony Cosenza.

First bout is at 9 o'clock.

Administration Will Ask Corporation to Operate U. S. Building Cafeterias

The Administration will ask Congress to set up a Federal corporation to operate cafeterias in Government buildings here. The corporation would be under the General Services Administration.

The cafeteria bill sponsored jointly by Senators Johnston (D., S. C.) and Baldwin (R., Conn.) will be supported by the Administration. It is favored over the House measure, which was drafted by the General Accounting Office at the request of Representative Frank Karsten (D., Mo.).

If the bill is approved, the cafeterias operated by Government Services, Inc., as well as those in the Pentagon, Agriculture, and in other Federal buildings here, would be placed under the Government-owned and operated corporation.

LETTER: An applicant for a truck driver job recently wrote the Civil Service Commission: "I have worked seven years with the Army. I have been concerned with driving the lightest vehicle to the heaviest. I have never had a wreck with one nor have I went through a red light. Do I get the job?"

MARITIME: John R. Paull has been promoted to chief of Maritime's important Bureau of Finance. He is chairman of its Price Adjustment Board and will continue to operate it. He will succeed Edward V. Breitenbach, who transferred to the Army. Edward Quill, who served on the price board, has been appointed chief of the accounts division.

NOTES: At Commerce, Secretary Sawyer is holding open house in his office today to wish each of his employes a Merry Christmas . . . The employes of Interior's Bureau of Land Management will make a Christmas present of two steel high-chairs to the crippled children's ward of Gallinger Hospital . . . The bureau also will make cash gifts to its own needy employes from its Penny-A-Week Club. The club was organized 34 years ago. Each BLM employe contributes a penny-a-week to it . . . The Census Bureau has out a booklet for its employes on how to use the telephone.

Jack Adams, the former Columbia Broadcasting System news commentator, will handle public relations for the Military Assistance Program . . . John P. Kane is the director of Public Housing's new regional office in Boston . . . Dr. George B. L. Arner, a top Agriculture economist, is retiring. He has represented the department for the last 12 years on the Interdepartmental Trade Agreements Committee. He is on the staff of the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations . . . The Bureau of Standards' Dr. Herbert F. Schiefer has been chosen the winner of the first Harold DeWitt Smith memorial medal for his outstanding achievement in the science of utilizing textile fibers.

GSA: Jess Larson, administrator of General Services, yesterday made the following key appointments in the agencies under him:

Step to Aid Home Rule Bill Urged On Truman

Congress Pressure Sought by Group To Obtain Vote On D. C. Measure

President Truman was petitioned yesterday to include in his message to Congress next month a request that the House District Committee be discharged from further consideration of the District home rule bill.

The Central Suffrage Conference, in a letter signed by its president, Culver B. Chamberlain, asked the President to support a petition by Representative John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.) to discharge the committee, which tabled the bill during the first session of the Eighty-first Congress.

Acceptance of the petition would "force the measure onto the floor of the House, where it would doubtless be passed, as it was in the Senate," Chamberlain's letter said.

Calls Residents Grateful

The communication added that the "majority of the people of the District of Columbia are deeply grateful to you for your consistent support of elective, representative local self-government in and for the Nation's Capital."

Chamberlain said the President's letter of July 25 to Speaker Sam Rayburn, urging passage of the Senate home rule bill, "set forth your views in forthright and ringing language."

"It is confidently felt," the plea continued, "that such action (support of the Kennedy petition) would go far to insure its early enactment, thus restoring self-government and the democratic American system to the District of Columbia."

Vigorous Campaign

The Central Suffrage Conference, which has campaigned vigorously for local self-government in Washington, has the following officers beside Chamberlain:

Jesse B. Manbeck, secretary; Irving L. Fickling, treasurer; Wilbur S. Finch, first vice president; Sylvia Altman, second vice president; Mrs. Milton Dunn, third vice president, and Woolsey W. Hall, fourth vice president.

Further support for home rule was voiced Monday night by the Young Republicans of the District.

President Kenneth Adams announced the group would back such legislation, after more than 70 members debated the issue at a meeting in the Highlands Apartments, 1914 Connecticut ave. nw.

Spurns Experts

Jury Acquits Postmaster In 10 Minutes

A Federal Court jury in Alexandria yesterday chose to disregard the testimony of two Washington handwriting experts and voted a speedy acquittal of a Virginia postmaster charged with forgery.

The all-male jury deliberated less than 10 minutes before freeing French S. Brawner, 60, postmaster since 1931 at Dumfries, Va., about 25 miles south of Washington.

Brawner was charged with forging the name of Mrs. Albina E. Linkins, formerly of Dumfries, to a Federal income tax refund check for $53.80 intended for her. The charges were vigorously denied by the postmaster.

The Government called as witnesses W. A. Shulenberger, examiner of questionable documents for the Treasury Department, and Albert W. Somerford, head of the identification and detection laboratory of the Postoffice Department.

They testified they had made independent examinations of the check. Both cited similarities they said they had found in Brawner's handwriting and the name Linkins on the check. Each testified that in his opinion Brawner had written the signature of Mrs. Linkins.

Brawner flatly denied the charges on the stand. He said postal inspectors questioned him for more than two hours on November 29 and "tried to force it on me that I did sign the check. I told them I positively did not do it."

Defense Attorney T. Brooke Howard did not call any handwriting experts. However, a number of character witnesses testified for the defense and some of them said they were familiar with Brawner's handwriting and it in no way resembled the forged signature.

George R. Hum[illegible]khous, U. S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia, told the jury that Brawner cashed the check out of his money order funds and sent the check on to the Government accounting office at Richmond.

Subsequently, it was brought out, Brawner was notified by the accounting office that the signature of Mrs. Linkins had been forged.

Because he had added his personal indorsement to the check, Brawner was held civilly liable. He testified he had paid the amount of the check to the accounting office.

FIVE-POINT LANDING—After Santa (Tiny Meeker, local orchestra leader), landed his sled on the roof of Almas Temple yesterday, he could find no chimney. He just had to get to the Shriners' annual Christmas party for underprivileged children. So the Shriners solved the problem with a firemen's net. (Actually, Meeker didn't leap from the roof. A dummy was used.) Thousands of dollars and thousands of toys were distributed

Bandit Attacks, Robs Merchant; 2d Man Beaten

Tongue Slip Traps Youth In Robbery

Whatever else can be said of 18-year-old David Crooks, he's a stickler for accuracy.

If he was bitten on the thumb while snatching a purse, he was bitten on the thumb—not the leg. And he'll say as much to any detective.

Crooks

As a result, Crooks, of 1320 12th st. nw., was held for the grand jury in $10,000 bond yesterday in an arraignment on a single robbery charge before Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott. But because of the slip between the thumb and leg, eight purse-snatching complaints against Crooks will be taken directly to the grand jury.

Crooks was arrested after a four-block chase Monday afternoon by Pvt. Bernard A. Mattingly and Leo Batten, of 526 3d st. nw. George Hudson, 57, who gave his address as the D. C. Hotel, 816 K st. nw., testified at the arraignment that Crooks yoked him of $6.28 Monday afternoon in an alley in rear of 810 5th st. nw.

Hudson said the youth stopped him and asked for a drink. The policeman and Batten, a passerby, took after Crooks. After the arrest, Crooks was taken before a police line-up. Detectives Patrick A. Dennihan and Lloyd B. Furr, interested in Crooks because he had worked in a Northwest section plagued with purse-snatchings, questioned him.

In the course of the session, Dennihan brought up a snatching October 20, when Miss Beatrice Johnson, 27, of 1725 H st. nw., bit the assailant who took her purse containing $13. Dennihan said the purse-snatcher was bitten on the leg.

"Heck," said Crooks, according to the detectives, "it wasn't my leg, it was my thumb!"

He Can Prove It

And Crooks had a scarred thumb to prove it. That confession, police said, led to these others, a total of $156 in purse-snatchings from seven women:

Sarah L. Pole, 60, of 1630 R st. nw., $5 taken near her home December 15; Mary A. Nash, 19, of 1706 R st. nw., $20 taken December 13 in the 1100 block of Connecticut ave. nw.; Isabelle Blake, 1736 22d st. nw., $27 taken December 17 in the 800 block of 22d st. nw.; Louise F. Coleman, 57, of 3208 38th st. nw., $12 taken November 12 in the 3700 block Woodley rd. nw.; Maggie Maxie, 39, of 2110 O st nw., $27 taken December 9 in front of her home; Dorothy Van Zandt, 2131 O st. nw., $30 taken September 30 in front of her residence, and Mabel Krippen, 45, of 300 North Carolina ave. se., $35 taken August 8 in front of 186 L st. nw.

Judge Scott, punning on the defendant's name and habits, commented in court:

"There are too many 'Crooks' in Washington."

Gravedigger's Cash Taken in Taxicab After Pummeling; 3 Suspects Seized

Two men were beaten and robbed by strong-arm thugs last night.

An armed bandit forced a Southeast Washington furniture merchant to the basement of his store, slugged him senseless and escaped with about $100. The victim was Paul Anderson, 40, of 4821 3d st. nw.

Richard P. Owers, 52, described by police as an unemployed grave digger, was beaten and robbed of $84 by three men in a cab, and a few hours later three suspects were arrested.

Anderson was alone in his store, the Anderson Furniture Co., 743 8th st. se., when the bandit entered at about 5:30 p. m.

The thug produced a gun and ordered the merchant to go to the basement. There he slugged him with a blunt object, and rifled his pockets of cash.

When the holdup man fled he slammed a trapdoor shut on the storekeeper. When Anderson finally came to, he staggered upstairs, managed to open the trapdoor and ran into the street.

Two unidentified Marines came to the aid of the dazed and bleeding man, led him back into the store and telephoned police.

Police said blood stains were everywhere when they arrived. In the basement they found a blood-smeared hammer.

Anderson was taken to Casualty Hospital where he was treated for lacerations of the scalp and concussion.

Police broadcast a lookout for "a white man, 30 to 35 years old, 5 feet 8-or-9, wearing a light tan topcoat and no hat—thought to be armed."

Owens, the second victim, who told police his assailants were known to him, said he got into the cab at 11th and E. Capitol sts. at 6:30 p. m. and asked to be driven to 13th and H sts. ne.

Instead, he said, the men drove to the vicinity of Gallinger Hospital, where they beat and robbed him. Owens said the trio finally dumped him into an alley in the rear of the 100 block of 12th st. ne.

Owens, who lives at 909 E. Capitol st., was taken to Casualty Hospital with scalp lacerations.

Hillcrest Group Holds Holiday Party

More than 300 persons, almost half of them eating candy passed out by Santa Claus, attended the Hillcrest Citizens Association's Christmas tree lighting ceremony last night on the lawn of the East Washington Baptist Church, Branch and Alabama aves. se.

Between carols sung by pupils from the Stanton and Anne Beers schools, the Rev. Melvin E. Lederer, minister of Ryland Methodist Church, read a Christmas story.

The Rev. Dr. R. S. Cooper, minister of East Washington Baptist Church, delivered the invocation, and the Rev. Clarence S. Fairbanks, minister of Washington Brethren Church, delivered the benediction.

Central Northwest

Central Northwest Citizens Association last night held its Christmas program in Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, 10th and U sts. nw.

Miss Etta Johnson, retiring recreation director of the school, was presented a $25 check in appreciation of her services to the association over a period of years.

Woolsey Hall, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, and Richard Ware, president of the association, spoke. Madame Lillian Evanti was the featured artist in a musical program.

Petworth

Miss Edith Gates, educational director of the District Tuberculosis Association, told the Petworth Citizens Association last night about the progress made in fighting tuberculosis and outlined plans for the coming year.

The association met at Petworth Branch Library and indorsed a recommendation that high shool cadets be given preference in local competitive examinations for appointments to West Point and Annapolis. It also asked the District Commissioners to install a traffic light at New Hampshire ave. and Upshur st. nw.

Brookland Civic

The Brookland Civic Association last night voted to contribute $35 to the United Citizens Association for Educational Adequacy for District School Children, which is now campaigning to have students at Cardozo transferred to Central High School.

The association also agreed to support organized groups seeking home rule for Washington and announced a program of speakers who will talk about home rule during winter meetings.

The meeting was held in Slowe School, 14th and Jackson sts. ne.

East Central Civic

Members of the East Central Civic Association last night made final plans for a Christmas party for 1000 neighborhood children at 4 p. m. Saturday at Bundy School playground, 429 O st. nw.

Each child will receive a gift, and games and tree-lighting ceremonies are on the program.

The 65 members at the meeting heard an address by the Rev. Arthur F. Elmes, pastor of People's Congregational Church, on the value of civic associations in combating crime and social disease.

Columbia Heights

W. Herbert Gill, commercial manager of the Washington Gas Light Co., discussed the company's proposed gas rate increases last night at the monthly meeting of the Citizens Forum of Columbia Heights in the Bell Vocational High School, Hiatt pl. and Lamont st nw.

Mount Rainier Gets 20-Car Parking Lot

Mount Rainier Town Council last night heartily accepted the offer of Samuel Del Vecchio, president of People's Hardware Stores, to lease to the town for $1 a year his 20-car parking lot at the northwest corner of 34th st. and Bunker Hill rd.

The council forthwith decided to install 20 meters. This, they said, would help solve the Mount Rainier parking problem by speeding up the parking turnover.

And the council, in appreciation of Del Vecchio's offer, named him an honorary, advisory traffic director.

He said he planned to try to encourage owners of adjacent parking lots to make similar offers to the council.

The council also agreed to waive the requirement of a 25-foot setback from the sidewalk line for the new Baptist Church which juts 5 feet over the line in front, 10 in back.

Hearing Set On D. C. Snow Parking Ban

District Commissioners yesterday took official notice of "mounting objection" to their annual winter ban on all-night parking on main streets by ordering a public hearing on the issue. No hearing date was set.

The parking ban on about 80 miles of heavily-traveled streets went into effect December 15 and is scheduled to continue until March 15. It prohibits parking from 2 a. m. to 7 a. m. so streets may be cleared in case of snow.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said the Commissioners decided on a hearing after learning of the growing volume of protests against elimination of all-night parking space.

"We think we're right," said Young. "But it's a question on which reasonable men may well differ. We'll be glad to get other ideas on the subject."

Both Young and George E. Keneipp, director of vehicles and traffic, said they had recommended continuing the 15-year-old policy "reluctantly."

Keneipp said his department could find no other adequate plan to clear the streets after a night snowstorm. He pointed out that most other big cities prohibit all-night parking at any time.

William Xanten, whose Division of Sanitation shovels the snow, favors the parking ban—though it means two more lanes for his men to plow. "The parking ban enables us to plow right up to the curb and prevents formation of ice," he explained.

Public cooperation has been generally good in past years, Xanten said. Police reported very few violations since the ban went into effect last week.

South Capitol Span Opening To Be Jan. 14

The South Capitol st. bridge—with vibrations removed from its draw span—will be opened to motorists on January 14.

Originally scheduled for completion last November, the five million dollar project was delayed because the draw span developed the vibrations about a month ago. Frost and heavy fog have since hindered painting work.

The draw, which swings around to open, is the largest plate girder span in the world. In its first tests, it shook several bolts loose on one of the bearings, Engineer of Bridges H. R. Howser disclosed yesterday.

Howser promptly ordered two 10-foot steel I beams installed as center braces. The braces eliminated the vibrations, Howser said.

The Southeast Council of Citizens Associations has named a committee headed by George L. Gregg to arrange for a brief ceremony on January 14 when the four-lane Anacostia span opens. He said the program will include the usual ribbon-cutting, a motorcade of civic and city officials and a few talks.

Safe With $1000 Resists Thieves; Whisky Stolen

After failing to force the store safe, burglars early yesterday took $720 worth of whisky—15 cases—from the Master Liquor store, 714 K st. nw., Louis Deckelbaum, owner, told police.

Deckelbaum said the 800-pound safe, containing $1000, was moved on a dolly from the front of the store to the rear, where the knob was knocked off.

The burglars got into the store by breaking the bars on a rear door and window.

Police records show that Deckelbaum was held up and robbed of $267 two weeks ago.

Naval Gun Employes Give Party for 600

Naval Gun Factory employes last night transported 600 children of adversity into a thrilling world of Christmas-time joy.

Vaudeville entertainment preceded the climax of the evening in the Departmental Auditorium—a personal visit from Santa Claus.

He was laden with cheer and no less than 5000 gifts for the boys and girls whose homes are the orphanages and similar institutions of the area.

The scrubbed little faces were eager, radiant and responsive as drum majorettes strutted on the stage, a magician conjured up the baffling white rabbit, others sang and danced, and the Marine Band played with gusto.

But observers could not help but notice how well-mannered were the youngsters, who maintained a near-cathedral hush.

That is until St. Nick appeared.

But there were a few sober-faced little ones who, with mixed courage and humility, raised a hesitant hand when he asked if any had not been good. But no matter, there were presents a-plenty to take back in bulging crates in the buses, back to the orphanage or institution, for those who were present last night and those left behind.

Which proved that Santa can find his way most anywhere, with guides like the employes of the Naval Gun Factory who, in the true spirit of the season, think not only of their own. Or to put it another way, who think all are their own.

P. A. Goettelmann Heads Architects' Institute

The Washington-Metropolitan chapter of the American Institute of Architects has elected Paul A. Goettelmann president.

Other officers are Branch D. Elam, vice president; Theodore W. Dominick, secretary; William N. Denton, jr., treasurer; George Graeber 2d, assistant secretary; David N. Yerkes, Joseph Miller, V. T. H. Bien and Harry E. Ormston, directors.

Shoemaker Jury to Get Case Today

A District Court jury of nine women and three men today will begin deliberating the fate of Curtis H. Shoemaker, 41-year-old Times-Herald credit clerk charged with first-degree murder.

Shoemaker killed Francis K. Arnold, a truck driver, with two shots during a fight over a woman in front of Shoemaker's apartment, 2520 14th st. nw., last July 16.

The woman, Mrs. Irene P. Shaffran, 43, of 2606 University pl. nw., and Arnold had joined Shoemaker as the latter was having a beer in a taproom earlier that night. The three later went to Shoemaker's apartment for coffee.

Shoemaker testified he fired in self-defense after Arnold, whom he accused of bulldozing him all evening, attacked him with his fists.

In final arguments to the jury yesterday, Prosecutor Cecil Heflin recited how Shoemaker took his gun from a drawer and followed Arnold outside where the slaying occurred.

"This was premeditation . . . this was murder," Heflin declared.

Defense Attorneys Harry Ahern and William E. McCollam depicted Shoemaker as "a little man having a quiet beer all by himself" when Arnold approached and started, they said, the chain of events that led to the shooting.

Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech will begin his instructions to the jury about 10 a. m. today, following which deliberations will begin.

Msgr. Cartwright at Rotary

The Right Rev. John K. Cartwright, pastor of St. Matthew's Cathedral, will deliver a Christmas message at the weekly Rotary Club luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today at the Mayflower Hotel.

Carol Service Tonight

After Chase

Loot-Loaded Stolen Auto Traps Pair

Two members of a youthful trio were captured in Hyattsville early yesterday after a chase in which they abandoned a stolen car containing loot from two gas station burglaries.

Hyattsville police identified the two as Walter Francis Williams, jr., 18, of 1816 Eye st. nw., and Charles Francis Carpenter, 19, of 2021 Benning rd. ne.

Sergt. Robert A. Baker and Pvt. S. E. Dennis, of the Hyattsville force, said they noticed a car piled with suspicious looking material pass them at Queen's Chapel rd. and Hamilton st., West Hyattsville. Three youths were in the car.

Giving chase, they found the car abandoned at 37th and Jefferson sts. One boy was found on Hamilton st., the second in the third floor of a nearby apartment house.

The loot in the can included eight auto tires, an inner tube and an electric drill, stolen from the G. D. Armstrong garage, Laytonsville, and 49 quarts of oil stolen from the Carl Hurlebaus Service Station, Sunshine, Md. Hurlebaus is a Montgomery County policeman.

Montgomery County police charged Williams and Carpenter with housebreaking and larceny. Hyattsville police placed detainers against them for turning off lights to avoid arrest and unauthorized use of an auto.

Fire did $3000 damage yesterday to half of a two-family home in a Government-owned housing project at 24 Stoddert pl. se.

Mrs. Francis C. Sheffer, 37, mother of eight, told police the blaze started in a ground-floor bedroom closet, raced up a stairwell and did extensive damage to two attic bedrooms.

Fire Department officials said the fire started in the ground-floor bedroom itself, from an electric heater, which was discovered plugged in and still burning after the flames had been extinguished.

Mrs. Sheffer was feeding her year-old daughter when she smelled smoke, she told police. She rushed to the bedroom, found her 4-year-old daughter playing there, opened the closet door and discovered the flames, she told police. She grabbed her two children and rushed to the adjoining home of her neighbor, Mrs. Alva D. Holley, who called firemen. The Holley half of the house was undamaged except for an attic wall next to the Sheffer attic.

Police said only three of her eight children were living with her yesterday. Four others in orphanages, they said, are expected home for Christmas, and one is living with grandparents.

The inside of the attic was almost entirely burned. Fire damage on the first floor was confined to one bedroom, the stairs, two ceilings, a bed and a television set. Most of the ground floor was soaked with water.

Conant Accepts Post On Hoover Report Unit

President James B. Conant of Harvard University, yesterday was named honorary chairman of the schools and universities committee of the citizens committee for the Hoover report.

In accepting the appointment, Dr. Conant said it is important that college students discuss fully the work done by former President Herbert Hoover's commission on reorganization of the executive branch of the Government.

Johnson's Office Again Rules Press Heads of Services

By The Associated Press

The Defense Department changed its mind again yesterday and said Secretary Johnson's public information office would continue to retain control over news put out by the three armed forces.

A directive issued last Friday night appointed three deputy press directors for the Army, Navy and Air Force and said each would be under the direction of his own department. Before that all information issued by the services had to have approval by Johnson's public relations staff. The new directive was interpreted as a decentralizing move.

Yesterday the directive was canceled by William Frye, public information director for the Defense Department, over whose signature the Friday directive appeared. It was explained that Deputy Defense Secretary Stephen Early felt the intent of the directive was misinterpreted.

Cafeterias Vs. Classrooms Stir County Fuss, Cafeterias Win

The issue, cafeterias or classrooms, caused tempers to flare yesterday at a meeting of the Prince Georges County Commissioners before members voted 2 to 1 in favor of the lunchrooms.

G. Gardner Shugart, superintendent of county schools, appeared to ask the commissioners to return the cafeterias to the plans for four proposed high schools in view of low bids received for the projects.

He said the county could build the schools, install the cafeterias and still have a million dollars left for other school needs.

But Commissioner John H. Beall said the board had committed itself last March to a policy of classrooms first. He said reports showed that 208 classrooms will be needed even after the current eight-million-dollar building program is completed.

Shugart then argued the 208 figure was based on an ideal situation of 30 students to a classroom which, he said, "does not have to be attained immediately." Beall replied: "I feel we should stick to what we decided last March . . . build classrooms first."

Commissioner T. Hammond Welsh took up the argument, saying the county was on the "spot" in wanting to provide cafeterias and adequate classrooms and at the same time keep the tax rate down.

He favored the cafeteria plan, however, and moved that the commissioners adopt a resolution returning them to school plans. When no one seconded the motion, Harry W. McNamee, president of the board, handed the gavel to Commissioner Norman Collins, and seconded the motion himself.

Welsh and McNamee voted "aye" and Beall voted "no." Collins, in the chair and not voting, declared the motion adopted.

After the vote, Beall told McNamee that he (McNamee) was elected to represent the interests of the taxpayers.

"Yes," replied McNamee, "and I also represent the school children."

The four high schools now to have cafeterias will be located in Suitland, Bladensburg, Hyattsville and Fairmount Heights. Cost of adding the cafeterias will total about $450,000.

The commissioners also voted to reverse their former stand opposing construction of a wharf on Broad Creek near Silesia and to write to the Army Engineers stating they have no objection. More than 14 residents of the area had written them announcing approval of the plan.

Ismael Merat, Ex-Minister Of Iran, Dies

Ismael Merat, 54, cultural counselor of the Iranian Embassy here, died Sunday night at Georgetown University Hospital.

Mr. Merat died of a cerebral hemorrhage. He has been ill two weeks.

A leading Iranian educator, he had been in charge of Iranian students since coming to this country four months ago. He lived at the Alban Towers Apartments, 3700 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Hussein Ala, Iranian Ambassador, called here from New York yesterday on behalf of the Shah of Iran to express his personal regrets to Mr. Merat's widow, Mrs. Radjihe Merat.

Mr. Merat was a former Iranian Minister of Education and of Health. He helped introduce important reforms in Iranian educational methods.

Born in Tehran, the son of the late Merat-Olmamalik Moussa Merat, a member of the Iranian Parliament for many years, Mr. Merat was educated at the Ecole Normale de Paris in Paris, France.

Besides his widow, Mr. Merat is survived by four sons, Parvis Merat, Khosrow Merat, Fareidoon Merat and Farrokh Merat, and a daughter, Parvin Merat.

Services will be held at 11 a. m. Friday at the Robert A. Pumphrey Funeral Home, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda. Burial will be in Iran.

Mrs. Alfred H. Anadale Dies; Sister of Theatrical Lackayes

Mrs. Genevieve M. Anadale, 79, whose late sister and two brothers gained fame in the theater under the name of Lackaye, died of a cerebral hemorrhage last night at her home, 9006 1st ave., Silver Spring.

A lifelong resident of Greater Washington, Mrs. Anadale's maiden name was Lackey. Her brothers, Wilton and James, and her sister, Helene, used the different spelling during their acting careers.

Mrs. Anadale was married to Alfred H. Anadale, who was chief inspector with the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission in Montgomery County before his death in 1944. He built the house on 1st ave. in Silver Spring 21 years ago, after the family had lived at Seward sq. and on A st. se. in the District.

Her sister, Helene, who died in 1940, taught dramatics at the Summit Country Day School in Cincinnati after her stage career, which included performances in "Bluebird," "Bought and Paid For" and "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

Wilton Lackaye, who died in 1932, played the original role of Svengali in "Trilby." James, her other brother, was a comedian.

Mrs. Anadale studied at Notre Dame Academy here and taught music at various parochial schools while organist at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, 10th and G sts. nw. She was a member of St. Gertrude's Guild, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Master Plumbers Association, and of the Catholic Daughters of Forest Glen, Md.

She leaves a son, John A. Anadale, of the 1st ave. address; three daughters, Mrs. James M. Barrett, 3537 Kanawha st. nw.; Mrs. Gladys M. Baggett, 4921 Georgia ave. nw., and Mrs. Helene L. Trundle, 4800 Nebraska ave. nw.; 13 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Trial Board Gets 'Cuffing' Charge Against Officer

The District Commissioners yesterday referred to the Police Trial Board a complaint that a policeman struck a man arrested on a traffic charge October 18.

The complaint was lodged against Pvt. Thomas W. Oldham of the Fourteenth Precinct by Frank R. Christian, 31, 1426 Rock Creek Ford rd. nw., who said he was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for a ruptured left eardrum.

In a statement to the precinct captain, Oldham said Christian had been "belligerent." He said he grabbed Christian by the belt and forced him back to the chair, but did not strike him.

The United States Attorney's office decided after a hearing that there was insufficient evidence for criminal prosecution. However, the Complaint Review Board of the Police Department unanimously recommended the case be referred to the Police Trial Board for a hearing.

Dr. Alvin Johnson, Educator, Will Be Honor Guest

Dr. Alvin Johnson, president emeritus of the New School for Social Research in New York City, will be honored on his seventy-fifth birthday today at a reception at the home of Mrs. Gifford Pinchot.

After the reception Dr. Johnson will outline the ambitions and accomplishments of the New School that provides study and research facilities for graduate students.

The New School, established in 1919, has developed from an institution with a dozen teachers and 250 students to one with 300 teachers and 8000 students. Dr. Johnson, an economist, was named to its first board of directors.

11 p. m. Lights Out Puts the Damper On Civic Group

Montgomery County Civic Federation yesterday began a quest for a meeting place where curfew is not sounded by a janitor at 11 p. m.

At the Bethesda Elementary School where the group has been meeting, the janitor, in effect, has ruled lights out by 11 p. m. On December 12, he cut off civic debate with a flick of a switch.

Last Monday the federation fortunately had few matters of great moment to thrash out. So the members made a graceful exit, a half-hour before curfew.

"But in the future, we simply cannot guarantee to wind up all discussions by 11 p. m.," Herbert N. Eaton, president, said. "So we're looking around for a new meeting place."

Capitol Heights Man Is Critically Wounded

A Capitol Heights (Md.) man was admitted to Prince Georges General Hospital last night with a gunshot wound just below his heart. His condition was critical.

Identified as William Zinke, 5902 F st., he told hospital officials he shot himself with his .38-caliber automatic at his home. County police were unable to question him while surgeons worked to save his life.

George R. Temes

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. today for George Richard Temes, 35, of 3533 E. Capitol st., civilian fireman at the Naval Air Station in Anacostia and a World War II Navy veteran.

A member of Fort Dupont Lodge, FAAM, Mr. Temes died Sunday at his home after a brief illness. Services will be in the Chambers funeral home at 517 11th st. se., with burial in Arlington Cemetery. Mr. Temes leaves his wife, Mrs. Leone M. Temes.

Services Set Here Today For T. J. Hurd

Graveside funeral services for Thomas J. Hurd, 73, retired Navy lieutenant and former District resident for 25 years, will be held today at 11 a.m. in Arlington Cemetery.

Lieut. Hurd

Lieutenant Hurd died Saturday at Lynn Haven, Fla., where he had lived since 1926, and was mayor for several years. He was a real estate salesman in Washington for Sandoz, Inc., for four years after retiring from the Navy in 1932.

He entered the Navy at the age of 14 and saw action at Vera Cruz, Mexico, in 1914. During World War I he was stationed here, expediting the movement of large guns for battleships.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Dorothy Hurd of Lynn Haven; a daughter, Mrs. Margery West, 5435 Connecticut ave. nw., and a son, Thomas J. Hurd, jr., 532 20th st. nw.

Moe Samet

Funeral services for Moe Samet, 59, manager of United Retail Cleaners, will be held at 3 p. m. today at Danzansky's funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw. Burial will be in District of Columbia Lodge Cemetery.

Mr. Samet died Monday at his home, 802 Decatur st. nw. He had been ill two months.

A native of New York, Mr. Samet came to Washington 10 years ago. He formerly was president of Howard Cleaners and manager of Blue Banner Laundry and Cleaners. He owned a cleaning establishment in New York.

He was a member of the Federal Masonic Lodge, No. 1, and District of Columbia Lodge.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mollie Samet; three daughters, Mrs. Irving Pittleman, 5013 7th st. nw.; Mrs. Joseph Carpel, Baltimore, and Mrs. Ben Tegan, New York, and his mother, Mrs. Rachel Samet, New York.

Also surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Sedell Lewis, Mrs. Thelma Halpern, Mrs. Lillian Reisner and Mrs. Jeanette Wechsler, and two brothers, Charles Samet and Irving Samet, all of New York.

Miss Mary M. Sullivan

Miss Mary M. Sullivan, 84, of 9105 Fairview rd., Silver Spring, Md., a Washington area resident more than 60 years, died yesterday at Washington Sanitarium, Takoma Park, after nine weeks illness.

Born in County Limerick, Ireland, she settled in Washington as a young girl. She had lived in Silver Spring eight years with her sister, Mrs. Ellen Horan.

A requiem mass will be said Friday at 9 a. m. at St. Michael's Church. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

In Memoriam

JONES, CARL J. In memory of our son, CARL J. JONES, died December 21, 1948. Just one year ago today.
How much we miss you, you must know,
Without these words to tell you so;
But we can't let the day go by
Without remembering with a sigh.
It's the saddest day of all the year,
The day God came and took you, dear.

A PRESIDENT'S WIDOW—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, greets Miss Marjorie Munthe Morgenstierne, and her father, the Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Munthe Morgenstierne at the tea yesterday at the Norwegian Embassy, at which Miss Munthe Morgenstierne made her debut. Later the debutante attended the Brazilian Embassy ball.

Harris & Ewing

IN WHITE TULLE and pale pink, Miss Sylvia Nabuco, niece of the Brazilian Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco, was presented to society last evening at a ball at the Brazilian Embassy. Miss Nabuco is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jose Nabuco, here from Rio for the occasion. She's a student at Georgetown Visitation Junior College.

After the Ball Is Over, Sleepy Debs Dream of Two Brilliant Parties

By Marie McNair

LOTS of tired little dancing slippers are resting under beds this morning. Lots of little debutantes are still dreaming happily of yesterday. First, of the Norwegian Embassy tea at which the dean of the diplomatic corps, Norway's Ambassador Wilhelm Munthe Morgenstierne, and Mme. Munthe Morgenstierne presented their daughter, Marjorie, to society. Then of the ball given by the Brazilian Ambassador, Mauricio Nabuco, at the Brazilian Embassy, to introduce his niece, Sylvia Nabuco—one of the gayest parties of the year.

The two girls—Marjorie, who is tall and blonde, and Sylvia, a tiny thing with black hair and eyes—attended each other's parties. And at both fetes there were young people and those not so young any more.

Flowers Everywhere Decorate the Embassy

Flowers sent to the debutante on this important day almost outnumbered the guests. Everywhere at the Norwegian Embassy were great masses of white chrysanthemums and carnations and red roses—bouquets on the tables and the mantels, down the stairway.

Miss Munthe Morgenstierne carried a round old-fashioned bouquet of white carnations and gardenias Herdebut grown of silver and white brocade was made with broad shoulder straps, a slim bodice and a sweeping skirt which touched the floor. Mme. Munthe Morgenstierne's gown, which suited her to perfection, was of black net with a pointed panel of lace over full pale orchid satin. A purple orchid was pinned to the decolletage.

Members of the Diplomatic Corps, the Supreme Court, the Cabinet and shoals of personal friends of the hosts were guests at the Norwegian embassy tea.

Friends of Hostess Serve Tea, Coffee

Mme. Bonnet, in deep wine red taffeta, poured coffee. Mme. Boheman, wife of the Swedish Ambassador, was at the opposite end of the tea table busy with tea. Mme. de Kauffmann in sleek black took her turn at the silver service. So did Mme. Thors, wife of the Icelandic Minister; Mrs. Gillard Tydings, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Joseph Davies, Mrs. George Thorpe, whose black frock and hat were accented with ciel blue; Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mme. Nygaard, wife of the Counselor of the Norwegian Embassy, and Mrs. Scott Hansen, who wore a deep-cut black gown and wee black hat.

Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Secretary of State, seemed unaware of the conversational din that surrounded her as she sipped her tea in the corner.

Nabucos Attend Before Own Party

Justice Harold Burton was accompanied by Mrs. Burton, and Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, brought the Ambassador's sister, Miss J. M. Franks. With the Brazilian Ambassador, Maurice Nabucco, was his sister, Miss Caroline Nabuco, and his debutante niece.

Miss Rosa Ponselle, over from Baltimore, carried half a dozen scarlet carnations in her hand, a bright accent to her black costume. Mrs. Eldridge Jordan wore her favorite white carnations, and a white feather cap topped Mrs. Kent Legare's rustling black silk gown.

Celebrities Sprinkled Through the Crowd

Through the crowd I glimpsed the Netherlands Ambassador, Eelco van Kleffens; the former Austrian Minister, Edgar Prochnik; Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador, and Mme. Diamantopoulos, widow of a Greek Ambassador.

Lady Lewis and Mrs. Emory Land talked together; Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip and Gen. Conger Pratt were in a group, and Bishop Angus Dun made his way quietly through the throng.

Debutante Also Honored at Dinner

Before Miss Nabuco's brilliant debut ball last evening, she was also honor guest at a dinner given by former United States Minister to Switzerland and Mrs. Leland Harrison who entertained 20 young people.

But by 10 o'clock Sidney and his orchestra had struck up their first tune at the Brazilian Embassy party, the members of the receiving line had taken their places in the drawing room and early guests were making their way up the winding marble stairway.

The debutante was lovely in a drift of white tulle from the atelier of Jeanne LaFaurie of Paris. The full skirt was horizontally pleated and short puffed sleeves covered her shoulders. Pale pink roses were tucked in at the waistline and pale pink satin gloves completed the charming picture.

Parents Come Up For Daughter's Fete

Mr. and Mrs. Jose Nabuco are here from Rio for their daughter's debut. They are guests at the embassy, and last night Mrs. Nabuco was in the line, wearing a gown of stiff gray-blue satin and an interesting Indian necklace of diamonds and emeralds.

Miss Carolina Nabuco, sister of the Ambassador and his hostess, and Mrs. Carlos Guinle of New York and Rio, here with Mr. Guinle for the party, were among those greeting the guests. Also in the line was Mrs. de Mello-Franco, aunt of the debutante and wife of the Brazilian Embassy's Minister-Counselor. Miss Nabuco was handsome in a black tulle gown embroidered in tiny black beads.

Miss Morgenstierne had come from her own party in her debut frock. Debutante Frederica Sterling, whirling about the floor in a bouffant champagne tulle frock, had come from Mrs. Borden Harriman's dinner in her honor.

Davies Attend With Dinner Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies were there with their dinner guests.

Miss Betsy Lewis, debutante daughter of the Fulton Lewises, wore a strapless white tulle frock threaded in gold. She also entertained at dinner beforehand, with Carol Exnicios, debutante daughter of Marshall Exnicios, and her post-deb sister, Miss Joan Exnicios, among her guests.

The Swedish Ambassador and Mme. Boheman were among those there from the diplomatic circle, arriving with Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Ellis who had entertained at dinner before the ball. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bell Sweeney also had guests for dinner. So did Mr. and Mrs. George Y. Wheeler 2d. And returning to town just in time for the party was Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, long-time friend of the Nabuco family.

Luncheon Fetes Mrs. Steelman; Dr. and Mrs. Cullen Entertain

Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward entertained yesterday at a luncheon party at the Sulgrave Club honoring Mrs. John Steelman, wife of the Assistant to the President. Ranking guests were Senora de Thomen, wife of the Dominican Ambassador, and Lady Berendsen, wife of the New Zealand Ambassador.

Other guests included Mme. Mica Trbojevic, Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, Mrs. Harold Burton, Mme. Economou-Gouras, Mrs. Clark Woodward, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. Robert Freer, Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Rachel Wahl, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. William Pope Anderson 3d, Mrs. McCeney Werlich and Mrs. Alva Brewer.

One of a series of cocktail parties was given yesterday by Dr. and Mrs. John Cullen at the Washington Club. Nearly 130 attended between the hours of 6 and 8 p. m. There were Christmas decorations in the drawing room and a bouquet of red and white roses centered the tea table.

Mrs. Auguste Boas, Mrs. Frederick Ramsey and Mrs. James Macpherson assisted Mrs. Cullen throughout the receiving hours, and those who presided at the tea table were Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Charles Crawford, Mrs. Clyde Garrett, Mrs. James Boyd, Mrs. Samuel Alexander, Mrs. Edgar Quayle, Mrs. P. J. J. Nicholaides and Mrs. James Horton.

Miss de Kauffmann To Bow Dec. 27

Miss Lisa de Kauffmann, daughter of the Danish Ambassador and Mme. de Kauffmann, will make her debut on December 27 at a dinner party given by her grandmother, Mrs. William Dugald MacDougall.

The dinner will also honor Miss Margaret Harper Glenn, daughter of the Rev. C. Leslie Glenn.

Mary Haworth's Mail

As Christmas Nears, Woman Is Concerned About Husband's Indulgence In Whoopla Kissing At Staff Parties That Exclude Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I know from my own working days that office parties are fun and can have continued good effect on working relations long after the party is over. And I feel, too, that when married and single persons work together, office parties are less formal and more fun without the wives or boy friends.

But now that Christmas is almost here, and with it the good old Christmas spirit, I'd like to have your opinion as to just how much Christmas sentiment a married man should share with girl employes. Is it correct or respectable, or does it come under the heading of Christmas spirit, to kiss coworkers?

I have heard that other wives worry about kissing at office parties as much as I do; and those of us whose husbands are the conservative introvert type feel particularly that we don't know what to do about it. I believe that married men who indulge in such juvenile nonsense just to be "good sports" actually lose standing in the eyes of the others. And the poor single working girls can't really be that desperate for romance!

Wife Isn't Sure She's Justified

I DON'T WANT my husband to think I'm jealous, but I can't help wondering why go around kissing at Christmas the very persons he has treated so matter of factly, and even condescendingly, all the year? Maybe it's taking the whole thing too seriously, but I don't see why anyone would want to kiss a person of opposite sex, unless there is definite romantic intent. A kiss should be meaningful, or why bother? And if our husbands invest such kissing with meaning, aren't they cheating?

I haven't said these things to my husband because I don't want him to think I begrudge him his fun, nor do I want his fellow workers to think I wait up with a rolling pin,—and I am not sure that my attitude is fair from his viewpoint. But I do feel that his actions once a year are most unbecoming to a husband and father. May I have your opinion, please. P. S.: It's the girls, not the employers, who sponsor his office parties. V. L.

What's the Basis for Her Anxiety?

DEAR V. L.: Instead of beating around the bush, talking vaguely in terms of general principles and other married men besides your husband, why not come to grips with your specific anxiety, to see what's back of it.

Admit that you are jealous; then ask yourself why, what do you fear? Or maybe it were closer to the mark to ask yourself whom do you fear; and again, why?

It occurs to me that your anxiety consists in two parts: 1. Anxiety that derives from your memories of office parties you attended as a single working girl, where you may have indulged in kisses that amounted to "cheating" (per your definition) with some other women's husbands, all in the name of Christmas spirit. 2. Jealous distrust of your husband's interest in some particular girl coworker, possibly intensified by a feeling that he's not wild about you any more.

Not Pagan Festival

YOU INDICATE that wives aren't included in the staff parties your husband attends; and then you go on to deplore his actions at these soirees as "most unbecoming" to a married man. But if you aren't present to witness his behavior, how do you know he forfeits dignity? If he misbehaves, it seems unlikely that he or fellow guests would report the fact to you,—so aren't you voicing an anxious assumption, rather than a provable charge?

However, for the sake of discussion, let's allow the possibility that he comes home tipsy and smudged with various shades of lipstick after office parties. If such is the case, he is giving you cause to feel chagrined and you should tell him frankly that his playing faun with the office help is outside the limits of your natural tolerance, the more especially when it's indulged behind your back.

Also (if that's the story) it would be well to remind him soundly that pagan carousal isn't Christmas spirit, but just the opposite, so please discard that excuse and stop acting foolish. M. H.

JOLLY TIME FOR YOUR HOLIDAY FUN ALWAYS POPS JOLLY TIME POP CORN

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Have you ever thought of giving a little more of yourself at Christmas?

That sounds like a rather strange question, yet it's an important one, particularly during those days when everyone is so busy doing things. Our tradition calls for an elaborate dinner on Christmas Day. Often there are relatives and friends invited in. The house has been given a thorough cleaning. There are church activities to which one must give attention, presents to buy and a thousand and one other things to do.

Most children are hungry for the companionship of their parents. They wiuld rather have mother and dad spend some time playing and talking with them than to have so many presents with which parents sometimes hope they will keep themselves out of mischief. A simpler meal that permits mother to have some time to play a game or two and less concern for cleaning up so that the family may go on a walk together are among ways in which parents can "give themselves."

A Thought for Today:

Santa Would Get Eyestrain If He Had to Peruse All The Greetings He Inspires

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

EACH succeeding year the Christmas card contagion spreads until by now it has become a major holiday hazard. The problem falls into four parts: (1) finding time to open envelopes. (2) ditto to admire their artistic merit. (3) where, oh, where to park them in a small house. (4) what to do with the handsomer gems once New Year's is past.

This department solves all four with considerable efficiency—so we'll pass the solution along. (1) By hunching shoulder and bending head, the telephone receiver can be firmly fixed, thus freeing hands for envelope-opening during protracted conversations. (2) By laying each batch flat on the dining room table after opening, they can be admired during telephoning, while spooning out grapefruit or, if one is unusually bifocal, while perusing political columnists or Donald Duck. (3) By the device of spreading the opened cards over every table and mantel they can be displayed as objets d'art and at the same time serve as labor savers—thus avoiding all necessary of dusting during the Christmas season. (4) By stacking the most meritorious on a lower shelf, in a drawer, or behind books, they can be saved until the following Christmas, then consigned to the ashcan.

Obviously, judging by results, some people have a tough time choosing greeting cards. But it's a snap for all high Washington officials. All they have to do is have a card engraved with appropriate sentiments, then top it with the seal or private flag of their office. The Snyders, for instance, use the Treasury's seal featuring scales and a jumbo key; the "Sonny" Whitneys, head their blue bordered with the four star blue and white Undersecretary of Commerce's flag.

Diplomats Have It Easy

FOREIGN Ambassadors have it easy, too. The Bonnets' double leaf card has large blue and gold letters, RF, on its cover, while Brazil's Nabuco puts a snapshot of the embassy on his. From overseas, the David Bruces send a picture of the American embassy taken from behind a Place de la Concorde fountain; the Ed Crockers are photographed on the balcony of the Embassy in far off Bagdad; the Tommy Stones (he, Canadian Minister to Sweden) send a pen-and-ink drawing of beautiful Stockholm.

Among all the Merry Christmases and Happy New Years, some go to amusing ends in achieving originality. Take, the Syd Shaletts. They're photographed with only legs and hands showing. The remainder of their anatomies are covered with blown-up covers of books and articles they authored during the year. India and Herbert Edwards send a reprint from President Truman's Inaugural Address on "The Faith of the American People." Ray Everett, the Cosmos Club poet, has his Christmas Carol, "Jesu Bambino," printed on a green folder. Our New York bank sends a handsomely gotten-up folder explaining why "In God We Trust' replaced "Mind your Business" on all American coins.

Most ingenious were Hugo Gouthier's tropical job with a scarlet-blue macaw seated on a perch that really quivers; Sam Pearl's (of the W. Post) Chinese card, its dragon-lantern cut out to show a tiny sampan and coolie embroidered on gauzy cloth.

Luscious Lucius Takes the Cake

LUCIUS BEEBE'S effort was the funniest—a cartoon of his own private railroad car, with luscious Lucius on the rear platform in top hat and cigar; old fashioned engine up front, and sandwiched between the two, a flat car stacked with cases of caviar, champagne, rye and a few tubbed palm trees. All this is titled "Over the meadows and through the woods, to grandmother's house we go."

Most incongruous card was dietist Ida Jean Kain's, which showed five VERY FAT Santas ice skating. Most touching, from Lazar Radirojenich, the chief of a D. P. camp in Austria. Most personally appealing, the Noel Macys' siesta-ing Santa, guarded by a blue horned, pink reindeer; the "Gil" Ervins' pickaninny-ridden pink giraffe, wishing us more "exotic" travels.

PEARLS, acclaimed as the jewels of the year, can add the final festive touch to your holiday party attire. Shown here are a few of the designs in costume jewelry executed by Jacques Fath, the French designer who created the vogue for the breast-plate necklace a year or so ago. He has done this ensemble of pearl finery in the Queens Lace design. Tiny loops of small pearls entwined around a collar of larger ones form the pattern for the necklace, with matching bracelet and earrings. Available at Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Last Call for Santa—Nylon Pajamas Best

A perfect present for this mid-century year is our twentieth century miracle—nylon—in sleeping pajamas for either men or women. These are the latest in the long line of nylon intimate wear and have only appeared sparingly in the shops in the last fortnight in time for Christmas giving.

You know there's a definite fashion revival of sleeping pajamas for women again, along with all the other smart new "she-pants."

So here's a Merry Nylon Christmas to both Mr. and Mrs.!

MRS. EDWIN FURBER IRISH
. . . married last evening

Miss Marjorie Elizabeth Birdsall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Henry Birdsall of Washington, was married last evening at St. Albans Church to Edwin Furber Irish, son of Mrs. Miriam Irish of Wolfeboro, N. H., and Col. Robert J. Irish of Arlington, Va.

The Rev. Malcolm Marshall performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. E. Felix Kloman, and Mr. Birdsall gave his daughter in marriage. She wore white satin embroidered with seed pearls and carried a white orchid and lilies of the valley with her prayer book.

Miss Kathryn Irish of Wolfeboro was maid of honor for her sister-in-law.

Following the reception at the Shoreham Hotel the newlyweds left for their Florida honeymoon. They will be at home in Richmond, Va., where the bridegroom is a student at the Medical College of Virginia.

He is a graduate of Manlius Military School in New York and American University. Mrs. Irish attended the University of North Carolina, American University, was graduated from Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C.

Ask Anne About Novel Christmas Decoration

Have followed instructions for a Christmas decoration made with moth balls, etc., with no satisfactory results. Used the moth crystals and they remain at the top of the bowl and showed no action at all! Can you help me? M. I. D.

No one has ever accused me of being a chemist—but here is what seems to happen when the ingredients are combined in this decoration.

Gas bubbles are developed in the water from the action of the acid and soda. These bubbles attach themselves to the moth balls and when there are a sufficient number, the ball rises to the top of the liquid. Once on the top, the bubbles are broken and the ball falls again to the bottom.

Since the action seems dependent upon the formation of gas, it is most important that the right amount of acid and soda is used to form the most gas. It seems to take exactly the same amount of soda and acid, but how much of each you use depends upon the amount of water in the container. For a quart of water, one level teaspoon of each should do the trick. Don't be dismayed if the action does not start immediately—let it stand for a few minutes If after 5 to 10 minutes, there is no movement, put in more acid and soda—the same amount of each.

As for the moth crystals (as opposed to moth balls)—I didn't have success with those either. I wish someone who has produced a blizzard thusly would let us in on the secret so we will be all set for next year.

One other thing, best results seem to be obtained by using a jar which has a top as large as the bottom—otherwise the balls don't get to the very top to discharge their load of gas.

Just one final suggestion to show you how very scientific we can get—the only thing we found which would stick the candles, trees and other decorations to the bottom of the jar, and keep them there, was a wad of chewing gum!

Could you give a novice the details on the Christmas flaming pudding? What type of pudding is best for this purpose; what alcoholic liquid is best and what others could be used as substitutes? How long before serving should it be poured, sprinkled or dropped onto the pudding; how much of the liquid is used and does it cease burning by itself? C. S. G.

A plum pudding is usually used for a flaming pudding. A liquor which is high in alcohol content is used, such as brandy or rum. A wine glass or so of the liquor is poured onto the pudding just before serving and it is lighted immediately before the liquor soaks into the pudding. It ceases burning when all the brandy or rum has been burned.

My children have been coaxing me to make and decorate Christmas cookies for them, but I hesitate to begin because I have always had difficulty getting the mixture used in decorating to come out the right consistency. Have you a recipe I might use to solve this problem? Would you recommend a cloth pastry bag or aluminum tube with a push type handle? Any tips you have would be greatly appreciated by all of us. R. T.

Sunday, December 11 we printed a recipe for decorative icing, but since busy days now do not doubtless leave you time to hunt through back issues for it, we are glad to reprint it.

Butter Frosting

¼ cup butter or oleomargarine
2 cups confectioner's sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla dash salt
3 tablespoons cream.

Cream butter until soft, gradually stir in 1 cup sugar; then vanilla and salt. Add remaining sugar alternately with cream, beating until smooth after each addition, adding enough cream for proper consistency to spread.

This recipe makes good decorative frosting, for if it becomes stiff on standing (while you frost) it can be easily thinned by adding a bit more cream.

Either a bag or aluminum tube can be used for decorating, but be sure to use a small tip so that your decorative touches are not too large. Or, you could use a sheet of waxed paper—folded several times for extra strength and rolled into a cone for the decoration tube. Roll it so the the pointed end is almost closed and then when you are ready to use it, nip off the point to give it a hole which is big enough. Don't make the hole too big, for it opens a bit more when pressure is put onto the frosting. Drop the cone into the top of a milk bottle to hold while filling it with frosting. Fill only about two-thirds full and fold the top down tightly so there is no opening. Force the icing through the bottom by pressing.

Using the paper tube is convenient if you wish to use several different colors of icing. You can prepare all at the start, using as needed. If the frosting in the tube gets too soft from heat from the hand, place in the refrigerator a bit.

For variety, use colored sugar, silver and colored decorettes on your cookies in addition to colored icing. Christmas trees are lovely with green icing sprinkled with tiny multi-colored decorettes to resemble the decorations on a tree. Bells could be frosted with palest blue icing, using silver decoreats for the clapper. Wreathes can be made by using a doughnut cutter, frosting them green and placing tiny red cinnamon candies on them for holly berries. Santa should be frosted red, of course, and using your tube, place white beard and "fur" trimmings on his suit.

Let your children help you with your cookie frosting. Set out the frosting and the decorettes on a newspaper covered dining table so they will have plenty of room and let their fancy guide them. The result will be a lot of fun for all of you, plus some mighty colorful cookies!

Wine, Women and Wassail at Belle Haven Fete

By Genevieve Reynolds

SOME 300 members of the Belle Haven Women's Club and their guests staged a gala Yuletide party last night in authentic sixteenth century English tradition. The festive event, held at the Belle Haven Country Club, was centered around the club's wassail bowl celebration.

Minstrels, accompanied by a group of mummers, were presided over by the Lords of Misrule, portrayed by Wing Capt. J. E. McDonald, RAF, and William E. Braithwaite. Shortly after the arrival of the minstrels and mummers, the Yule log was brought in with ceremony and merriment.

Following the singing of Christmas carols, a trumpeter led a procession of servants who brought in the boar's head on a pewter platter. Accompanying them were the candle bearers carrying seven branch lighted pewter candelabra. After the traditional flaming plum pudding came the steaming hot wassail prepared by Mrs. James R. Coxen and Mrs. William E. Hulfish, vice president of the women's club. Mrs. Peter Grotton, whose husband is in the British Navy, served a huge fruit cake which she made and decorated with an old English scene. Then there were flaming, brandied raisins and home-made ginger cookies. Climaxing the Merrie Olde English celebration was the Roger de Coverly dance, similar to our Virginia reel.

Greeting the guests were Mrs. Arthur T. Androus, club president; Mrs. A. N. Taylor and Mrs. Coxen.

OLD FASHIONED CANDY—Remember the old-fashioned Christmas "Clear Toys"? This little reindeer is one of them—a 1949, made-in-Washington version. "Clear Toys" are hard, clear candy animals, Santas, and other Yule symbols. In the old days, they were found in every stocking on Christmas Day in the morning.

This year, a local candy company has started making them again, after much trouble in locating molds. They finally had them made to order—patterned after 100-year-old molds—by an Oxon Hill, Md., foundry. Mrs. Addie Sullivan Vandegrift, 70, longtime candy maker, presides over the delicate art of molding them for the company.

The "Clear Toys" are bright red, made of pure sugar and water, and flavored with wild cherry. They come in various sizes. This deer stands about 3 inches tall

Entertain at Cocktails

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Jacobson entertained a company of friends on Saturday evening, starting with cocktails at their home and continuing with dinner at the Statler.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

NANCY DONOVAN, red-headed Irish singer at the Mayflower Lounge, attributes her career to "a whirligig of chance."

NANCY

She grew up in Olean, N. Y., now famous as the setting for "Seven Storey Mountain," singing only with her sisters and her mother. After school she went to New York City to begin a career as secretary and bookkeeper. Her spare time roller skating outings led to the first public appearance. The manager of the rink liked her voice so much he gave her a free pass every time she'd come in and sing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Nancy was heard there by talent scouts; they asked her to go to a small East Side club for an audition. That she did, and was signed on the spot.

With her marriage a year later to the owner of the club, her first and only voice training began. He has taught her since that time—for six years—and, as Nancy says, "he knows the business from the customer's angle—he knows what they want." He travels with her wherever she goes.

But they hope to stay permanently in New York after this. Nancy has done many a radio show, and will probably continue along that line in the future.

HERBIE COLLINS, tall, young and Latin-looking band leader who opened at the Statler this week, is going up the ladder fast. Four yers ago, as a trombone player, he had played with Kostolanetz, Guy Lombardo and Benny Goodman. The most remarkable event of his life so far had been a switch within one week from Guy Lombardo's Band to Benny Goodman's.

Then he gathered together a six-piece outfit of his own and started playing society music in his home town, Philadelphia. He's been doing it ever since till the last few months, when he expanded to a full band—nine pieces and a girl singer—and started playing for the Statler chain.

He, his trombone, fiddle and solovox will be in the Embassy Room for a month.

THE rotund and ever smiling chef at Michel's, Gabriel Christol, has at last found the perfect role. He's going to be "Papa Noel," the French Santa Claus, at the Bohemianlike Club for music lovers. He'll distribute French holiday cakes and pastries to the customers; the sweets include souffles au rhum, oreilles a l'amis and other tidbits.

Court Denies Extradition in Auto Seizure

Extradition of two men to Virginia to face highway robbery charges in an automobile-repossession case, was refused yesterday by District Court.

The men, Irving C. Thomas, 24, of 1817 D st. ne., and Leslie L. Cortvriendt, 18, of 1343 29th st. se., were charged November 15 in Fairfax County, Va.

The pair, it was charged, stopped the car of Rutherford M. Whitehorn, of Lorfax, Va., forced Rutherford and his family from the car, and repossessed it in the name of the Nolan Finance Co., 1102 New York ave. nw.

Because of circumstances surrounding the seizure, Virginia authorities filed charges against the two men.

Judge Outlines Law

In rejecting the Virginia request for extradition, Judge Matthew F. McGuire said the highway robbery charge must contain "the aspect of intent to deprive a person of property and also intent to benefit the person who commits the crime."

The judge cited the conditional sales contract which permits the lienor to take possession of the property in default of payments.

"Although I don't subscribe to high pressure sales methods of a dollar down and catch them for the rest," he said, "the facts before me do not show that highway robbery has been committed."

Judge McGuire said the men had perhaps been guilty of something in the nature of criminal trespass, or of a tort (a civil wrong).

Says He Was Pushed

Whitehorn testified as to the details of the repossession and said the men had "pushed" him from behind the wheel and later "pulled" his wife from the car.

He said when they drove off, they took with them groceries and other articles he and his wife had just purchased.

The defendants were represented by Attorney Clifford Alliter and the case was prosecuted by Assistant United States Attorney John Lane.

Seated beside Lane at the counsel table was Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh Marsh of Fairfax County. However, he took no part in the proceedings.

W. M. & A. Line Tells of Cut In Schedules

The W. M. & A. Motor Lines, Inc., yesterday announced a "slight" curtailment of service for reasons of "economy" effective at 12:01 a. m. Sunday.

The company, which operates buses between the District and points in Prince Georges County, Md., said all of its lines would be affected to some extent.

The company announcement said "service to the outer ends of some lines has been curtailed or discontinued during certain nonrush hours of the day."

The announcement, made by L. L. Altmann, president and general manager, said the economy move would not mean a reduction in personnel nor a decrease in pay rates per hour for hourly or other employes. He said:

"It is hoped further fare increases will not be necessary."

The announcement said surveys had disclosed "a very small percentage of our patrons on certain lines may be inconvenienced at certain times during the nonrush period," but it was believed "no unsurmountable hardship will result."

Altmann declined to elaborate further on the curtailment program.

Cabbie Tells How He Made Bogus Money

A former Washington taxicab driver told a District Court jury yesterday that he and a confessed confederate made more than $100,000 in counterfeit money here.

He is Walter W. Kidwell, 30, now of 1204 Calvert st. se. Along with Eugene H. Creighton, 25, he pleaded guilty to counterfeiting charges and is a Government witness against three persons on trial for alleged counterfeiting activity.

They are Arthur M. Bebar, 35, a printer of 1013 17th st. ne., and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hughes, 6000 13th st. nw.

Kidwell said he and Creighton originated the idea of printing bogus $20 bills and took up the matter with Bebar, who operates an offset printing shop.

"Bebar said it was possible to print money with the offset process but said he thought it was a foolish idea and he'd have nothing to do with it," the witness said.

Kidwell said Bebar was finally persuaded to make the necessary plates for the bills but that Kidwell and Creighton did the printing on a multilith machine in a suite of rooms they rented.

Kidwell testified a suitcase containing perhaps $70,000 in bills was left with the Hughes for storage in their home.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin, less than $2000 of the bogus bills were passed before the defendants were arrested. Points of distribution were Washington and nine other cities, he said.

Chevy Chase Child Stricken With Polio

A 14-month-old Chevy Chase youngster has been stricken with polio. This brings the total number of cases reported in Montgomery County to 40, the county health department said yesterday.

The child, who lives in the 5000 block of Bradley blvd., was admitted to Children's Hospital on December 17. The case was diagnosed yesterday.

Real Mother Not Accepted, Witness Says

The dramatic meeting of Mrs. Wandajune Kearney and her two young sons after five years was described by a witness yesterday in the District Court battle over the boys' custody.

Mrs. Kearney, 33-year-old interviewer for the Federal Security Agency, is suing to get the children from her estranged husband, Michael M. Kearney, 36, a $7000-a-year lawyer. The boys are Philip, 6, and Michael, 9.

Kearney is seeking a divorce on grounds of desertion or five years' voluntary separation. He said his wife lewt him in March, 1944, after six years of marriage when the younger boy was less than a year old. He placed them in the home of Mrs. Arthur Tholl, 618 Bennington dr., Silver Spring, Md.

Meeting Arranged for March 5

Mrs. Tholl took the witness stand to testify that until January, 1949, she heard nothing from the mother. Finally, she said, by arrangement of the husband's and wife's attorneys, the meeting was arranged for March 5.

Mrs. Tholl said she prepared the boys by telling them she was their second mother and that they were to meet Mrs. Kearney, their first mother.

This is Mrs. Tholl's version of what happened:

"This is your first mother," she said to the silent youngsters.

Mrs. Kearney rose and said, "No, I'm not. I am your real mother."

Philip quickly replied, "No, you're not. My mommie's over there.

"I carried you under my heart for nine months," the mother said.

"You didn't carry me anywhere," said the little boy.

Visited Boys Regularly

Since then, Mrs. Kearney has visited the boys regularly, she said. Kearney has legal custody pending the outcome of the suit.

A physician, Dr. William D. Aud of Silver Spring, testified that the boys are in fine health and do not show emotional upset after they see the mother.

Kearney is represented by Attorney Godfrey L. Munter. Representing the wife is Attorney Herman Tocker.

The husband has testified that Mrs. Kearney left him twice and did not wish family responsibilities.

Mrs. Kearney has still to take the witness stand, but in an affidavit denied that she ever lost her love for the children. She charges Kearney with cruelty.

Injunction Asked Against Oriole Line

The Government yesterday asked for a Federal court injunction against the Washington Suburban Bus Line, charging violation of Interstate Commerce safety regulations.

An ICC complaint against the Oriole Motor Coach Lines of Silver Spring, operators of the Washington Suburban Lines, was filed in the United States District Court in Baltimore.

The Suburban Line operates 11 buses from the intersection of Georgia and Alaska aves. nw. into Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

Service on the line was interrupted November 30 when the District Department of Traffic and Vehicles, after receiving complaints from riders, ordered a safety inspection. Normal service was resumed by 3 p. m. the next day.

Ask Restraining Order

The ICC asked that the company be immediately restrained from continuing practices in violation of regulations. The complaint charged that the company:

1. Failed to keep daily drivers' logs.

2. Failed to keep a file of doctors' certificates of physical examination of drivers.

3. Operated seven buses without required emergency equipment such as fire extinguishers, spare electric light bulbs, spare fuses, pot-torch flares or red lanterns, first aid kits and hand axes, except for five buses which had fire extinguishers and two with flares or lanterns.

Say Repairs Not Made

4. Failed to have repairs made on three buses found by an ICC inspector to have defective equipment, although written instructions were sent to the company after the inspection.

5. Failed to make a written report within 15 days of an accident May 21 in which a passenger was injured, and of another May 27 when more than $100 damage was done.

Federal Judge William C. Coleman signed an order giving the company until January 10 to show why an injunction should not be issued.

Chapter Three

CHRISTMAS in Poland is chiefly a religious event although it also has its holiday aspects. Recently, there have been indications that the Polish Communist government is planning to "nationalize" all religious activity—including Christmas.

Five weeks ago, the Vatican News Service said that the Cominform has organized subversive seminaries to prepare false priests who will be entrusted with the sabotage of religion."

Amazing as that may seem, it was foreshadowed as long ago as Christmas of 1948.

At that time, Polish authorities in Warsaw conducted a contest for the building of szopkas.

The szopka is an old Polish Christmas tradition. It's a miniature church or cathedral, constructed of cardboard or of more durable materials. Always, however, the szopka has a porch, or small stage, on which are displayed cardboard figures or dolls, representing the Holy Family and other religious characters. It is mounted on a pedestal and carried by carolers through the streets at Christmastime.

In Poland most churches are built along Gothic or Roman lines. And most szopkas follow those lines, showing pointed arch windows, graceful spires and similar decorations.

Style Changed

BUT IN THE CONTEST conducted in Warsaw last year, according to photographs made available by the official Polish Information Service in New York, the winning szopas were duplicates of Russian Orthodox Churches, with bulbous, Byzantine domes and plump, bulging columns.

When these pictures were shown to a prominent leader of the Polish community in the United States, he said:

"These things are not Polish szopkas. They are abortive by-products of Poland's Communist government, which apparently is trying to Russianize our Christmas customs."

"I do not think," he added, "that they have succeeded as yet. Perhaps next year . . . or the next . . . but not yet. Christmas in Poland this year will be observed by most people in accord with our old traditions."

'First Star' Feast

THESE traditions differ in the cities and villages of Poland, and vary from region to region. But there is a pattern which Poles always follow.

The celebration starts on Christmas Eve, December 24. When the first star appears in the sky that evening ("in memory of Bethlehem" the Poles will tell you), progress on the family feast is well advanced.

Before dinners, candles are lit on Christmas trees. The children are ushered in for the ceremony and see the decorated tree for the first time.

Gay paper streamers and colorful paper ornaments cover the tree. Hanging from its branches are red, polished apples, beautiful painted eggshells, candies and small toys. On the topmost branch is a big Christmas star, or an angel dressed in pink robes.

Another popular custom in the cities is "Swiety Mikolaj," or Santa Claus, who appears after the tree is lit and distributes gifts. In the more religious homes, he tests the children on their ability to recite prayers, and gives them presents as a reward.

After the excitement of gift-giving is over, the traditional wigilia, or Christmas Eve dinner, is served.

Oplatek and Kisses

BEFORE sitting down to the table, the family goes through the ceremony of breaking bread. The bread is in the form of white wafers called oplatek. Breaking of the oplatek is accompanied by an exchange of kisses and good wishes. Members of the family who cannot be present send their oplatek to the dinner, and it is shared by those present.

Spread on the table (sometimes under the table) are clusters of straw, or hay. After everyone is seated, the young people reach eagerly and draw out a straw, for this is a way to tell their fortune.

If your straw has only a single blade, you'll remain single all your life. If the blade is divided, you count the shoots, which tell how many years you'll wait before your marriage.

The meal itself is meatless, though elaborate, and is composed entirely of traditional Polish dishes. There is a clear beet soup, lima beans, mushrooms, potato dumplings and a desert of noodles and poppy seeds. The main course is fish.

There must always be an even number of persons seated at the table, for an odd number denotes trouble to come. One chair is always left empty—for departed souls or for strangers. (It's a grave sin to turn away anyone from your Christmas table.)

Shepherd's Mass

IN towns, everyone gathers around the tree after dinner is finished, to sing kolendas or Christmas carols. These are characteristic Polish melodies, beautiful in their simplicity.

Among them are "Bog sie rodzi" (God is Born); "Dzisiaj w Betlejem Radosna" (Today Good Tidings Came from Bethlehem); and "Lulajz Jezuniu" (Sleep, Jesus, Sleep.) The last was adapted by Chopin for his Scherzo in B Minor, Opus 20.

Usually the singing lasts until midnight, when people go to church to attend the Pasterka, or Shepherd's Mass.

Christmas Day itself is passed in family visits, and prayers by the faithful.

On the next day, community festivities begin. Most ancient of these is the Turon, when villagers dress as animals and go from house to house singing carols. Most important animal in the group is the turon, itself a fantastic beast with a huge wooden head and enormous jaws.

All through the holiday season, strolling carolers make the rounds of their neighbors carrying a szopka. On the porch of the szopka are the Holy Family, King Herod, his henchmen, an Angel, the Devil, and Death in a black shroud, scythe in hand.

These Christmas shows date 500 years or more, when poor students devised them as a means of earning an extra penny during the holidays.

Of the many Polish legends associated with Christmas, most popular is the one about the cattle speaking at midnight—although Poles tell you that he who hears them must die. There also is a folk belief that on Christmas Eve the water in wells changes for a short time into wine.

(Tomorrow: Christmas near Santa Claus Land, in the Scandinavian Countries.)

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

A Few Transit Lines on Subject of Crowding

Washington's long-suffering streetcar and bus operators have been trying for years to devise a formula for convincing passengers that they ought to move to the rear and minimize the congestion up front.

I've always contended that there would be less crowding if the exit door were at the rear, instead of in the center of the cars. But transit officials tell me that I don't know what I am talking about, so I yield. But the problem doesn't.

One operator with a sense of humor occasionally calls out: "Honest, folks — the back end is going to exactly the same places as the front end. Why not step to the rear?"

That usually gets results. So does the motorman who turns to the sardines about him and admonishes: "These folks on the platform are just as cold and tired as you are, and I hate to pass them up. Won't you please make some room by moving to the rear?"

A new wrinkle is reported by M. W. B. of 43 Missouri ave. nw. The bus driver had tried and tried to get somebody to take advantage of the empty space in the rear, with no success. When it appeared that he was about to lose his temper, he surprised everybody with a bit of humor instead—and got immediate action. All he did was sing out:

"Hot coffee and doughnuts now being served in the rear, folks."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Male and female pups, 6 weeks old; will develop into good hunting dogs." (Hillside 6635.)

"Playful, 1-year-old female cat." (Axminster 7593.)

"We're moving, and can't take our lovable black female cocker with us." (Dupont 3501.)

WHY SO MANY?

In the wake of my item about diplomatic immunity as it applies to traffic violations, I have received a great number of bitter letters denouncing the entire diplomatic corps, individually and collectively.

Apparently many of our local motorists and pedestrians have been angered, at one time or another, by a brush with a DPL driver who was above the law—and the memory of the resulting resentment is hard to erase.

However, Lawyer James A. Purcell of 1220 Delafield pl. nw. writes in more tranquil vein to make what appears to be a reasonable suggestion.

He says that certainly the ambassadors, ministers and other top-ranking personnel of true diplomatic status are deserving of DPL license tags. But he doubts the wisdom of extending such immunity to minor employes who drive about town on the most routine of errands.

As Maj. G. W. Edgerly of 3908 McKinley st. nw. points out, many of these employes are American citizens who revel in the opportunity to thumb their noses at regulations they heretofore had to obey. And the result is that they sometimes take unreasonable advantage of the situation.

Personally, I'm inclined to agree that the State Department has helped to create the problem which enforcement officials are now wishing they could solve. Too many DPL tags serve only to defeat their original purpose. And Maj. Charles S. Coulter of 4212 37th st. nw., adds this thought:

"Most foreign governments issue diplomatic tags only to diplomats, and not to minor employes. Why shouldn't this country follow the same plan?"

BATTLE OF NOTE

Lee Gilbert, former District Liner, is currently attending the University of Missouri and is looking forward to his Christmas vacation back here in the District.

Meantime he sends along an item he thinks is pretty funny; and I agree.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra was rehearsing Prokofieff's "Alexander Nevsky Cantata" with the Mizzoo Choral Union, and doing a listless job of portraying the battle scene.

Conductor Vladimir Golschmann was visibly annoyed, and rapped the rehearsal to an abrupt stop. As the players eyed the leader apprehensively, he said:

"Gentlemen, I assume you know you're fighting a battle." Then, after a momentary pause, he added gently: "And I guess you realize that you're losing it."

The rehearsal was resumed, with the orchestra giving a spirited interpretation.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Ed Murrow, the crackerjack CBS newscaster, offers a $100 prize for brief philosophical thoughts used on his program. He could do worse than to send a C-note to "Post Haste," the Post Office Department magazine which in the current issue observes:

"Defeat isn't bitter, if you refuse to swallow it."

Last week Harold Hastings died in New York. He had been a prominent Democratic lawyer and held high position in the district attorney's office under Tammany's regime. Then he ran for district attorney, in 1937—the first political opponent ever faced by Thomas E. Dewey and, as the Tammany candidate, lost to the young special prosecutor . . . Six months ago, Hastings, ill and in need, telephoned Dewey and asked help of the man whose catapult to national fame he once had tried to stop. He could not get a job from the Democratic administrations . . . Dewey gave him a job in workmen's compensation, the job he held at death.

Toys Sought For Europe By Legion

By Drew Pearson

Last year, American G.I.'s, spending Christmas in Germany, raised $247,000 to bring a brighter Christmas to the German children of the United States zone.

Pearson

A G.I.'s pay is not munificent, and most of them were spending rather lonesome Christmases compared with that at home. However, they contributed generously to the children of men who once had been their enemies.

This Christmas, the American Legion, led by far-sighted Comdr. George Craig, has launched an appeal to all Americans to collect toys one day after Christmas for the children of Europe. Coming as it does from the veterans who fought the war, this represents one of the most significant moves in America.

The Legion is fully aware of the fact that wars usually come in 20-year cycles, that the children of today can be either our friends or enemy soldiers of tomorrow, and that the time to prevent war is by building good will long in advance of crisis.

To this end, the Legion is asking the Nation to cooperate in collecting toys immediately after Christmas for shipment to the kids of Europe, where toys are scarce this year. A message from an American child is to be attached to each toy—which may start a train of friendships lasting for years.

Note — The toys will be distributed by CARE, the nonprofit organization which has machinery already set up in all Atlantic Pact countries and some Iron Curtain countries.

'Operation 23'

Here is the inside story on how Capt. Arleigh A. Burke, head of the Navy's "Operation 23," was passed up for promotion.

Actually the Navy Promotion Board approved Burke for promotion to the rank of rear admiral, and Secretary of the Navy Matthews sent it to the White House.

However, Matthews talked to the President by phone later, at which time Truman said, in effect:

"I see you have that so-and-so Burke's name on the list. Take it off."

So Secretary Matthews had the Board reconvene and pass over Burke. Then the list was sent back to the White House. The promotions are on Truman's desk right now.

Note—Burke's "Operation 23," the special Navy propaganda task force, deliberately flouted all regulations regarding unification and armed services cooperation.

U. S. Water Survey

New York's water shortage has caused Government engineers to survey the water resources of the entire Nation to see whether we are gradually drying up. The results are reassuring regarding the country in general, but not reassuring regarding the big cities.

The fact is that the big cities are draining their reservoirs faster than the water flows in, chiefly because people are running their spigots and factories are operating their pumps more. Meanwhile, 95 percent of our water runs into the sea unused.

Only long-term solution is reclamation for the big cities of the East. New York City, for instance, must take a lesson from Los Angeles, which has stretched an aqueduct 200 miles to tap the water of the Colorado. Manhattan can do the same by piping water 80 miles from the Hudson above Poughkeepsie, at which point the Hudson is free from salt water. Pumps are already being installed for that purpose on the Delaware River, but they won't be able to keep up with New York's increasing water needs.

Elsewhere, engineers are altering the map of the United States in their quest for water.

Human Sewage

The cities with the worst water problem are those that would be expected to have the least—cities built along the rivers. This is because of contamination. "Man is probably the only animal that drinks his own sewage, but this is literally the case where cities dump their sewage and pump their drinking water out of the same river.

Worse than sewage, however, is the chemical wastes from industrial plants. Running water tends to purify sewage, but nothing can be done to make some chemicals safe to drink. Yet industrial plants line the banks of the Mississippi, Ohio, Delaware, Potomac and other rivers, dumping chemicals into the water for the people of Pittsburgh, Wheeling, Louisville, St. Louis, Philadelphia and Washington to drink.

Another problem along the sea coast is sea water which seeps into the underground supply. This has happened at both Los Angeles and Miami, and is also threatening Brooklyn, where the water supply is now below sea level.

New York State strictly regulates Brooklyn's pumping and requires plants to pour used water back into the ground. But because of New York's growing water famine, these pumping restrictions may be lifted.
